PILKINGTON, SIR THOMAS-EDWARD, of Chevet Hall, co. York; b. 19 March, 1829; inherited as 9th baronet, at the decease of his father, 10 Oct. 1850.

Lineage.

Fuller says, that the Pilkingtons were originally of Rivington, co. Lancaster, and a right ancient family; that they were gentlemen of repute in the shire before the Conquest, at which time, the chief of the house being sought after by the Norman soldiery, was fain to disguise himself as a thrasher in a barn; from which circumstance, partly alluding to the head of the fall falling sometimes on the one, and sometimes on the other side, and occasionally on himself, he took for the motto of his arms "Now thus! now thus!" The first of the family we find upon record is

LEONARD PILKINGTON, of Pilkington Tower, co. Lancaster, living in the reign of HENRY I.; from him descended

THE RIGHT REV. JAMES PILKINGTON,* one of the six divines appointed to revise the Book of Common Prayer, who was consecrated Bishop of Durham in 1560. In 1569, the northern rebels coming to Durham, tore the Bible and English Liturgy into pieces, and the bishop would most probably have shared a similar fate could they have found him. His lordship subsequently instituted a suit at law against Queen ELIZABETH, for the lands and goods of the rebels attained in the bishopric, and would have succeeded had not parliament interfered, and adjudged these forfeitures, "pro hac vice," to the crown.

PRESTON.

PRESTON, SIR ROBERT, of Valleyfield, co. Perth; col. in the army; s. his father as 8th bart., in 1847.

Lineage.

The name of Preston, which is of great antiquity in North Britain, was assumed by the ancestors of the present family from their territorial possessions in Mid-Lothian, in the time of MALCOLM CRAN-MOHR. The first of the family upon record is,

810

LEOLPHUS DE PRESTON, living temp. WILLIAM THE LION, whose grandson,

SIR WILLIAM DE PRESTON, Knt., was one of the Scottish nobles summoned to Berwick by EDWARD I., in the competition for the crown of Scotland, between Bruce and Baliol, after the death of King ALEXANDER III. in 1291. This Sir William was s. by his son,

NICHOL DE PRESTON, one of the Scottish barons who swore fealty to King EDWARD. He d. in the beginning of the reign of DAVID II., and was s. by his son,

SIR LAWRENCE PRESTON, who was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE PRESTON, a gallant soldier, high in the favour and confidence of King DAVID BRUCE, who accompanied that monarch in his unfortunate expedition into England, and falling into the enemy's hands at the battle of Durham, in 1346, suffered several years' imprisonment in the Tower of London, and was released only by ransom. He acquired the estate of Gorton in 1343, as appears from the charter still in existence. His son,

SIR SIMON DE PRESTON, witnessed a charter of donation to the monastery of Newbottle in 1360. He was s. by his son,

SIR SIMON DE PRESTON, who left issue,

GEORGE (Sir), his successor.

Henry (Sir).

ANDREW, whose son,

GEORGE, of Whitehill, was great-grandfather of

SIR RICHARD PRESTON, who was created a peer of Scotland, in the dignity of BARON DINGWALL, 8th June, 1609, to himself and his heirs whatsoever, and obtained subsequently the Earldom of DEMOND, in the peerage of Ireland, to his heirs male. His lordship, through the favour of his royal master, JAMES I., obtained the hand of Lady Elizabeth Butler, only surviving child of Thomas, 10th Earl of Ormonde and Ossory. By this lady he left an only child,

Elizabeth, Baroness Dingwall, who m. James 12th Earl (afterwards Duke) of Ormonde, and was s. by her grandson,

JAMES, 2nd Duke of Ormonde, who was impeached in 1715, and attainted, when all his English honours expired; but it is doubtful if the attainder could affect the claim of the PRESTON family to the BARONY OF DINGWALL, the line (BUTLER) of the attainted duke having failed, and the dignity reverting, as it has done, to the heir general of the first Lord Dingwall.

Sir Simon was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GEORGE PRESTON, whose great-grandson,

WILLIAM PRESTON, of Craigmillar, had issue,

Simon (Sir), who succeeded to Craigmillar, and his line failed with

HENRY.

The second son,

HENRY PRESTON, m. Mary, dau. of Napier of Merchiston, and was father of

JAMES PRESTON, Esq., who acquired by charter, dated in 1544, the lands and barony of Valleyfield, from William, commendator of Culross, upon the resignation of Patrick Bruce; and his descendants have ever since been designated from that estate. He m. Margaret, dau. of Horne, of Prendergust, co. Berwick, and was s. by his son,

ARCHIBALD PRESTON, Esq., second Baron of Valleyfield, who m. Glio, dau. of Robert, Lord Sempie, by Isabella, his wife, dau. of Sir William Hamilton, of Sanquhar. He was s. by his son,

SIR JAMES PRESTON, the 3rd baron, who m. Jean, dau. of James Erskine, of Balgonie, and granddaughter of Lord Erskine, by Annabella, his wife, dau. of Sir W. Murray, of Tullybardine, ancestor of the Duke of Atholl, and had issue, of which a dau., Barbara, m. Lord Sempie, and the eldest son,

SIR JOHN PRESTON, s. as 4th Baron of Valleyfield. He m. Grizel Colville, dau. of Alexander Colville, commendator of Culross, (father of Lord Colville of Culross,) by whom, with three daus., he had three sons, James, who d. without issue.

GEORGE, his successor.

ROBERT, of whom hereafter.

I. GEORGE PRESTON, Esq. of Valleyfield, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 31 March, 1637, by a grant in favour of him, "et heredes suos masculos quocumque de tempore in tempus pro perpetuo in omni tempore futuro." Sir George m. in 1634, Marian, only dau. of

Hugh, 3rd Lord Sempill, and grandda. (maternally) of James, Earl of Abercorn, and had issue,

I. WILLIAM, his heir.

II. GEORGE, a general in the army, governor of Edinburgh Castle (see SIR WALTER SCOTT'S Waverley), and commander-in-chief, subsequently, in Scotland, when eighty years old. The rebels sent a flag of truce to the Castle of Edinburgh, and threatened to burn Valleyfield if the castle was not instantly surrendered. The gallant veteran replied, that in that case he should direct his majesty's cruisers to burn down Wemyss Castle, on the coast of Fife, then the property of the Earl of Wemyss, whose son, Lord Elcho, was a general officer in the service of Prince Charles-Edward. It is not saying too much, to affirm that General Preston, by his protracted defence of Edinburgh Castle, and President Forbes, of Culloden, by his influence with the highland clans that took no part in the rebellion, saved the crown for the House of Hanover. General Preston paid off encumbrances on the estate of Valleyfield, and thus acquired the right to entail the property (which he duly executed) in favour of the heirs, male and female, of his brother Sir William, and his nephew Sir George.

The eldest son,

II. SIR WILLIAM, m. Anne, dau. of Sir James Lumsden, of Ingerally, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR GEORGE, who m. Agnes (a celebrated beauty), dau. of Patrick Muirhead, Esq. of Rashyhill; and dying in 1741, was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR GEORGE. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. of William, Lord Cochrane of Ochiltree, and grandda. (maternally) of the Earl of Kincardine, by Veronica Van Arson Van Sommelsdyck, dau. of Cornelle, Lord of Sommelsdyck and Spytke. By Anne, his wife, Sir George had issue,

Patrick, who predeceased his father, leaving, by Catherine, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Capt. John Menzies, of Ferriton, two daus.,

1 ANN, Lady Baird Preston, of Valleyfield and Fern-town, widow of the late Gen. Sir David Baird; d. without issue in 1847. 2 Catherine.

Alexander, who also d. before his father, leaving no issue.

ROBERT.

ROBERT WELLWOOD, Esq. of Garvoch, and had issue,

Isabella, m. Robert Clarke, Esq. of Comrie Castle, co. Perth, and has a son, ANDREW CLARKE WELLWOOD,* Esq. of Comrie Castle, who m. Jane, dau. and heir of Sir John Wardlaw, Bart.

Agnes.

Sir George was s. in 1779, by his third, but eldest surviving son,

V. SIR CHARLES. This gentleman, who was a military officer, obtained great renown by his gallant defence of Fort St. John against the American General, Montgomery, and which he only surrendered at the last extremity. Sir Charles was a commissioner of the Customs, and M.P. for Kirkcaldy. He d. 23 March, 1800, and was s. by his brother,

VI. SIR ROBERT, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of George Brown, Esq. of Stockton, but had no issue. He d. 7 May, 1834.

On the death of the 6th baronet, the whole male descendants of Sir George, the patentee, having become extinct, the title devolved in terms of the original diploma on his nearest collateral heir male general, being the descendant in the male line, of his younger brother, Robert, already mentioned. This

ROBERT, son of Sir John, Lord Preston, of the Court of Session, m. Isabella Dundas, of the Armlston family; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Alexander Bothwell, of Glencross, and had six sons, John, Robert, Alexander, Charles, WILLIAM, and George, all of whom died without issue, except Robert (whose sons all d. young and unm.) and William. Lord Preston d. in October, 1674. His son,

WILLIAM, of Gorton, was a major in the army. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Ramsay, of Whitehill, and had two sons, John and GEORGE. John, the eldest, having succeeded to the estate of Gorton, left it, in consequence of GEORGE, entered the army, and was greatly distinguished for the courage and skill he displayed in the wars in Germany. He rose to the rank of general, and became colonel-in-chief of the Scots Greys. PRESTON.

PRESTON, SIR JACOB-HENRY, of Beeston St. Lawrence, co. Norfolk; b. 25 Jan. 1812; s. his father as 2nd bart., 21 April, 1823; m. 4 Nov. 1846, Amelia, youngest dau. of the late Wm. Willoughby Prescott, Esq. of London, and has issue, a son and heir, b. 15 Sept. 1851, and two daus.

Lineage.

This family was early settled at Beeston St. Lawrence, in the hundred of Tunstead, co. Norfolk. It came originally from the village of Preston, in the hundred of Babergh, Suffolk,—where its ancestors held rank as gentlemen in the reign of EDWARD III. Jacob Preston, of Old Buckingham, was the fourth son of Wm. Preston, of Preston, and his wife, Rose, dau. of Mr. Whipple, of Dickleburgh. Jacob Preston d. in 1630, and is interred at Old Buckingham. In 1640, Sir Henry Hobart conveyed the manor of Beeston, with the advowson, to Thomasine, the widow of Jacob Preston; and their son Jacob Preston came into possession in 1668. He was an ardent loyalist, being an attached and favourite servant of CHARLES I.; and one of the four gentlemen appointed to wait upon that unfortunate monarch during his imprisonment. CHARLES, as a last tribute of affection, presented him, when on the scaffold, with an emerald ring, which is still preserved at Beeston Hall. He m. Frances, dau. of Sir Isaac Appleton, of Walsingham, in Suffolk, and Bokenham House, in Norfolk. Their son, Isaac, knighted at Whitehall, by WILLIAM III., in 1695, is considered the common ancestor of the Preston family, a branch of which has ever since continued to reside at Beeston Hall. Sir JACOB PRESTON, who now possesses the Beeston property, is a descendant of a female branch of the family.

Lineage.

The Pringles of Stichill are the heirs male and representatives of the Pringles or Hop-Pringles of Craiglatch and Newhall, in the co. Selkirk. They are believed to have been very old cadets of the house of Smallholm, though the exact period at which they came off has not been ascertained; but the circumstance may not only be inferred from the close vicinity of their land to the Selkirkshire properties of that family, but appears to have been a matter of local notoriety, and is stated as a fact in several public and family documents. It is most probable that the first of the family was either one of the five sons of Robert Pringle, of Smallholm, who m. Elizabeth Dishington, or a younger son of David Pringle, the next Laird of Smallholm. In the crown rentals of Etrick Forest for 1485 and 1490, we find the lands of Craiglatch in the possession of William Hop-Pringle, and Alexander, his son, their cautioner being James Pringle, of Smallholm. For four generations we can only trace their names through their titles of succession, though nothing can be more accurate. The first was

WILLIAM PRINGLE, of Craiglatch, also designed of Whitkoun, in Roxburghshire, who had a charter of the lands of Hat, in that county, in 1492, and crown tacks of Craiglatch, in 1485 and 1490. He was s. by his son,

ALEXANDER PRINGLE, of Craiglatch, (crown tack 1490), who was s. by his son,

ROBERT PRINGLE, of Craiglatch, (seisin 1512), s. by his son,

ALEXANDER PRINGLE, of Craiglatch, (retour 1539), s. by his son,

GEORGE PRINGLE, of Craiglatch, in whose behalf the tenure of his Etrick Forest lands was changed to a feudal holding by charter, 1587. In these times of violence and insecurity, the names of the Scottish lairds of small properties in the border counties are rarely to be met with in the public records of national transactions, except when they had the good fortune to distinguish themselves in some of the greater battles with their English foes, in which they were so frequently required to bear their part; for, by the tenure of their lands, they were required to hold themselves always ready to obey the summons of their sovereign to attend his host, with their sons and retainers. But if we turn to the pages of the criminal records, we shall find their names constantly occurring, sometimes on the lists of assize, but more frequently as aggressors or sufferers. The arm of the law was generally weak, so they were tempted by the chance of impunity to acts of violence; or, when they had themselves suffered injury, they were too apt to seek redress by acts of retaliation, which knew no bounds except the extent of their immediate power or opportunity. If, therefore, we look into those interesting records of Scottish manners during the reign of the Stewart monarchs, PITCAIRN'S Criminal Trials, for the names of the Pringles of Craiglatch, we shall not look in vain. In 1555, we find Alexander Hop-Pringle, of Craiglatch, and George, his son, convicted of a bloody assault upon David Hop-Pringle, son of Alexander Hop-Pringle, of Trynliknows, their nearest neighbour. Again, in 1563, William Cranston, of that ilk, and James, his brother, were cited to appear at Selkirk, for invading the lands of Williamhope, belonging to Alexander Pringle, of Craiglatch, with the purpose of taking his life, and, on not finding him, taking revenge by ham-stringing and slaying three of his cattle. It is probable that the arm of the law failed to reach them, for afterwards we find Alexander of Craiglatch, with his brother George, and his son George, cited to answer for a deed of tenfold retaliation, by entering the adjoining lands of Hawthorne, belonging to Cranston, and slaying forty of his cows. The crime of march-treason, or holding communication with English foemen, and countenancing them in their depredations, was, in those days, not unfrequent on the borders; and George Pringle, of Craiglatch, with his eldest son George, had the misfortune, on account of it, to incur the penalties of the law, which involved the forfeiture of their lands of Craiglatch. Of this forfeiture, Sir James Pringle, of Smallholm, had interest to obtain a gift, with the view of restoring them to the family, which he did in 1601, but in consequence of the burdens incurred by these misfortunes, one half, called the Knows, was alienated in 1617 to James Pringle, of Whytbank, and the remaining half, called Newhall, became from that time the designation of the family. George Pringle had two sons,

1. GEORGE, his heir.

11. ROBERT, ancestor of the Stichill family, of whom hereafter.

The elder son was

GEORGE PRINGLE, of Newhall, to whom the property was restored. His name occurs in various deeds and family writs. By his wife, Margaret Ker, he had two sons and two daus.,

1. JAMES, his heir.

11. ROBERT, who afterwards succeeded.

1. Margaret, s. p.

11. Christian, s. p.

George Pringle was succeeded, about 1650, by his eldest son,

JAMES PRINGLE, of Newhall, and he by his son,

ROBERT PRINGLE, of Newhall, who, in 1667, executed a deed, settling his estate on his own heirs male; falling whom, on the heirs male of his uncle, Robert Pringle, in Carberton; and falling them, on the heirs male of Robert Pringle, of Stichill. He d. s. p. soon afterwards, and was s. by his uncle,

ROBERT PRINGLE, first designed "in Carberton," and afterwards of Newhall. He d. s. p. in 1672, when his estate of Newhall went, in terms of his nephew's destination, to the next heir male, his cousin, Robert Pringle, of Stichill, the first baronet of that family. We therefore return to the second son of the first George of Newhall,

ROBERT PRINGLE, whom we find designed of Baring-bush. He was bred a writer to the signet, rose to eminence in his profession, and became agent for most of the principal families in his own district of the country. His worth and frugality enabled him to realize a good fortune, with which he first acquired the lands of Templehall, in Berwickshire, and afterwards, in 1623, he purchased from Sir John Gordon, of Lochinvar, (afterwards the first Viscount Kenmure,) the fine estate of Stichill, in Roxburghshire; and to these he afterwards added other lands. He m. Katherine Hamilton, of the family of Silverthill, by whom he had two sons and four daus.,

1. JOHN, who predeceased his father. He m. Margaret Scott, natural dau. of Walter, Lord Scott of Buccleuch, and sister of John Scott, 1st Laird of Gorrenberry. By her he had issue,

1 ROBERT, heir to his grandfather.

2 Walter, of Graycrook, who m. Jean, dau. of James Deane, merchant in Edinburgh. He was an eminent advocate, and is mentioned in Wodrow's history, as having ably pleaded for the covenanters, when tried as rebels, in 1679.

3 Francis, of Rowistoun.

4 John.

5 James.

6 William.

1 Katherine, m. to George Pringle, of Torsonce.

2 Elizabeth.

11. Walter, to whom his father left the lands of Greenknowe, in Berwickshire. He m. Janet, second dau. of James Pringle, of Torwoodie, from which union the Greenknowe family sprung. Having taken part with the covenanters, he suffered many hardships and persecutions, as related in his interesting memoirs, which throw much light on the family history.

Robert Pringle's eldest dau. d. s. p.; the 2nd m. Ker of Graden, and had issue; the 3rd, Sir James Home, of Eccles, and had issue; and the 4th, a gentleman of the name of Craigie. Robert Pringle, of Stichill, d. in 1649, and was s. by his grandson,

ROBERT PRINGLES, of Stichill, who, in 1667, on the death of Robert Pringle, of Newhall, came into possession of the property of the elder branch of his family. He was created a knight baronet in 1683. He m. in 1660, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Hope, Lord Craighall, the eldest son of Sir Thomas Hope, the celebrated lord advocate. They had six sons and seven daus., who grew up, (besides six children who died in infancy, nineteen in all,) viz.,

- I. JOHN, second baronet of Stichill.
- II. Walter (Sir), of Lochton, an advocate, afterwards raised to the bench by the title of Lord Newhall, and a most eminent judge. He m. a dau. of Johnston of Hilton, and had issue; but on failure of his male descendants, in the third generation, his estate of Lochton came to the present SIR JOHN PRINGLES, then a second son of Stichill.
- III. Robert (The Right Hon.), a distinguished statesman, who for some time held the office of secretary-at-war. He m. a lady of the name of Law, by whom he had a son, Robert, of the Middle Temple, counsellor-at-law, who d. unm. in 1771.

Sir Robert Pringle was s. by his eldest son, SIR JOHN PRINGLES, of Stichill, the 2nd baronet, who, in 1688, m. Magdalen, dau. of Sir Gilbert Elliot, of Stobs, by whom he had four sons and two daus.,

- I. ROBERT, the third baronet.

- IV. Sir John, Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University of Edinburgh. Having studied medicine at Leyden, he went, in the year 1742, as physician to the Earl of Stair, when he commanded, under GEORGE II., the allied army in Germany. During that war he was made physician-general to the forces, physician to his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, and upon the accession of GEORGE III., king's physician. At his majesty's marriage he was created a Baronet, and appointed physician to the Queen, and afterwards to the Prince of Wales. He was chosen president of the Royal Society for several years successively; but on the decline of his health he retired from that high and honourable situation. He m. a dau. of Dr. Oliver, of Bath, but had no issue. After an active and distinguished life, he died, in his seventy-fifth year, leaving the bulk of his ample fortune to his nephew, Sir James Pringle, of Stichill, who also succeeded to his British baronetcy, in terms of the patent.

The surname of this family, from which the present baronet derives maternally, was originally written De Pyvelisdon, and its settlement in England may be referred to the period of the Norman conquest. Flint, in the reign of EDWARD I., and was appointed by that monarch, after the subjugation of Wales, collector of the taxes levied there; he was also sheriff and keeper for life of Anglesey; but the Welsh, averse to foreign rule and taxation, seized upon Sir Roger, and caused him to be hung. By his wife, Agnes, dau. of David le Clerk, Baron of Malpas, Sir Roger was father of

Lineage.

MARGARET (MARR), Countess of Marr, s. her brother Thomas, 13th of the old Earls of Marr, in 1877, and marrying William, Earl of Douglas, that nobleman assumed the designation of Earl of Douglas and Marr. Of this marriage there were two children,

JAMES, who s. to the honours.

Isabel, who became eventually Countess of Marr.

The countess was divorced from Lord Douglas, and m. 2ndly, Sir John Swinton, of Swinton; and dying in 1835, her son,

JAMES, became Earl of Douglas and Marr. This distinguished chieftain making an incursion into England, in 1388, penetrated to the gates of York; whence returning spoil-laden, his lordship had many skirmishes with the English at Newcastle, in one of which, at Otterburn, 19 Aug. in that year, a furious conflict ensued, wherein Lord Douglas fell; but the Percys eventually sustained a signal defeat. The earl married, but, as he left no legitimate issue, his only sister, Isabel, succeeded as Countess of Marr, while the Earldom of Douglas passed to the male heir of that family. Lord Douglas and Marr left an illegitimate son,

SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, upon whom he had conferred the Barony of Drumlanrig, co. Dumfries, by charter, sans date. This Sir William, who was a very eminent commander in the wars with England, was deputed ambassador to that kingdom, in 1412, to solicit the release of JAMES I. of Scotland, and obtained a charter, dated 30 Nov. 1412, from that monarch, all written in the king's own hand, upon vellum, confirming to himself and his heirs the several baronies of Drumlanrig, Hawick, and Selkirk. Lineage.

This family is maternally descended from SIR JOHN RAMSAY, Knt. of Balmaine and Tasque, co. Kincardine, who was created by JAMES III. a lord of parliament in 1433, and sat under the title of LORD BOTHWELL. Adhering, however, to his unfortunate sovereign, against whom the nobles of Scotland rebelled, his lordship was outlawed, and his estates subjected to confiscation, in 1483, by the 1st parliament of JAMES IV. while that monarch conferred the dignity of Earl of Bothwell upon Hepburn, Lord Hailes, whose descendant became the third husband of MARY Queen of Scots, and was the last of his family that enjoyed the peerage. In 1498, the disgraced lord received, however, a royal pardon, but under the simple designation of John Ramsay; and he obtained, at the same time, some lands in the cos. of Forfar and Wigton; which favours were followed by a charter, in 1510, of the Barony of Balmaine. The grandson of this personage,

* SIR JOHN BRIGHT, of Carbrook, was a very distinguished partisan of the parliament against CHARLES I. At the outbreaking of the civil war, we find him holding a captain's commission from Fairfax, actively exerting himself to raise forces to oppose the declaiming measures adopted by the court, and in 1643, his name occurs as a commissioner for the West Riding for "sequestering the estates of notorious delinquents." In the military transactions which ensued, Capt. Bright took a prominent part, and was made colonel of a regiment of foot, for his gallant conduct in the attack which was made on the head quarters of the Earl of Newcastle, at Wakefield. Colonel Bright accompanied Sir Thomas Fairfax in his Cheshire expedition, and was with him till he joined the confederated armies before York. The battle of Marston Moor soon ensued, and its disastrous event proved fatal to the royal cause in the north. Several fortresses, garrisoned for the king, surrendered to the victorious army, and Colonel Bright was appointed governor of the castle of Sheffield. In 1644, he made a successful attack on a party of the king's forces under Sir William Cobb, and in the following year took Sir Charles Howard, of Naworth, prisoner. After an heroic struggle, the cause of royalty was now almost utterly defeated, and to the strife of arms negotiations succeeded. Colonel Bright continued to serve under Cromwell in Scotland, and at the second siege of Pontefract Castle, which the royalists had recovered by an ingenious but desperate stratagem. In 1650 he accompanied the army marching into Scotland, but threw up his commission in disgust, having solicited a fortnight's leave of absence, and been refused. During the commonwealth, Colonel Bright was successively governor of York and Hull, and one of the six representatives in parliament for the West Riding. He served the office of high sheriff for two years, 1654 and 1655. The measures for bringing about the restoration he appears to have supported, and so soon as the July following that great event, he was created a BARONET. He m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of Sir Richard Hawksworth, Knt. of Hawksworth, and relict of William Lister, Esq. of Thornton, who was slain at Tadcaster, in 1642. The Lapland girls were restored in safety to their native country, after an absence of seven months, with fifty pounds and numerous trinkets, and the deer bred in England.

asylum in England, where it appears he took up his permanent abode, and from him descended

SIR DENNER STRUTT, Knt.,* of Little Warley Hall, co. Essex, who was created a Baronet in 1640. This gentleman, a staunch adherent of the royal cause, fell fighting under its banner during the civil wars. FREDERICK-WILLIAM-BROOK, d. 9 Feb. 1840.
 Anne-Blanche.

Lineage.

This family traces its descent to the ancient noblesse of France. The first of its members, however, that settled in England was,

PETER THELLUSSON, Esq. (son of Isaac de Thellusson, ambassador from Geneva to the court of Louis XV.,) who fixed his abode in London about the middle of the 18th century, and accumulated an immense fortune as a merchant there. He subsequently purchased the manor of Broadworth, co. York. Mr. Thellusson m. 6 Jan. 1761, Anne, 2nd dau. of Matthew Woodford, Esq., and sister of Sir Ralph Woodford, Bart. of Cariby, M.P. for Evesham, by whom he had issue,

Mr. Thellusson, after bequeathing large fortunes to each member of his family, devised the residue of his immense possessions—namely, landed estates of the annual value of 4500*l.*, and personal property to the amount of £800,000—to trustees, for the purpose of accumulation during the lives of his three sons, and of all their sons who should be living at the time of his death, or should be born in due course afterwards, and the lives of the survivors of them; the accumulated fund then to be expended in the purchase of estates, and to be conveyed to the eldest male descendant of his three sons, with the benefit of survivorship. This extraordinary will was mooted before the House of Lords, but finally confirmed by that branch of the legislature, 25 June, 1805; an act of parliament, however, subsequently passed to interdict in future any accumulation of property so devised beyond the term of twenty-one years after the decease of the testator. It is supposed that this bequest of Mr. Thellusson's will exceed a million and a half before it can be inherited. He d. 21 July, 1797, and was s. at Broadworth by his eldest son.

R I D

Lineage.

The family of Riddell is of Norman extraction. The roll of Battle Abbey includes, as the CONQUEROR'S followers, "Avenell, Ros, et Riddell." Avenells and Rosses thereafter figure in Scottish records: the former, like the Riddells, in Roxburghshire, and with the corresponding name of Gervase; while Thierry, in his Histoire de la Conquête de l'Angleterre par les Normands, (vol. ii. pp. 414-417,) further specifies "Ridel" and "Revel" among the "Norman Conquerors."

The first of this family explicitly proved settled in Scotland, is GERVASIUS DE RIDEL, the earliest high-sheriff of Roxburghshire. He is witness to one of the oldest Scotch documents, the well-known Inquisitio Principis Davidis, in 1116, by that great Norman colonizer of Scotland, and to other legal deeds. From Gervasius descended,

WALTER DE RIDDALE, or RIDEL, who had a charter from DAVID I. of the lands of Lillsolve and Whitunes, co. Roxburgh, to hold "sicut unus baronum meorum." This is admitted to be the oldest charter extant by a Scotch king to a laic, having been granted sometime between 1124 and 1153. It was legally transmuted, owing to its antiquity and frailty, by order of Lord Gray, Justice-general of Scotland, in a high judiciary court held at Jedburgh, in 1506. The lands thereby conveyed were subsequently denominated the "Baronies of Riddell and Whitunes," in part from the possessors; and the latter, "Domini de Riddell" and "Whitunes." From the brother and heir of the above Walter,

SIR ANSKETIN DE RIDALE, or RIDDELL, lineally descended

QUINTIN "DE RIDALE, Dominus de eodem," in 1421, s. by his grandson,

JAMES "DE RIDALE de eodem," whose son,

JOHN "DE RIDALE de eodem," d. about 1552, and was s. by his grandson,

WALTER RIDDELL, styled, "of that ilk," or of Riddell; and the latter, by his eldest son,

ANDREW RIDDELL, of Riddell and Haining, in Selkirkshire, who figured in 1591, and afterwards. He m. 1st, a dau. of Sir James Pringle, of Gallowshields, and had issue, JOHN (Sir), his successor; William, and James, ancestors, respectively, of the Riddells of Newhouse and Mayboll. He m. 2ndly, Violet, dau. of William Douglas, of Pompherston, by whom (with other sons) he had, Andrew, ancestor of the Riddells of Haining, upon whom he settled that property, now represented by the Marchioness Dowager of Ailsa, through the Erskines of Dun; and Margaret, m. to Robert Butherford, of Edzerston.

I. SIR RIDDELL, of Riddell, who, 14 May, 1628, during his father's lifetime, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, with a grant of lands there, to be denominated "the Barony and Regality of New Riddell." He m. 1st, Agnes, dau. of Sir John Murray, of Blackbarony, by whom he had, (besides daus.)

Thomas, also capt. in the Dutch service.

II. SIR WALTER, knighted during his father's lifetime, m. Jane, dau. of William Rigg, of Aithernie, Fifeshire, by whom he had (with two daus.) five sons,

Lineage.

The family of De la Rupe, or Roche, according to the Irish Peerage, and Rudiments of Honour, by Francis Nicholls, published in 1797, were maternally descended from CHARLEMAGNE, King of France and Emperor of the West; and in the remarkable pedigree of the ancestors of this family, it is shown that they derive their descent from the most illustrious sources, their progenitors being allied, by intermarriages, with the great Earls of Flanders, the Counts of Bavaria, ALFRED, and other Saxon Kings of England, the house of Capet, in France, WILLIAM the Conqueror, and other Anglo-Norman kings.

The Roches came to Ireland in the reign of HENRY II., along with the other Anglo-Norman chiefs in Strong-bow's time; and in the reigns of RICHARD I. and King JOHN, they got large grants of lands in Cork, in the territory of Fermoy, which, from them, was called Roche's Country, and they erected a castle, and founded a Cistercian monastery at Fermoy, and they had seats at Castle-town Roche, and other places.

Alexander, David, John, and Maurice Fitz-John Roche, were in succession Barons of Fermoy by tenure; and about the year 1800, the Lords George and John Roche are mentioned as connected by intermarriage with the family of Fitzmaurice, Earls of Kerry. In the reign of EDWARD IV., about 1470, the most noble, potent, and honourable Ulic Roche was created Viscount de Rupe and Fermoy.

David Roche was in 1588 Viscount of Fermoy, and his pedigree is given as son of Maurice, son of David, son of Maurice, and his wife was Ellen MacFierce, of the family of the Fitzmaurices, afterwards Earls of Kerry; and Jane, dau. of this David Roche, was m. to Patrick Fitzmaurice, Baron of Lixnaw, in Kerry. Another David Roche, Viscount of Fermoy, lived in the reigns of CHARLES I. and CHARLES II., and was a distinguished nobleman in supporting the interests of King CHARLES in Ireland during the civil wars; and in consequence of his loyalty, his extensive estates, estimated to be worth fifty thousand pounds per annum, were confiscated by CROMWELL; Lord Roche retired with a regiment to France, and died on the Continent. Another David Roche, Viscount Fermoy, sat in the parliament of King JAMES II. at Dublin, in 1689, and was a steady adherent to the House of Stuart. The Roches had also the title of Barons of Castlelough, and some of them were Barons of Tarbert, in Limerick, where a branch of the family settled at a very early period; John Roche having been first bailiff of that city in 1488, and another David Roche first bailiff in 1491, and mayor in 1499, since which time the Roches appear to have been constantly among the principal authorities there.

GEORGE ROCHE, Esq., served as mayor of Limerick in 1702 and 1721, and was returned its member to parliament in 1713 and 1715. He m. 1st, Alice, dau. of J. Vincent, Esq., by whom he had one son, Arthur; and 2ndly, Mary-Mills, dau. of — Bindon, of Mangrett Castle, and had, with a dau., Anne, m. to Major Carlton White-locke, a son.

Lineage.

This family, of English origin, was brought into Ireland towards the close of Queen ELIZABETH'S reign, by WILLIAM PARSONS, who rose to great wealth and power, and was eventually one of the lords-justices of that kingdom,—his immediate line being, however, extinct, we shall briefly detail it, and then proceed with that of the existing family.

WILLIAM PARSONS settled in Ireland about the close of Queen ELIZABETH'S reign; and being a commissioner of plantations, obtained very considerable territorial grants from the crown. In 1602, he succeeded Sir Geoffrey Fenton, as surveyor-general of Ireland; in 1610, he obtained a pension of £30 a year, English, for life; in 1611, he was joined with his brother, Laurence, in the superintendency of the crown lands, with a fee of £60 a year for life; in 1620, presenting to the king, in person, surveys of escheated estates, in his capacity of surveyor-general, he received the honour of knighthood, and was created a Baronet, 10 Nov. in the same year. Sir William Parsons represented the co. of Wicklow in parliament in 1639, and was constituted lord-deputy with Lord Dillon, in 1640; but that nobelman being soon removed, he was re-sworn with Sir John Borlace, master of the ordinance. He continued in the government until 1643, when he was removed, charged with treason, and committed to prison, with Sir Adam Loftus and others. He m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Mr. Alderman John Lany, of Dublin, and niece of Sir Geoffrey Fenton, by whom he had several children. This gentleman m. Catherine, eldest dau. of Arthur, Viscount Ranelagh; and dying in 1658, was s. by his only surviving son, the province of Munster in 1612, when he received the honour of knighthood from the Lord-Deputy St. John. In 1620, Sir Laurence was joined in the surveyor-generalship with his brother, and appointed, four years afterwards, 2nd baron of the Exchequer. He m. Jane, dau. of — Malham, Esq. of the co. of York; and dying 8 Sept. 1628, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM PARSONS, Esq. of Birr, who was made governor, in 1641, of the territory of Elye O'Carroll, and of his castle at Birr, which, having garriomed with his tenantry, stood a siege of fourteen or fifteen months, but eventually surrendered, 20 Jan. 1642.  eminent person was born at Chesterhall, 13 Feb. 1733, and was early distinguished by those powers of reason and eloquence, which ultimately raised him to the highest dignity of the state. Well adapted to the legal profession by great natural talents and indefatigable perseverance, he was called to the Scottish bar when only nineteen years of age, and was coming rapidly into notice, when an illiberal attack from the bench disgusting him with his own country, determined his seeking a wider sphere for his professional pursuits. He became a member of the Inner Temple in 1753, and under the tuition of Macklyn, endeavoured, with more than doubtful success, to lose his national accent. He was called to the English bar in 1757, and by his talents soon won the applause of Lord Camden, and the assistance of Lords Bute and Mansfield, pleading in the Douglas and Hamilton cause, and successfully defending Lord Clive. He was appointed solicitor-general 26 Jan. 1771; promoted to the attorney-generalship in 1773; and elevated to the bench, as lord-chief-justice of the Court of Common Pleas, in 1780, when he was created borough, co. Surrey, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his nephew, Sir James St. Clair-Erskine; and after him, to John Erskine, Esq., the brother of Sir James;

This family flourished for several generations in the co. of Devon, before it removed into Cornwall; and in the beginning of the 15th century, we find Walter Eliot returned amongst the gentry of that shire. The Cornwall pedigree, made in 1620, commences with

JOHN ELIOT, who m. Jane, dau. of John Bonville, of Shute, co. Devon; and whose great-grandson,

RICHARD ELIOT, Esq., having purchased the site &c. of the priory of St. Germans, and giving it the name of Port Eliot, resided with great hospitality there. This gentleman, d. in 1609, and was s. by his son,

This gentleman, a strenuous opponent of the court, was appointed by the House of Commons one of the managers of the impeachment of the Duke of Buckingham; for which, with Sir Dudley Digges, the other manager, he was committed to the Tower, but was soon afterwards released. In 1628, Sir John Eliot, with other members of the House of Commons, was again sent to the Tower for refusing to answer before the privy council for parliamentary conduct; and on the 29th of May in that year, an information was exhibited in the Star-chamber against Sir John and his companions for their undutiful speeches; upon which charge being afterwards arraigned before the Court of King's Bench, they were adjudged to be imprisoned during the king's pleasure, and to give security for their good behaviour, and Sir John was also fined £2000. These gentlemen were subsequently offered their freedom, upon the terms of making submission, but they rejected the proposition; and Sir John Eliot died in the Tower, 27 Nov. 1632. He had some years previously (1608) addressed a letter to Sir James Harrington, the poet, in pretty much the same tone. "Good knight," saith the minister, "rest content, and give heed to one that hath sorrowed in the bright lustre of a court, and gone heavily on even the best seeming fair ground. 'Tis a great task to prove one's honesty and yet not mar one's fortune. You have tasted a little thereof in our blessed queen's time, who was more than a man, and, in truth, sometimes less than a woman. I wish I waited now in your presence-chamber, with ease at my food and rest in my bed. I am pushed from the shore of comfort, and know not where the winds and waves of a court will bear me. I know it bringeth little comfort on earth; and he is I reckon, no wise man that looketh this way to heaven." His lordship was s. by his only son,

Of the prisoners, Babington, Ballard, Savage, Tichbourne, and Donne admitted their guilt, as to one or other of these plots, and were therefore convicted on their own confessions; of the remaining seven (including the heir of Lleweny) who pleaded Not Guilty, five were convicted as accomplices, on the questionable authority of passages extracted from the confessions of the others; and two, Gage and Bellamy, as accessories after the fact, because they had aided and abetted the conspirators after the proclamation. Two successive days, the 20th and 21st, following the trial, were allotted for their execution. On the first day the executions were protracted "to the extreme of payne," accompanied by the execrating and revolting process constituting the feudal punishment of high treason; but the youth, the rank, and the demeanour of the sufferers powerfully excited the pity, and the barbarity of the punishment the horror of the spectators, and on the next morning Mr. Salusbury with the remaining six were allowed to expire on the gallows, before their bodies were subjected to the knife of the executioner. Lineage.

This family derives its honours from females, through the very ancient houses of Saye and of Fiennes.

WILLIAM DE SAYE, one of the companions of the CONQUEROR in 1066, m. Agnes, dau. of the famous Hugh de Grentemaismill, and granddau. (maternally) of Ivo, Count de Ballemonte, and was grandfather of

WILLIAM DE SAYE, Baron Saye, whose grandson,

GEOFFREY DE SAYE, one of the barons opposed to King JOHN, d. in 1230, and was s. by his son,

872

WILLIAM DE SAYE, Lord of Berling, Sele, &c., in Kent, and governor of the castle of Rochester in 1260, who was s. by his son.

WILLIAM DE SAYE, summoned to parliament in 1294; and dying in the following year, was s. by his son, GEOFFREY DE SAYE, who was summoned to parliament from 1313 to 1321. He d. in 1322, and was s. by his only son.

William de Saye, who was summoned to parliament, but whose male line ceased with his son, JOHN, who was also summoned to parliament, and at whose decease the Barony of Saye devolved upon his (John's) sister, ELIZABETH DE SAYE, at whose decease, s. p. in 1399, it fell into ABERNACE, as it still continues, between the descendants of her ladyship's aunts, IDONEA, Lady Clinton, and JOAN, Lady Fienes. (Refer to BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

SIR WILLIAM FIENNES, was sheriff of Surrey and Sussex in 1297, and again in 1300. This Sir William m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of William Battistford, and had two sons,

Roger (Sir), whose son,

Richard, marrying Joan, dau. and heir of Thomas, Lord Dacre, was declared Lord Dacre in the 37th year of HENRY IV.

And

SIR JAMES FIENNES, who was summoned to parliament, 3 March, 1447, as Lord Saye and Sele, and created, on the 6th of the same month, in open parliament, the lords spiritual and temporal acquiescing, a baron of the realm, by the same title. His lordship had previously obtained a grant of the office of constable of Dover, and warden of the Cinque-Ports, to himself and his heirs male for ever, and was constituted lord-treasurer of England in 1449. The ultimate fate, however, of this powerful noble marks the instability of greatness at the period in which he lived. Being a prisoner in the Tower when Jack Cade's mob entered the city of London, he was dragged by the riotous multitude from thence to the Standard at Cheapside, and there beheaded, 4 July, 1451. The baron was s. by his son, (by his wife, Emmeline Cromer, of Willingham, maternally, one of the co-heirs of Trillow.)

WILLIAM, 2nd Lord Saye and Sele. This nobleman obtained, in 1461, a grant of the office of constable of Porchester Castle, and of Pevensey Castle, for life; and being one of the lords who attended the king into the north, was made vice-admiral to Richard Nevill, the great Earl of Warwick, then high-admiral of England. In the 10th year of EDWARD IV., he was one of the lords who fled with the king into Flanders, and upon his majesty's return, landed with him at Ravenspur, in Holderness, but was soon afterwards slain at the battle of Barnet, 14 April, 1471. His lordship m. Margaret, dau. and heir of William Wykeham,* by whom he acquired the lordship of Broughton, in Oxfordshire. He was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY FIENNES, who assumed the title of Lord Saye, but was never summoned to parliament. He m. Anne, dau. of Sir Richard Harcourt, Knt.; and dying in 1476, was s. by his son,

RICHARD FIENNES, who likewise bore the title, but had no summons to parliament. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Crofts, Esq. of Chipping Norton, co. Oxford, and was s. by his son,

EDWARD FIENNES, who refused to take up the title, because his mother, who had married Richard West, Esq., held the capital seat and the greater part of the estates. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John Danvers, K.B., of Dantsey, co. Wilts, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD FIENNES, who m. Ursula, dau. of Richard Fermour, of Easton Neston; and dying in 1579, was s. by his son,

SIR RICHARD FIENNES, Knt., who obtained a recognition of his claim to the Barony of Saye and Sele, by letters patent from JAMES I., dated 9 Aug. 1603, wherein the said barony was confirmed to himself and to his heirs

* Son and heir of Sir Thomas Wykeham, Knt., son of William Perot, by Alice, his wife, dau. of William Champneis, by Agnes, his wife, sister of WILLIAM OF WYKEHAM, Bishop of Winchester, and founder of New College, Oxford.

RICHARD FIENNES, Esq., as 6th viscount, at whose demise, in 1781, s. p., the viscounty expired, but the ancient barony, which had remained in abeyance since 1674, was claimed in the same year (1781) by THOMAS TWISLETON, Esq. of Broughton Castle, co. Oxford, as heir-general of James, 9th baron and 2nd viscount, (refer to the Hon. Elizabeth Fiennes, elder dau. and co-heir of the 2nd viscount, and her descendants), which claim (the line of the other dau., the Hon. SCARBOROUGH, EARL OF, (John Lumley-Savile,) Viscount Lumley, and Baron Lumley, of Lumley Castle, co. Durham, in the peerage of England; Viscount Lumley, of Waterford, in the peerage of Ireland; b. 18 July, 1788; s. as 8th earl, 21 Feb. 1835. His lordship is lord-lieut. and custos-rotu- lorum of Notts.

Lineage.

The surname of this family was assumed from LUMLEY on the Weare, in the bishopric of Durham, and the family deduces its lineage from

LULPH, (son of Osbert de Lumley,) who m. Algetha, dau. of Alfred, Earl of Northumberland, by Edgna, dau. of ETHELRED II. This Lulph, who was a nobleman of great popularity in the time of the CONFESSOR, was murdered by means of Leofersio, chaplain to Walcher, Bishop of Durham; a crime soon after avenged by the populace of Durham, who sacrificed both the chaplain and the prelate to their just resentment. The eldest son of Lulph, assuming the surname of Lumley, succeeded as

UCHTED DE LUMLEY, and from him lineally descended ROGER DE LUMLEY, who m. Sybil, one of the daus. and co-heirs of the great Northumberland feudal baron, HUGH DE MOREWIC, and was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT DE LUMLEY, who m. Lucia, one of the three sisters and co-heirs of William, Robert, and Thomas de Thweng, Barons Thweng, and was s. by his son,

SIR MARMADUKE DE LUMLEY, Knt., who first assumed the arms of the ancient House of Thweng, which arms the family have ever since borne. This Sir Marmaduke was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT DE LUMLEY, who d. unm. 48th EDWARD III., and a minor, was s. by his brother,

SIR RALPH DE LUMLEY, Knt., who was summoned to parliament among the barons of the realm from 1384 to 1399. This nobleman was a deputy-governor of Berwick-upon-Tweed, under Henry de Percy, Earl of Northumberland, in the 16th of RICHARD II., and obtained royal permission, in the 16th of the same reign, to convert his manor-house of Lumley into a castle. His lordship joining subsequently, however, in the rebellion of Thomas de Holland, Earl of Kent, was attainted, and died in the field of battle. He had m. Eleanor, dau. of John, Lord Nevil of Raby, and sister of Ralph, Earl of Westmorland, and left, with three daus., four sons; of whom the youngest, Marmaduke, was successively master of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and chancellor of that University, Bishop of Carlisle, (1430.) treasurer of England, (1446.) and Bishop of Lincoln, (1451.) Thomas, the eldest son, d. in 1404. and was s. by his brother,

SIR JOHN DE LUMLEY, Lord Lumley, who doing homage in the 6th of HENRY IV., had livery of all castles, manors, and lands, whereof Sir Ralph Lumley, his father, was seised at the time of his attainder, and was restored in blood by parliament in 1411. This nobleman was actively engaged in the French wars of HENRY IV. and in those of HENRY V.; in the 10th year of whose reign he lost his life, with Thomas, Duke of Clarence, at the battle of Baugy, in Anjou, (13 April, 1421.) and was s. by his only son,

THOMAS DE LUMLEY, who obtained from parliament, in 1461, a reversal of the attainder of his grandfather, and was summoned as a baron, from 1461 to 1497, in which latter year he is supposed to have died. His lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Sir James Harrington, and was s. by his only son,

SIR GEORGE, Lord Lumley, who does not appear to have been summoned at any time to parliament. This nobleman was sheriff of Northumberland, a powerful office in those days, in the 2nd year of EDWARD IV. Lord Lumley d. in the 23rd year of HENRY VII., and was s. by his grandson,

SIR RICHARD LUMLEY, Knt., (refer to the Hon. Anthony Lumley, 2nd son of Richard, Lord Lumley,) who was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, as Viscount Lumley of Waterford, 12 July, 1628. This nobleman, adhering faithfully to the king during the civil wars, made Lumley Castle a garrison, and being a principal commander under Prince Rupert, marched with that general into the west of England, and was at the siege of Bristol, where he remained until its surrender, in 1645. His lordship m.

SCOTT, SIR WILLIAM, of Ancrum, co. Roxburgh; b. 26 July, 1803; s. as 6th baronet, at the decease of his father; m. in 1828, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of David Anderson, Esq. of Balgay, co. Forfar, and has issue, four sons, WILLIAM; John; Henry; and Arthur; and two daus., Elizabeth and Harriet.

Tinzage.

The founder of the ancient and far-spreading family of Scot in North Britain.

UCHTREDUS FILIUS SCOTTI, was witness to the foundation charters of the abbeys of Holyrood House and Selkirk, by DAVID II., in the years 1128 and 1130. It does not appear, however, that this person had assumed the name of Scot as a surname, but that he was designated "filius Scotti," as the son of a Scotsman, to distinguish him from other persons called Uchtred, which was then a common Christian name beyond the Tweed. This Uchtred was father of

RICHARD, who did assume the surname of Scot, and was living in the reigns of MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM the Lion. This Richard Scot founded the Priory of St. Andrews, and d. in 1158, leaving two sons,

Richard, ancestor of the Dukes of Buccleuch;

And

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, a person of great power in the co. Fife about the middle of the twelfth century. This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Duncan Syras, of that ilk, by whom he had one son, DUNCAN, with whose consent, and that of his lady, Sir Michael made a donation to the monastery of Dunfermline, "pro salute animæ suæ." &c. &c., of the lands of Gascumene, in Fifeshire. The great-grandson of this Sir Michael,

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, 2nd Baron of Balweary, was a person of very extraordinary abilities, and made a remarkable figure at the time in which he lived. After pursuing with unusual success, the study of languages, belles lettres, and mathematics at home, Sir Michael travelled into France, where he remained several years, and thence passed into Germany, where he spent some time at the court of FREDERICK II. The extraordinary discoveries of Sir Michael in the science of chemistry, obtained him the character of a magician; and to this day there are marvellous tales told in Scotland of his communings with the evil one. In the year 1290, Sir Michael Scott and Sir Michael de Wemyss were, by the states of the nation, deputed ambassadors-extraordinary to the court of Norway, to bring home Queen MARGARET, then the undoubted heir to the crown of Scotland, and who was to have espoused Prince Edward of England; but unfortunately, her majesty died at Orkney, in her way to Scotland, in 1291. Sir Michael d. about the year 1294, and from him lineally descended

SIR WILLIAM SCOTT, of Balweary, who, in the lifetime of his father, was put in possession of the lands and Barony of Innertiel, and was long designated by that title. This gentleman had two sons,

William, who succeeded him;

And

ANDREW SCOTT, Esq., who obtained from his father the lands and Barony of Glendokit, co. Perth, with the express provision that, after his death, those lands should return to the family of Balweary. This Andrew lived temp. Queen MARY, and obtained the lands of Kirkstyle, co. Perth, which subsequently became the title of his family. The great-grandson of this Andrew,

I. JOHN SCOTT, Esq. of Kirkstyle, obtaining a charter under the great seal, in 1670, of the lands and Barony of Ancrum, assumed that designation, and was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia 27 Oct. 1671, with remainder to his heirs male generally. He d. in 1712, and was s. by his eldest son.

This gentleman m. 1st, Anna, dau. of William Wallace, Esq. of Helington, by whom he obtained a considerable fortune, but had no surviving issue. Sir Patrick m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir William Scot, of Harden, by whom he had two sons and four daus., viz.,

Florence-Louisa-Sibbald.

Maria-Cicilia-Sibbald.

Sir Sibbald s. as 3rd baronet, at the decease of his father, Sir David Scott, Bart., K. H., 18 June, 1851. He graduated at Christ Church, Oxon, and is a deputy lieutenant, and a captain in the Royal Sussex light infantry.

Lineage.

The ancestor of the ancient family of Scott was UCHTREDUS FILIUS SCOTT, but it does not appear that he assumed the name of SCOTT. This Uchtred was the father of RICHARD, who first assumed the name of SCOTT, and lived in the reigns of King MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM the Lion. Richard had two sons, RICHARD and MICHAEL. Richard was ancestor of the Duke of Buccleuch, and Michael was undoubted ancestor of the Scotts of Balweiry, co. Fife. He had considerable possessions in lands about Dunfermline, and founded the Priory of St. Andrew's. He d. in 1158.

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, a man of property and power in the co. Fife, flourished in the reign of WILLIAM, who s. to the crown of Scotland in 1165. Sir Michael made a donation of the lands of Gascumeners, in Fifeshire, to the monastery of Dunfermline. He m. Margaret, dau. of Duncan Syras, by whom he had a son,

DUNCAN SCOTT, who s. his father, and had two sons, MICHAEL (Sir), his heir; and Gilbert. The elder,

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, knighted by ALEXANDER II., in 1231, m. a dau. of Sir Richard Balweiry, with whom he got the lands and barony of Balweiry, co. Fife, which became the title of the family; by her he had one son,

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, of Balweiry, and the 2nd Baron of Balweiry of the name of Scott flourished during the 13th century, and in 1290, upon the death of ALEXANDER III., was one of the ambassadors sent to bring the Maid of Norway to Scotland. He was a man of much learning. He wrote a commentary upon Aristotle, printed at Venice, in 1496, and several treatises upon Natural Philosophy, from which he appears to have been addicted to the abstruse studies of judicial astrology, alchemy, physiognomy, and chiromancy; hence, he passed among his contemporaries as a skillful magician. Dempster informs us that, in his youth, he remembers to have heard that the magic books of Michael Scott were still in existence, but could not be opened without danger, on account of the malignant fends who were thereby invoked. In 1296, Sir Michael, with most of the nobles and gentry, had to submit to King EDWARD I. of England. He left two sons, HENRY, his heir; and Duncan.

SIR HENRY SCOTT, 3rd Baron of Balweiry, left a son,

SIR ANDREW SCOTT, 4th Baron of Balweiry, who was killed at the battle of Berwick, in 1355, fighting for the liberties of his country. He left an infant son,

SIR WILLIAM SCOTT, 5th Baron of Balweiry, who was by his son,

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, who sold the lands to Sir John Wemyss, of that ilk, in 1400. He was one of the hostages for the ransom of King JAMES I., in 1424. He left a son,

SIR WILLIAM SCOTT, who was wounded at the battle of Langside, in 1568. He adhered to the cause of Queen MARY, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES SCOTT, of Balweiry, who was knighted by JAMES VI., at the coronation of Queen ANNE, his wife, in 1590. He joined the Earls of Angus, Erroll, and Huntley, and was with them at the battle of Glenliver, in 1594. He was likewise an accomplice of the Earl of Bothwell, which, in a great measure, ruined his family, but he soon after obtained a remission from King JAMES VI., dated 24 Feb. 1595. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Alexander Wardlaw, of Torrie. His son,

JAMES SCOTT, left Fifeshire, and purchased the lands of Logie, near Montrose, in Angusshire. He m. Katherine, dau. of Orick of Orick, by whom he had an only son,

JAMES SCOTT, of Logie, who m. Margaret, dau. of Patrick Leighton, of Montrose, by whom he had,

PATRICK SCOTT, of Craig, b. in 1623, who m. a dau. of David Beattie, and dying in 1690, was s. by his son,

PATRICK SCOTT, of Rossie, and, after the decease of his brothers, of Dunninald and Usan. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Archibald Hope, Bart. of Rankeillor, (grandson of the famous Sir Thomas Hope, king's advocate for Scotland, in the reign of CHARLES II.,) and had two sons, Archibald, who d. in 1770; and

ROBERT SCOTT, of Dunninald, b. in 1705. He represented for many years the co. of Angus, and was a staunch adherent of the house of Hanover during the rebellion of 1745-6. He m. Anne Middleton, of Seaton, in Aberdeenshire; and d. in Dec. 1780, leaving a son,

* This lady saved her husband's life in 1746. The rebels came to Dunninald, and were on the point of putting Mr. Scott to death, when Mrs. Scott (usually called Lady Dunninald)

Mr. Scott d. 4 Oct. 1805.

I. JAMES SREBALD, Esq. of Sellwood Park, co. entered the hall, and petitioned for her husband's life. Being a woman of fine and commanding appearance and manner, near her accouchement, (with the late David Scott, the father of the present baronet,) her entreaties so far prevailed, that Mr. Scott's life was spared, and he was carried off to the Tolbooth of Montrose, and confined there till the arrival of the Duke of Cumberland, by whom he was liberated.

I. WALTER SCOTT, the illustrious "Author of Waverley," was born in the College Wynd of Edinburgh, 15 Aug. 1771. He received his education at Mr. Leechman's seminary, at the High School, and finally at the University of Edinburgh: he was called to the bar, as an advocate, 10 July, 1792. His love of literature, however, prevented his entering with energy into his profession, and he very soon relinquished the labours of the law for those of an author, more congenial to his taste. After attaining the highest reputation as a poet, he commenced his brilliant career as a novelist, by the anonymous publication of Waverley, in 1814. On the 22 April, 1820, Mr. Scott was created a Baronet, his baronetcy being the first conferred by King GEORGE IV., and the only one during that year. Though generally ascribed to Scott, the authorship of the Waverley Novels remained an inviolable secret until the failure of the publishers, Messrs. Constable and Co., in 1826. By this unfortunate event, Sir Walter Scott's affairs were brought to the verge of ruin; but he met the calamity with inflexible courage and honour. "Gentlemen," said he to his creditors, "time and I against any two: let me take this good ally into company, and I believe I shall be able to pay you every farthing." This, had he lived, he would have accomplished; for during the last years of his life the revenue of his intellect may be fixed at £10,000 a-year. In the winter of 1830 his health first declined, and in the autumn of the ensuing year he went upon the Continent, but finding his strength rapidly decay, he returned, and died in Scotland, 21 Sept. 1832, leaving behind him a name which already receives honour in every civilized nation of the globe, and which will go down to posterity coupled with those of Shakspeare, Milton, Burns, and Byron. Sir Walter, who was one of the principal clerks of the Session of Scotland, and sheriff-depute of the shire of Selkirk, m. 24 Dec. 1797, Margaret-Charlotte, dau. of Jean Charpentier, of Lyons, a devoted royalist during the French Revolution, and sister of Charles Carpenter, Esq., commercial resident at Salem, by whom (who d. 14 May, 1826) he had issue,

- WALTER, his successor.

From a curious MS. entitled "the Genealogy and History of the illustrious House and surname of Seton, collected and sett furth by Sir Richard Maitland of Lethington, a sister's son of the said house," (father of the famous secretary so memorable in the days of the unhappy MARY, and ancestor of the noble house of Landerdale,) we extract the following particulars regarding the origin of this family:—"There were few surnames in Scotland (says Sir Richard) before the time of King MALCOLM CANMORE, except that after the manner yet used in the highlands, they used their father's names subjoined to their own in the form of a patronymic. The said King MALCOLM gave to his nobles and gentlemen particular surnames; some by reason of their offices, and some after the names of the lands which they possessed, and some for other causes. Amongst whom, the predecessor of this family got the name of Seton, as the Chronicles testify, by occasion of the possession of the lands of that name, which was given to the lands by reason that the tees thereof is situate hard upon the see.

"I cannot find the proper name of him who first received the surname: the first whose proper name I find is called Dougal Seton; he was son, or else nephew, to him who first received the surname, and lived in the time of King ALEXANDER I."

The son of this Dougal, Secher de Seton, is found a witness to the charters of King DAVID I., and died about the year 1130, leaving a son, ALEXANDER DE SETON, who possessed the lands of Winton and Winchburgh, as well as those of Seton. He was witness to a charter of DAVID I., and left a son,

PHILIP DE SETON, who obtained from King WILLIAM I. a charter of confirmation of all the lands which had been in possession of his father, Alexander de Seton. He m. a dau. of Waldene, Earl of Dunbar, and left, with other issue, a son,

SIR ALEXANDER DE SETON, who is found a witness to many charters of King ALEXANDER II., and was high-constable of Scotland during a part of that monarch's reign. He m. Margaret, dau. of Walter de Barolay, chamberlain to King WILLIAM I., and d. in the year 1246, leaving a son.

SERLO, or SECHER DE SETON, who is mentioned as a witness to several charters, and had (besides a dau., Barbara Seton, m. to Sir William Keith, great marshal of Scotland) a son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, who, with other issue, was father of

SIR CHRISTOPHER, or CHRISTALL, SETON, mentioned by the Maitland MS., already quoted, as having been made a knight in the days of William Wallace, "and styled (for his many valiant deeds against the Englishmen) Good Christall Seton. At the field of Methven, King ROBERT BRUCE being taken captive, his taker crying in derision, 'Who will help the new-made king?' the said Christall rescued the king, and beat down them who had him in hands. He m. the sister of the said King ROBERT, who gave him the double-tressure about his coat of arms, in like manner as it is borne by the king himself. At length he was taken and carried to London, where he was most cruelly put to death, which, when King ROBERT heard, as he was walking upon a little hill beside the town of Dumfries, after much sorrow and regret for the unworthy death of so noble a knight, in the same place where he was walking founded a chapel in honour of the Virgin Mary; and in remembrance of the said Sir Christall, founded a priest to do service therein perpetually, and to pray for the said Sir Christall, mortifying five pounds yearly out of the barony of Caerlaverock, to pay for the sustentation of the said priest. The chapel was commonly called Christall's Chapel, and was standing undecayed in 1552." Sir Christopher having m. as above stated, Christian Bruce, sister of King ROBERT I., and relict of Gratney, 11th Earl of Marr, (she m. 3rdly, Sir Andrew Moray, of Bothwell, regent of Scotland,) left an only son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, who was restored by his uncle, King ROBERT BRUCE, to all the lands possessed by his progenitors in Scotland, and obtained several other important grants and privileges from the same monarch. He was made governor of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and has been justly celebrated for his defence of that place against EDWARD III. and the whole English army, in 1338, when he submitted to having his son, Thomas Seton, a hostage in the hands of the English, put to death before his eyes, rather than deliver up his charge. Sir Alexander m. Christian, dau. of Cheyne of Straloch, by whom he had,

The surname of this family was adopted from the town

ODARD, one of the companions in arms of the CONQUEROR, having seated himself in that county, acquired large possessions, according to Domesday-Book, from Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester. From this Odard lineally descended

SIR THOMAS DUTTON, of Dutton, high-sheriff of Cheshire in 1226, whose great-grandson,

SIR THOMAS DUTTON, was seneschal, governor, and receiver of the castle and honour of Halton, in Cheshire, and sheriff of that county in the 30th and 33rd of ED-WARD III. He d. in 1281, and from him descended in his Athenae Oxonienses, speaks thus:—"John Dutton, Esq. of Sherborne, in Gloucestershire. He was one of the knights for that county to sit in the said parliament, 1640; but being frightened thence by the tumults that came up to the parliament doors, as other royalists were, he conveyed himself privately to Oxford, and sat there. He was a learned and prudent man, and as one of the richest, so one of the meekest men in England. He was active in making the defence and drawing up the articles of Oxon when the garrison was to be surrendered to the parliament; for which, and his steady loyalty, he was afterwards forced to pay a round sum in Goldsmiths' Hall, London." He m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Henry Baynt-

He d. in 1274, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE TALBOT, feudal baron of Eccleswall, sheriff of Gloucester 28 EDWARD I.; who m. Sarah, dau. of William Beauchamp, Baron of Elmley and Earl of Warwick; and dying in 1306, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GEORGE TALBOT, who being involved with Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, in the execution of Piers de Gaveston, Earl of Cornwall, had his pardon for the same. This Sir Gilbert, who was lord-chamberlain to the king, 2 EDWARD III., had summons to parliament, as a baron, in 1331; and dying in 1346, was s. by his son, (by Anne, his wife, dau. of William, Lord Boteler, of Wem.)

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, 2nd baron, summoned to parliament from 1341 to 1355. This nobleman was an eminent warrior in the reign of EDWARD III., and was made a knight-banneret. He d. in 1356, possessed of immense estates, (amongst which was Goderich Castle, co. Hereford, where he chiefly resided,) and was s. by his only son,

GILBERT, 3rd baron, summoned to parliament from 1369 to 1386. This nobleman m. 1st, Patronil, dau. of James Bottiller, Earl of Ormonde, by whom he had an only son; and 2ndly, Joan, dau. of Ralph, Earl of Stafford, and was s. at his decease, in 1387, by his son,

SIR RICHARD, 4th baron; who having m. Ankaret, sister and eventually sole heiress of John, Baron Strange of Blackmere, was summoned to parliament (A.D. 1387) in the lifetime of his father, as "Ricardo Talbot de Blackmere," and "Ricardo de Goderico Castell." This nobleman d. in 1396, leaving five sons and four daus.; of whom,

Richard, the 3rd son, was Archbishop of Dublin, for thirty-two years; during which period he was successively lord-chancellor, lord-justice, and lord-deputy of Ireland.

Lord Talbot was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GILBERT, 5th baron; who m. 1st, Joan, 2nd dau. of Thomas (of Woodstock), Duke of Gloucester, youngest son of King EDWARD III., by whom he had no issue; and 2ndly, Beatrix, of the illustrious house of Pinto, in Portugal, by whom he left at his decease, in 1419, a dau., his successor,

ANKARET TALBOT; at whose decease, in minority, 13 Dec. 1431, the original Barony of Talbot, and that of Talbot of Blackmere, devolved upon her ladyship's uncle,

SIR JOHN TALBOT, 6th baron; who having m. Mand, eldest dau. and co-heir of Thomas Nevil, Lord Furnival, had been summoned to parliament, in 1409, as "Johanni Talbot de Furnyval." His lordship was appointed, in 1412, lord-justice of Ireland, and in two years afterwards, lord-lieutenant of the same kingdom, in which important government he continued for seven years. He subsequently distinguished himself in the French wars of the fifth HENRY, but his highest renown was attained upon the same field, in the reign of HENRY VI., under the REGENT, JOHN PLANTAGENET, DUKE OF BEDFORD, when his name alone became terrible, in consequence of the various successful expeditions he had conducted. His lordship was attacked, however, by the MAID OF ORLEANS, at Patay, in 1429, and his army being entirely routed, he became captive to the enterprising and enthusiastic heroine. He was exchanged soon after for Ambrose de Lore, a celebrated French captain; and continuing to distinguish himself in arms, he was created, 29 May, 1442, EARL OF SHEREWSBURY. His lordship was subsequently re-constituted lord-lieutenant of Ireland, and elevated to the peerage of that kingdom, 17 July, 1446, as Earl of Waterford, having been appointed at the same time lord-high-steward of Ireland. This celebrated general, being again engaged in foreign warfare, advanced to the relief of Chastillon, and giving the besieging French army battle, 20 July, 1453, in the eightieth year of his age, received a wound in the thigh, which proved immediately mortal. His lordship was said to have been victorious in forty different battles and dangerous skirmishes. The earl had two surviving sons by his first wife, JOHN, his successor. Christopher (Sir).

And by his second, Margaret, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick,

JOHN, who was created, in 1443, Lord Lisle, of Kingston Lisle, in Berkshire; and in 1452, Viscount Lisle. His lordship fell, with his gallant father, at Chastillon. He m. Joan, dan. and co-heiress of Sir Thomas Chedder, of Chedder, in Somersetshire, and left, with two daus., THOMAS, 2nd viscount. This nobleman having a dispute with William, Lord Berkeley, regarding some land, lost his life in a skirmish at Wotton-under-Edge, 20 March, 1469, when his honours expired.

Humphrey (Sir), marshal of Calais; d. s. p. in 1492.

Lewis (Sir), of Penyard, Herts.

Joan, m. to James, 1st Lord Berkeley.

His lordship was s. by his son,

JOHN, 2nd earl, K.G., lord-treasurer of Ireland during the administration of his father, and subsequently lord-treasurer of England. His lordship fell at the battle of Northampton, 10 July, 1460, fighting under the Red Rose. The earl m. 1st, Catherine, dan. and co-heiress of Sir Edward Burnel, but had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dan. of James Butler, Earl of Ormonde, and left, (with other issue.)

GILBERT (Sir), of Grafton, co. Worcester, who was high-sheriff of Shropshire, temp. RICHARD III., but a staunch adherent of the Earl of Richmond at Bosworth, the right wing of whose army Sir Gilbert commanded in that memorable field, and received the honour of knighthood, with a grant of the manor of Grafton and other lands, for his valiant conduct, from the victorious prince. In two years afterwards, Sir Gilbert had a command at the battle of Stoke, when the Earl of Lincoln and Lambert Simnel were defeated, and he was then made a knight-banneret. Sir Gilbert m. 1st, Elizabeth, dan. of Henry, Lord Scrope of Bolton, by whom he had two sons, Gilbert and Humphry, who both d. issueless. He m. 2ndly, Audrey, dan. of Sir John Cotton, Knt., and relict of Thomas Barton, Esq., and of Sir Richard Gardiner, lord-mayor of London, by whom he left at his decease, in 1516, an only son,

SIR JOHN TALBOT, of Albrighton, co. Salop, who eventually inherited the manor of Grafton; and dying in 1549, was s. by his son,

JOHN (Sir), whose son,

JOHN (Sir), m. Catherine, dan. of Sir William Petre, Knt., secretary of state to Queen MARY, and left at his decease, GEORGE, of whom hereafter, as 9th EARL OF SHREWSBURY.

John, of Longford, whose son,

JOHN, s. his uncle as 10th earl.

John, 2nd Earl of Shrewsbury, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 3rd earl; who m. Catherine, dan. of Humphrey Stafford, Duke of Buckingham; and dying in 1478, was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE, 4th earl; who was installed a knight of the Garter, in 1488, for his valiant conduct at the battle of Stoke, 16 June, 1487. His lordship m. 1st, Anne, dan. of William, Lord Hastings, by whom he had six sons and five daus. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Walden, Knt. of Erith, in Kent, by whom he had one surviving dau., Anne, m. 1st, to Peter Compton, son and heir of Sir William Compton, Knt.; and 2ndly, to William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke. Lord Shrewsbury d. 26 July, 1538, and was s. by his 2nd and eldest surviving son,

FRANCIS, 5th earl, K.G.; who had been summoned to parliament as a baron in the lifetime of his father, (7 Feb. 1532-3.) "This nobleman," says Lodge, "although of no ordinary abilities, appears to have been confined almost entirely to a military life. The bravery, prudence, and fidelity which had distinguished him in his important public situations during the reign of Queen MARY, induced ELIZABETH to retain him amongst those few servants of the late reign whom she admitted to her privy council when she mounted the throne; but his steady adherence to the religion of his ancestors probably obstructed his further promotion. Of the whole body of the temporal peers who had so lately, and so unanimously, subscribed to the recognition of the temporal authority (of the papal see) only this nobleman and one more (Viscount Montague) could now be found to oppose the revocation of that concession." He survived this uncourtly act of sincerity but a few months, and dying 25 Sept. 1560, was s. by his only son, (by his 1st wife, MARY, dan. of Thomas, Lord Dacre of Gillesland.)

GEORGE, 6th earl, K.G. This nobleman had the custody of MARY Queen of Scots committed to his charge, in the 11th of ELIZABETH, and was appointed, 16 Jan. 1571-2, at the arraignment of the Duke of Norfolk, lord-high-steward of England; and after the execution of that nobleman, earl-marshal. His lordship m. 1st, Gertrude, dan. of Thomas Manners, Earl of Rutland, by whom he had four sons and three daus.; and 2ndly, Elizabeth, dan. and co-heiress of John Hardwick, of Hardwick, by whom he had no issue. Of this lady, Lodge says, "she had been already thrice married: to Robert Barley, Esq. of Barley, co. Derby; to Sir William Cavendish; and to Sir William St. Loo, captain of the guard to Queen ELIZABETH. She prevailed upon the first of these gentlemen, who died without issue, to settle his estate on her and her heirs, who were abundantly produced from her second marriage. Her third husband, who was very rich, was led by her persuasions to make a similar disposition of his fortune, to the utter prejudice of his daughters by a former wife; and now, unsated with the wealth and caresses of three husbands, she finished her conquests by marrying the Earl of Shrewsbury, the richest and most powerful peer of his time. To sum up her character, she was a woman of a masculine understanding and conduct; proud, furious, selfish, and unfeeling. She was a builder, a buyer and seller of estates, a money-lender, a farmer, and a merchant of lead, coals, and timber. She lived to a great old age, and d. in 1607, immensely rich." The Earl of Shrewsbury was s. in 1590, by his eldest surviving son,

GILBERT, 7th earl, K.G.; who m. Mary, dan. of his step-mother, by Sir William Cavendish, and left three daus., viz.,

Mary, m. to William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke; and

d. s. p.

Althea, m. to Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel.

Upon these ladies the greater part of the earl's estates devolved, and the Baronies of Talbot, Furnival, and Strange of Blackmere, fell into abeyance until the decease of the two elder without issue, when those dignities are presumed to have vested in Althea, the 3rd dau. (See BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.) The earldom passed to the deceased lord's brother,

EDWARD, 8th earl; at whose decease, without surviving issue, 8 Feb. 1617, the earldom reverted to his kinsman,

GEORGE TALBOT, Esq. of Grafton, as 9th earl, (refer to descendants of Sir Gilbert Talbot,* of Grafton, son of James, 2nd earl.) His lordship dying, however, unm., the peerage devolved upon his nephew,

JOHN, 10th earl, (son of John Talbot, Esq., by Eleanor, dan. and heiress of Sir Thomas Baskerville, Knt. of Brinsop, in Herefordshire, see BURKE'S Landed Gentry, for an account of the ancient family of BASKERVILLE.) His lordship m. Mary, dan. of Sir Francis Fortescue, K.B. of Salden Hill, and had, with other issue,

FRANCIS, his successor.

Gilbert, m. Jane Flatsbury, and left,

GEORGE, }

He was s. in 1653, by his eldest surviving son,

FRANCIS, 11th earl. This nobleman m. 1st, Anne, dan. and heiress of Sir John Conyers, of Stockburne, by whom he had an only surviving dau., Mary, m. to John Stonor, Esq. of Watlington Park, co. Oxford. His lordship m. 2ndly, Anna-Maria, dan. of Robert, 2nd Earl of Cardigan, by whom he had two sons; and dying 16 March, 1667, of a wound received in a duel with George Villiers, 2nd Duke of Buckingham, was s. by his elder son,

CHARLES, the 12th earl, b. in 1660, who was created, 30 April, 1694, Marquess of Alton, co. Stafford, and DUKE OF SHREWSBURY, and installed a Knight of the Garter. His grace was a prominent statesman in the reigns of WILLIAM and MARY, Queen ANNE, and GEORGE I., and filled some of the highest official situations. He d. without issue, 1 Feb. O.S., 1717, when the dukedom and marquessate expired, but the earldom &c. reverted to his cousin,

THE REV. GILBERT TALBOT, as 13th earl, a clergyman of the Catholic church, (refer to Gilbert, son of the 10th earl.) This nobleman dying in 1748, the honours devolved upon his brother, Tradition states, that as King CHARLES I. marched to Edgcott, in Oct. 1642, he observed this gentleman hunting in his fields, and ordering him to be called, gave him so gracious a reception that Mr. Shuckburgh went immediately home, armed all his tenantry, and the next day attended his majesty to the field, where he was knighted. Sir Richard was present at the battle of Edge Hill, and afterwards retiring to his seat, fortified himself on the top of Shuckburgh Hill, where he fell, apparently dead, after a gallant resistance, surrounded by most of his tenants; but being taken up with symptoms of life, he was carried away a prisoner, first to Northampton, and subsequently to Kenilworth, whence he eventually purchased his freedom at a very high price. Sir Gray s. as 8th baronet, at the decease of his father, 9 Oct. 1805.

Lineage.

This family, originally written SCHYPWYC, and denominated from a town and lordship so called in the East Riding of York, descends from

ROBERT DE ESTOTVILLE, Baron of Cottingham, in the time of the CONQUEROR, of whom and his descendants, the feudal lords of Cottingham, Dugdale treats at great length in the Baronage. His son,

ROBERT DE ESTOTVILLE, acquired a great inheritance with his wife, Eneburga, dau. and heir of Hugh, son of Baldrick, a Great Saxon Thane, and, among other lands, had the lordship of Schypwyc, or Skipwic. He left three sons, ROBERT, his heir, from whom the territorial lords of Cottingham, whose male line terminated in the 17th of HENRY III.

OSMUND, who d. at Joppa, in Palestine, was ancestor of the Estotvilles of Gressing Hall.

PATRICK, of Skipwith.

The youngest son,

PATRICK DE ESTOTVILLE, having, by gift of his father, the lordship of Skipwith, his descendants took their name therefrom, in accordance with the custom of the age. He m. Beatrix, dau. and heir of Sir Pagan de Langton, and was s. by his son,

JEFFREY DE SCHYPWYTH, who m. Mariana, dau. and heir of William de Manthorp, and had two sons, REGINALD and Gerard. The elder, REGINALD, was hostage for the Lord Scaler, in the Barons' wars, 9th of JOHN. His son and heir,

SIR WILLIAM DE SKIPWITH, Lord of Skipwith, was living temp. HENRY III., and marrying Allice, dau. of Sir John Thorp, and heir of Sir William Thorp, Knts., became possessed of a great estate in Lincolnshire, and was the last of the family who resided at Skipwith. His son and heir,

SIR JOHN DE SKIPWITH, living at Thorp, was sometimes styled De Thorp; he likewise possessed the manor of Bekeby, in right of his mother, and having married Isabel, dau. and heir of Sir Robert de Arches, Knt. of Wranby, in the same county, had also possession of that estate. He was s. by his son,

JOHN DE SKIPWITH, who resided at Beakby, and augmented his patrimony by marriage with Margaret,

dau. and co-heir of Herbert de Flinton, of Yorkshire,* by whom he had a son and heir,

WILLIAM DE SKIPWITH, who m. Margaret, dau. of Ralph Fitz Simon, Lord of Ormsby, in the co. of Lincoln, and sister and sole heir of Simon Fitz Ralph, whereby he became possessed of that inheritance, which was the possession of Sir Ralph Fitz Simon, Knt., who in several charters was termed nobilis, and had obtained the estate and manor by his wife, the dau. and heir of Ormsby, of Ormsby. From this marriage with Margaret Fitz Simon proceeded three sons,

JOHN, eldest son and heir, d. s. p. 10 EDWARD III., the same year which his father died.

William (Sir).

RALPH (Sir), from whom descended the Skipwiths of Heburgh, in Lincolnshire, who held lands in Southlston, Kernington, Heighburgh, Alesby, and Laseby, in the time of HENRY IV.

SIR WILLIAM SKIPWITH, the second son, s. his elder brother, in the estate, a few months after his father died. Sir William was bred to the bar, and attained great eminence. He was first chosen one of the king's serjeants, and in the 33rd of EDWARD III., constituted one of the judges of the King's Bench. In three years afterwards, he was sworn in lord-chief-baron of the Exchequer, and he continued in that high judicial station until the 40th year of the same king, the time of his decease. His lordship m. Alice, only dau. and heir of Sir William de Hiltoft, Lord of Ingoldmells,† and had issue,

WILLIAM (Sir), his heir.

JOHN, heir to his elder brother.

Patrick.

Stephen.

Alice, m. to Robert, 4th Lord Willoughby de Eresby.

Margaret, m. to William Vavasor, Esq.

The eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM SKIPWITH, pursuing the learned profession of his father, was constituted one of the justices of the King's Bench in the 50th of EDWARD III., and his patent was renewed in the 1st of RICHARD II., when he was senior judge of that court, and deported himself therein so uprightly, that his name is handed down by our historians with the highest honour. On the accession of RICHARD, he obtained free warren in all his demesnes at Ormesby, Ingoldmells, Carleton, Covenham, and Bekeby; and in the 11th year of the same reign, had, at his own request, a quietus from his office of justice: "The Collar of Essex," (says an old writer,) "now worn by the judges,

* By a daughter and co-heir of Walter de la Lynde, Lord of Laseby, in the county of Lincoln, and of Bulbrook, in Suffolk, son of Sir John de la Lynde, Knt., seneschal of the city of London, in the time of HENRY III.

† By ALICE, his wife, sister and sole heir of Ralph de Muer, Lord of Calthorp and Covenham, in the county of Lincoln. SIR WILLIAM DE HILTOFT was son of another Sir William, by Agnes, daughter of Thomas, and one of the sisters and co-heirs of William de Mumby, a family descended from the house of Willoughby. SIR WILLIAM DE WILLOUGHBY having two sons by his wife, ALICE BEKE, heir of the feudal lords of Eresby, the elder, ROBERT, inherited the barony on the decease of his uncle, Anthony Beke, Bishop of Durham, and was summoned to parliament as Lord Willoughby de Eresby; the younger, THOMAS DE WILLOUGHBY, m. Margaret, sister and co-heir of Alun de Mumby, and took the name. His son William dying without issue, the estates passed to Sir William Hiltoft, the husband of his daughter Agnes.

‡ KNIGHTON, in his Chronicle, says, that notwithstanding the threats of the Duke of Ireland, Sir William pretended indisposition, and did not attend the council at Nottingham, when all the judges were summoned to meet there, in order to subscribe to several questions, whereby they might take occasion to work the death of the Duke of Gloucester; this judge wisely foreseeing the event, got his quietus, and his brethren, who were all so overawed, that they gave their opinions illegally, and were afterwards all of them arrested on the bench at the desire of the parliament, being charged with overruling the actions and determinations of the lords, by their advice and directions, upon assurance that all was done according to law; yet afterwards had given the king a contrary judgment at Nottingham, and had delivered as their opinion, that the actions of the said parliament were illegal and traitorous. On this charge, they were all (except Sir William Skipwith) condemned by the Lords Temporal, with assent of the king, to be drawn and hanged as traitors, their heirs disinherited, and their lands &c. forfeited; but this sentence, as to their lives, was respited.

first introduced from the initial letters of SANCTUS SIMON SIMPLICIUS, an uncorrupted justicer in the primitive times, well suited this Sir William Skipwith, who died full of honour, without issue male, leaving only one daughter, married to George, Lord Monboucher, whereupon the bulk of his estate descended to his brother and heir."

JOHN SKIPWITH, Esq. of Ormesby, high sheriff of Lincolnshire, 18 RICHARD II., and one of the knights in parliament for the same county, temp. HENRY V. He m. Alice, dau. of Sir Frederick Tilney, Knt. of Tilney, in the co. of Norfolk, and had three sons, viz.,

SIR WILLIAM SKIPWITH, was in possession of the estates. The records in the Tower style this William, son of the said Thomas, and state that he was seized by inheritance of Skipwith and Menthorp, in the co. of York; South Ormesby, Kettleby, Walmisgare, Calthorp, Covenham, Garnethorp, Wargholme, Laseby, Caldale, and Somercoose, in the co. of Lincoln. He was knighted in France, temp. HENRY VI., and was sheriff of Lincolnshire in the 37th of that king's reign. In the 1st of EDWARD IV., he was constituted seneschal of the dominion or demesne of Borewell, in the same co. In a charter to RICHARD III., he is mentioned as possessed of Ingoldmells, and the advowson of the church of St. Peter. SLINGSBY.

SLINGSBY, SIR CHARLES, of Scriven Park, co. York; b. 22 Aug. 1824; s. his uncle, as 10th baronet, in Feb. 1835, an officer in the Royal Horse-guards.

Lineage.

GAMEL DE SCRIVEN, surnamed Anceps, had a confirmation of his lands in Scriven from HENRY I., and was the first of his house who enjoyed the feudal honour of capital or chief forester of the forest and parks of Knaresborough. He had issue,

BALDWIN DE SCRIVEN, whose son,

HENRY DE SCRIVEN, m. temp. HENRY III., Emma, mater and heir of Henry de Markington, and by her had issue, Baldwin, who d. s. p.; and

THOMAS DE SCRIVEN, heir to his brother, who m. temp. EDWARD I., Agnes, dau. of John de Wakingham, and heir of her brother, "Alanus de Wakingham, Cheualier," and by her had issue,

HENRY DE SCRIVEN, who m. temp. EDWARD II., Alice, dau. and co-heiress of Richard de Caperon, of Scotton, and by her had issue, two daus., co-heirs, of whom the younger, Agnes, m. 1st, William de Newson; 2ndly, Richard Furneux, from whom she was divorced; and 3rdly, William de Merkesale. The elder,

JOHANNA DE SCRIVEN, carried the manor of Scriven with several others, and also the dignity of capital forester of the forest and parks of Knaresborough, into the house of Slingsby, by intermarriage, in 1357, with William de Slingsby, of Studley, which

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, of Studley, in whose issue the families of Slingsby and Scriven were thus united, was son of John de Slingsby, (great-grandson of William de Selingsbye, of Slingsby, in the North Riding of Yorkshire,) by his wife, Agnes, dau. of William de Stodleigh (Studley), and heir to her brother, William. He (the said William de Slingsby) d. 23rd EDWARD III., 1349-50, having had (by his said wife, Johanna) a dau., the wife of Robert de Winkeley, by whom she had issue, and two sons, Gilbert, who m. Margaret, dau. of Henry Querton, and d. 18th EDWARD III., 1344-5, s. p., and

RICHARD DE SLINGSBY, heir of his brother, Gilbert, capital forester in the right of his mother, who bore Scriven in the first quarter quarterly with Slingsby, as has been the custom of most of the family since, though not invariably. He m. Johanna, dau. and co-heir of William Nesfield, of Scotton; and d. 37th EDWARD III., having by her had issue,

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, who m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas Winkeley; and d. 15th RICHARD II., 1391-3, and was s. by his son

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, who m. Janet, dau. of Randolph Melton, of Melton Hall, co. Derby, and heir of her brother, John, and by her had issue, (beside a dau., Anne, or Agnes, m. to Thomas de Knarisburgh, which Thomas d. in 1460,) John, Robert, and William, of whom the two last d. s. p. The eldest,

JOHN DE SLINGSBY, m. Johanna, dau. of Walter Calverley, of Calverley, co. York; and d. 28th HENRY VI., 1459-60, having had three daus., Marjory, m. to Thomas Coughyll, of Knaresborough; Johanna, Lady-Friores of Nun-Monkton, co. York; Anne, m. to Hugh Tancred, of Boroughbridge; and one son,

JOHN DE SLINGSBY, who m. Marjory, dau. of Simon Pooley, of Badley, co. Suffolk; and d. 16 Sept., 5 HEN. VIII., 1513, having had issue,

THOMAS, of whom presently.

John, }
Marmaduke, } who both d. s. p.
Peter, m. and had issue, one dau., Anne, m. 1st, to William Goldeborough; andly, to Henry Brakenbury.
Simon, m. and had issue, Christopher, Robert, and Peter, (which Peter was father of Anthony Slingsby, created a Baronet of England by letters patent, bearing date 23 Oct. 1628, which date has been usually given for the Nova Scotia creation. Sir Anthony was governor of Zutphen in the Low Countries, and d. in 1630, when the baronetcy became extinct. Kimber's conjecture as to the limitation of this patent to Sir Henry, the 1st Nova Scotia Baronet, is wrong, for no mention is made in Sir Henry's patent of his being above the rank of a gentleman, nor is it to be supposed he would have had a second patent of baronetcy had he been already a baronet,) and four daus., Anne, m. to John Swayle, of Staveley; Marjory, m. to Walter Fulleyn, of Scotton; Isabella, m. to Thomas Lambton, of Harrowgate; and Elizabeth.

The eldest son,

Elizabeth, m. to Christopher Coniers, of Holtby, co. York.

Dorothy, m. to Francis Tancred, of Pannal.

Anne, m. to Christopher Meinell, of Holdenby.

Joanna, m. to Thomas Norton, of Sescroft.

He d. in 1581, was buried in Knaresborough Church, 26 Sept. in that year, and s. by his eldest son,

FRANCIS SLINGSBY, who m. Mary Percy, only sister of Thomas and Henry Percy, successively Earls of Northumberland. This lady d. in 1598, aged 68, and he d. in 1600, being buried by his wife, 4 Aug. in that year, in the Slingsby-chapel, in Knaresborough Church. They both lie under a fair altar-tomb, on which are their effigies recumbent of the size of life. On one of the folds of her dress appear the quarterings of Percy and Lucy. It should be noticed that this Francis is commonly called Sir Francis; even Mr. Pennant has fallen into the mistake; but he is not called even on his tomb, "Miles," and the family evidences abundantly prove that he never was knighted. The mistake has doubtless arisen from the knighthood of his son, Sir Francis. He had issue by his lady four daus., who all d. s. p., and

I. Thomas, who was drowned in the Nidd, while endeavouring to save his servant, in 1581, aged 23.

3 Maria, aged 20 in 1617.

VII. William (Sir), (founder of the Kippax branch, extinct in 1695, by the death of his grandson, Henry, without issue,) aged 55 in 1617, was made commissioner-general in 1595, cibicida honorarius to ANNE, queen-consort, in 1603, and one of the deputy-lieutenants of Middlesex in 1617. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Stephen Board, Knt. of Board Hill, co. Sussex; and d. in Aug. 1624. There is a monument in the Slingsby Chapel, containing, in a niche, a statue of him as large as life. Pennant, in his "Tour from Alston Moor to Harrowgate," says of this figure, after having minutely described it, "the whole is one of the best sculptures I have seen in our churches." The monument was put up during his life-time. He had issue by his wife,

1 Henry, aged 7, in 1627; master of the Mint to King CHARLES II., and, as such, author of the motto on our coin, "Decus et Tutamen."

2 William, christened 9 Dec. 1618, in Knaresborough Church; d. in 1622.

3 Elizabeth, aged 8, in 1627.

VIII. Guilford (Sir), christened 7 Oct. 1655, in Knaresborough Church; comptroller of the navy, temp. JAMES I.; m. Margaret, dau. of William Water, alderman of York, and by her had eight sons and four daus.; of whom, Guilford, aged 7, in 1617, was secretary to the Earl of Strafford; and Dorothy, aged 5, in 1617; m. Jeffrey Nightingale, of Knesworth, co. The eldest surviving son,

SIR HENRY SLINGSBY, was knighted by Queen ELIZABETH, and held sundry offices under the Duchy of Lancaster, of which he was deprived, in 1611, by an unjust decree of Sir Thomas Parry, then chanceller of the Duchy, who, by a second decree, in 1616, deprived him of certain crown leases, and committed him to the Fleet for his (Sir Thomas Parry's) life, which was two years. Sir Henry was high-sheriff of Yorkshire in 1611-12, and being absent from the summer assizes in 1612, on account of his suit in London for restitution of his offices, was fined £200 by the judges of assize, Barons Altham and Bromley, of the Exchequer. He m. Frances, dau. and heir of William Vavasour, of Weston, co. York, and by her (who d. in 1609) had issue,

The king had a short time previously honoured him with a visit to the Red House, where the bed in which his majesty reposed is still preserved. Sir Henry adhered to the king through all his troubles, had all his estates sequestered and sold, and lived a ruined man till 1658, when, for an attempt, unhappily for him a little too early made, to restore his majesty, King CHARLES II., he was beheaded, after a mock trial before a pretended court, on 8 June, on Tower Hill, being the time and place also of the martyrdom of the eminent Dr. Hewett. Sir Henry m. Barbara, dau. of Thomas, 1st Viscount Falconberg, (who d. 31 Dec. 1641,) and by her had issue,

Tineage.

This family deduces its descent from a distinguished house of Normandy, and derives its surname from St. Maur, the place of its abode in that principality. Camden, in his Britannia, says, "Not far from Caldecot are Woundy and Penhow, the seats formerly of the illustrious family of St. Maur, now corruptly called Seymour. For we find that about the year 1240, (in order to wrest Woundy out of the hands of the Welsh,) Gilbert Marshal, Earl of Pembroke, was obliged to assist William St. Maur; from whom was descended Roger of St. Maur, Knt., who m. one of the heiresses of the illustrious John Beauchamp, the noble Baron of Hache," &c.

SIR RICHARD ST. MAUR, Knt., becoming possessed of Woundy, Penhow, &c., co. Monmouth, fixed his residence at Penhow, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ROGER DE ST. MAURO, who d. in the 28th year of King EDWARD I., and was s. by his son,

SIR ROGER DE ST. MAURO, living in the 8th year of King EDWARD II., who m. Joan, dau. and heir of Damarel, of Devonshire, and had two sons.

John, who d. in the 32nd EDWARD III., leaving a son and heir,

ROGER, whose dau. and heir conveyed the inheritances to the family of BOWLAITS, of Penhow, in Monmouthshire, who bore the Seymour arms, and terminated in a dau. and heir, who m. Sir George Somerset, 3rd son of Charles, 1st Earl of Worcester.

ROGER.

The younger son,

SIR ROGER DE ST. MAURO, in the words of Camden, "married one of the heiresses of the illustrious John Beauchamp, the noble Baron of Hache, who was descended from Sibyl, one of the co-heiresses of that most puissant William Marshal, Earl of Pembroke, and from William Ferras, Earl of Derby, Hugh de Vivon, and William Malet, men of eminent worth in their times." This lady survived her husband, and dying in 1393, was s. by (the son of Sir William Seymour, by Margaret, dau. and heir of Simon de Brockburn, of Brockburn, co. Hertford,) her grandson,

ROGER SEYMOUR, who m. Maud, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Esturmi, of Chadham, Wilts, Lord of Wolf Hall, in that county, and was s. by his son,

JOHN SEYMOUR, high-sheriff of co. Southampton in the 9th year of HENRY VI., and of Wilts in the following year. In the 12th of the same reign, when the title of the house of York was set on foot, and all persons of note in the counties were summoned to take the oaths, this John Seymour appeared in Wiltshire, and is the first mentioned in the list after the knights in that county. He m. Isabel, dau. and heir of William Mac-Williams, Esq., co. Gloucester, and was s. by (the son of John Seymour, by Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Coker, Knt., of Lawrence Lydiard, Somersetshire) his grandson,

JOHN SEYMOUR, who m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir George Darrell, of Littlecote, Wilts, by whom he had four sons and four daus. He m. 2ndly, a dau. of Robert Hardon, and had another son, Roger. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN SEYMOUR, Knt., one of the commanders who suppressed the insurrection of Lord Audley, and the Cornish Rebels in 1497; and subsequently, participating in the French wars of King HENRY VIII., was made a knight-banneret by that monarch in 1513. He was afterwards sheriff successively of the counties of Dorset, Somerset, and Wilts. Sir John was in the train of King Henry in his interview with the French monarch, FRANCES I., in 1520; and when the Emperor CHARLES V. came into England in 1522, he was appointed to attend his royal master at Canterbury, for the purpose of receiving the prince. Sir John Seymour m. Margery, 2nd dau. of Sir Henry Wentworth, K.B., of Nettlested, in Suffolk, by whom he had six sons and four daus., of whom lived to maturity,

EDWARD.

Henry (Sir), K.B., from whom claim to be descended the SEYMOURS of Castletown, in the Queen's County, now represented by AARON CROSSLEY SEYMOUR, Esq. of Castletown, (see BURKE'S Landed Gentry), and SIR JOHN HOBART SEYMOUR, Bart.

Thomas, created Lord Seymour of Sudley; who m. Queen CATHERINE (PARR), widow of King HENRY VIII., and was constituted lord-admiral of England. Convicted of high-treason, he was beheaded, 10 March, 1548-9. (See BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

JANE, m. to King HENRY VIII., by whom she was mother of King EDWARD VI.

Elizabeth, m. 1st, to Sir Anthony Oughtred, Knt., and afterwards to Lord Cromwell.

Dorothy, m. to Sir Clement Smith, and afterwards to Thomas Laventhorpe, Esq.

Sir John d. 21 Dec. 1536, in seven months after his daughter's elevation to the throne, and was s. by his eldest son.

SIR EDWARD SEYMOUR, K.B., who had been elevated to the peerage as Viscount Beauchamp, 5 June, 1536, and was created, 18 Oct. 1537, Earl of Hertford. In the 32nd year of HENRY VIII., his lordship was sent over to France to ascertain the limits of the English borders, and upon his return was honoured with the Garter. In two years afterwards, he was appointed lord-great-chamberlain of England for life, and constituted one of the council to the Queen Regent (Catherine), on the king's expedition into France, in 1544. After the decease of King HENRY VIII.

who bequeathed him £200, and appointed him one of his executors, and one of the council to his son, the earl was constituted lord-treasurer of England, and not being previously a baron, he was created, 16 Feb. 1546-7, Baron Seymour of Hache, and the next day advanced to the DUKEDOM OF SOMERSET, with remainder of both honours to his issue by his second wife, and after those to his male descendants by his first wife. On the 17 Feb. in the same year, he had a grant of the office of earl-marshal for life; and on the 12 March following, was appointed, by patent, PROTECTOR and Governor of the King and his realms, with an income of 6000 marks so long as he should exercise that high office. He m. 1st, Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Fillof, of Fillof Hall, co. Essex, and had two sons, of whom

Edward (Sir), was seated at Berry Pomeroy, co. Devon, where he was s. by his son,

EDWARD, who was created a Baronet 29 June, 1611; and dying in two years afterwards, was s. by his son,

SIR EDWARD, 2nd baronet, who was s. by his son,
SIR EDWARD, 3rd baronet, to whom s. his son,
SIR EDWARD, 4th baronet; who m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Alderman Sir William Wale, of London, by whom he had two sons; and 2ndly, Lettice, dau. of Francis Popham, Esq., and had, Francis, created Lord Conway, from whom the house of Hertford derives.

Sir Edward Seymour, who filled the speaker's chair in 1672, d. in 1707, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR EDWARD, 5th baronet. This gentleman m. Letitia, only dau. of Sir Francis Popham, of Littlecot, and dying in 1740, left issue,
SIR EDWARD, 6th baronet, of whom hereafter, as 8th Duke of Somerset.

Francis, of Sherborne, M.P., grandfather of the present HENRY-DANBY SEYMOUR, Esq. of Knoyle House, Wilts, M.P. (See BURKE'S Landed Gentry.)

The Protector Somerset m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir Edward Stanhope, Knt. of Sudbury, co. Suffolk, and heir of her mother, Elizabeth, sister of John Bouchier, Earl of Bath, by whom he had three sons and six daus. The ultimate fate of this nobleman was such as too generally awaited the aspirants to power at the period in which he lived. After reaching the summit of his ambition, and grasping the sceptre of unlimited authority, which he swayed during the first two years of his nephew's minority with all the attributes of royalty and with all its exterior symbols, he was hurled from his invidious pre-eminence by the arm of one of his most confidential counsellors, Dudley, (Earl of Warwick,) Duke of Northumberland, and brought to the block, 22 Jan. 1552, generally lamented by the people. (For a more detailed account of this eminent person, refer to BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.) His grace being attainted, his honours of course became forfeited, but his eldest son by the 2nd marriage, EDWARD SEYMOUR, was created by Queen ELIZABETH, in the first year of her reign, Baron Beauchamp and Earl of Hertford. He m. Lady Catherine Grey, dau. and heir of Henry, Duke of Suffolk, (and granddaughter, maternally, of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, by MARY, Queen-Dowager of France, and sister of King HENRY VIII.) This lady, who was sister of the amiable and unfortunate Lady Jane Grey, was herself not less unhappy. Upon her pregnancy being discovered, in 1563, she was committed prisoner to the Tower, as well as the earl her husband, where he was detained for nine years, and fined by the Star-chamber £15,000 for having vitiated a maid of the royal blood. The unhappy countess died in confinement in 1567, after giving birth to two sons, viz.,

I. EDWARD, who d. young.

II. Edward, Lord Beauchamp, who, in the 6th of JAMES I., (notwithstanding the Duke of Somerset's descendants by his 1st wife had lodged a petition against the claims of those of the 2nd to the family honours,) obtained letters-patent that himself and the heirs male of his body, immediately after the death of his father, should be barons of parliament, and have place and voice therein; as also other letters-patent, the same year, for the enjoyment of the title of Earl of Hertford. He m. Honora, dau. of Sir Richard Rogers, Knt. of Brianston, co. Dorset; and d. before his father. He had issue.

EDWARD (Sir), K.B., who m. Anne, dau. of Richard Sackville, Earl of Dorset; and d. in 1618, before his father and grandfather, without surviving issue,
WILLIAM (Sir), who s. his grandfather.

FRANCIS (Sir), who was created BARON SEYMOUR of 519

Troubridge, 19 Feb. 1641. This nobleman m. 1st, Frances, dau. and co-heir of Sir Gilbert Prinne, Knt. of Allington, co. Wilts, by whom he had,

CHARLES, his successor.

FRANCIS, m. to Sir William Ducie, Knt. of Tortworth, Gloucestershire.

His lordship m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Robert Lee, of Billesley, but had no other issue. He d. 12 July, 1664, and was s. by his son,

CHARLES, 2nd Lord Troubridge; who m. 1st, Mary, dau. and sole heir of Thomas Smith, Esq. of Soley, co. Wilts, and had a son and two daus., of whom Frances, the younger dau., m. Sir George Hungerford, Knt. of Cadengham, Wilts. His lordship m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Allington, (who was m. 2ndly, to Sir John Ernle, Knt. of Whetham, chancellor of the Exchequer, temp. CHARLES II. and JAMES II.,) and had surviving issue,

FRANCIS, } successively Dukes of Somerset.

CHARLES, }
Honora, m. to Sir Charles Gerard, Bart.

The validity of the marriage (between the Earl and Lady Catherine Grey) was, however, subsequently tried and established at common law. His lordship m. two other wives, namely, Frances, dau. of William, Lord Howard of Effingham; and Frances, dau. of Thomas, Viscount Howard of Bindon, and widow of Henry Parnell, Esq. of London; but had no other issue. He lived to an advanced age, and dying in 1821, was s. by his grandson,

SIR WILLIAM SEYMOUR, as Earl of Hertford and Baron Beauchamp; who was created, 3 June, 1640, Marquess of Hertford. During the reign of JAMES I., this nobleman attempted, without having gained the consent of that monarch, to marry Lady Arabella Stuart, first-cousin to the king, and was, in consequence, obliged to fly the kingdom, while the unfortunate lady was committed prisoner to the Tower, where she closed her unhappy life, 27 Sept. 1615. His lordship subsequently returning, and taking a most distinguished and gallant part in favour of royalty during the civil wars, was restored to the Barony of Seymour of Hache and DUKEDOM OF SOMERSET, by the reversal of the attainder of his eminent ancestor, 12 Sept. 1660. He m. 2ndly, (if his connexion with Lady Arabella be deemed a marriage,) Lady Frances Devereux, eldest dau. of the accomplished and ill-fated Earl of Essex, by whom he had (with three daus.,)

HENRY, Lord Beauchamp, who predeceased the duke, leaving,

WILLIAM, 3rd duke.

Elizabeth, m. to Thomas Bruce, Earl of Aylesbury.

JOHN, who s. as 4th duke.

The duke d. within little more than a month after his restoration to the honours of his great-grandfather, 24 Oct. 1660, and was s. by his grandson,

WILLIAM, 3rd duke; at whose decease, unm., in 1671, the estates of Tottenham Park and Savernake Forest, co. Wilts, with other considerable landed property, devolved upon his sister, the Countess of Aylesbury; while the peerage reverted to his uncle,

LORD JOHN SEYMOUR, as 4th duke, who m. Sarah, dau. and heir of Sir Edward Alston, Knt., M.D., president of the College of Physicians, and widow of John Grimstone, Esq., but d. without issue in 1675, when the MARQUISATE OF HERTFORD expired, but the other honours devolved upon his cousin,

FRANCIS SEYMOUR, 3rd Baron Seymour of Troubridge, as 5th duke, (refer to EDWARD, Lord Beauchamp, son of Edward, 1st Earl of Hertford.) This nobleman, during his travels in Italy, having, in company with some French gentlemen, visited the church of the Augustinians, at Lerice, and there offered rudeness to ladies of the family of Botti, of that place, was shot to death by Horatio Botti, the husband of one of those ladies, at the door of his inn, in April, 1678. His grace dying unm., the dukedom &c. devolved upon his brother,

CHARLES, 6th duke, K.G., commonly called "the proud Duke of Somerset." His grace m. 1st, Lady Elizabeth Percy, only dau. of Jocelyn, Earl of Northumberland, and sole heiress of the Percys, (her ladyship had been m. twice previously: 1st, to Lord Ogle; and 2ndly, to Thomas Thynne, Esq., but had no issue,) by whom he had issue, ALGERNON, his successor.

Percy, M.P. for Cockerinmouth; d. unm. in 1731.

Charles, d. unm. in 1710.

Elizabeth, m. to Henry, Earl of Thomond, and d. s. p.

Catherine, m. to Sir William Wyndham, Bart. of Orchard Wyndham; and dying in 1713, left CHARLES, who s. his uncle, the Duke of Somerset, in the Earldom of Egremont &c.
 Thomas, who m. Isabel, dau. of Edward Onley, Esq. of Catesby.

Anne, m. to Peregrine, 3rd Duke of Leeds, and d. in 1722.

The duke m. 2ndly, Lady Charlotte Finch, dau. of Daniel, Earl of Winchilsea, by whom he left, Frances, m. to John, Marquess of Granby.

 Charlotte, m. to Hensage, Earl of Aylesford.

This nobleman, so well known as the proud Duke of Somerset, is thus described by Grainger: "His grace was of a middle stature, finely formed, and of dark complexion; he loved music and poetry; had judgment; but an hesitation in speech made him appear wanting in expression. He was noble in sentiments, magnificent in living, a generous enemy, and a firm friend. His foible was an unbounded pride, which carried him to very indecent lengths. The first peer of the realm being a Roman catholic, he took precedence on all great occasions. He had attended the funerals of CHARLES II., QUEEN MARY, and WILLIAM III., and at the coronation of JAMES II., WILLIAM and MARY, ANNE, GEORGE I., and GEORGE II. He seemed little less in his conduct than if vested with regal honours. His servants obeyed by signs. The country roads were cleared that he might pass without obstruction or observation. He had two wives; the 1st was Elizabeth, sole dau. and heir of Jocelyn, the virgin widow of Henry Cavendish, Earl of Ogle, the relict of Thomas Thynne, Esq., who was shot in his coach by Count Coningamark, in hopes of obtaining the heiress of the Percys. His 2nd duchess was Charlotte, 2nd dau. of Daniel, Earl of Winchilsea and Nottingham. He made a vast distinction between a Percy and a Finch. The duchess once familiarly tapped him on the shoulder with her fan; he turned round, and with an indignant, sour countenance, said, 'My first duchess was a Percy, and she never took such a liberty.' His children obeyed his mandates with profound respect; the two youngest duns had used to stand alternately whilst he slept of an afternoon. Lady Charlotte, being tired, sat down; the duke waked, and, displeased, declared he would make her remember her want of decorum. By his will he left her £20,000 less than her sister. The pleasant Sir James Delaval laid a wager of £1000 that he would make the duke give him precedence; but that was judged impossible, for his grace was all eyes and ears upon such occasions. Delaval, however, having one day obtained information of the precise time when the duke was to pass a narrow part of the road on his way to town, stationed himself there in a coach emblazoned for the day with the arms, and surrounded by many servants in the livery of the head of the house of Howard, who called out when Somerset appeared, 'The Duke of Norfolk.' The former, fearful of committing a breach of etiquette, hurried his postillion under a hedge, where he was no sooner safely fixed, when Delaval passed, who, leaning out of the carriage, bowed with a familiar air, and wished his grace a good morning. He indignantly exclaimed, 'Is it you, Sir James? I thought it had been the Duke of Norfolk.' The wager thus fairly won, was paid, and the town made merry with the stratagem to gain it." His grace d. in 1748, at the advanced age of 87, having filled high offices in the courts of CHARLES II., WILLIAM III., and Queen ANNE, and was s. by his only surviving son,

ALGERNON, 7th duke; who had been summoned to parliament, at the decease of his mother, as Baron Percy. His grace was created *Baron Warkworth, of Warkworth Castle, co. Northumberland, and Earl of Northumberland, 2 Oct. 1749, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his son-in-law, Sir Hugh Smithson, and his heirs male by Lady Elizabeth Seymour; and on the day following, 18 Oct., Baron Cocker-mouth, of Cocker-mouth Castle, and Earl of Egremont, both in the co. Cumberland, with remainder to his nephew, Sir Charles Wyndham, Bart., (uncle and predecessor of Charles, Earl of Egremont, see that dignity.) His grace m. Frances, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Henry Thynne, Esq., by whom he had issue,*

GEORGE, who d. in his 19th year, in 1744.
 Elizabeth, who m. Sir Hugh Smithson, Bart. of Stanwick, co. York, (see DUKE OF NORTHUMBRELAND.)

The duke d. in 1750, when the Earldom of Hertford, the

Viscounty of Beauchamp and the Barony of Seymour of Troubridge expired; the honours obtained by his grace passed according to their respective limitations; and the Dukedom of Somerset, with the barony of Seymour of Hache, the male line of Edward, 1st duke, by his 2nd wife, to whom the patent was in the first instance limited, having failed, reverted to

SIR EDWARD SEYMOUR, Bart., as 8th duke, (refer to descendants of Sir Edward Seymour, son of Edward, 1st duke, by his first wife.) This nobleman claimed the dukedom upon the demise of his kinsman; and the attorney-general, Sir Dudley Rider, reporting in his favour to the crown, he was summoned to parliament, 23 Nov. 1750, and took his seat accordingly. His grace m. in 1716, Mary, only dau. and heir of Daniel Webb, Esq. of Monckton-Farley, co. Wilts, and heir of her uncle, Edward Somner, Esq. of Seend, in the same co., by whom he had,

His lordship s. as 17th baron, on the death of his brother, 3 June, 1842.

Lineage.

The remotest ancestor of this family upon record is, SIR GUALTER DE SOMERVILLE, one of the companions of the Norman Conqueror, who became Lord of Whichnour, co. Stafford, and his descendants possessed considerable property, about the close of the 12th century, in the co. Lanark, and in other parts of Scotland; of whom

WILLIAM DE SOMERVILLE was one of the barons appointed at the marriage of ALEXANDER II. (whose reign commenced in 1214) to exercise in a tournament at the castle of Roxburgh. This William's great-grandson,

SIR WALTER DE SOMERVILLE, m. Giles, dau. and heiress of Sir John Herring, with whom he got the lands of Gilmerton Drum and Goodtrees. He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR THOMAS DE SOMERVILLE, of Linton and Carnwath, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Douglas, of London, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM SOMERVILLE, one of the hostages for the ransom of King DAVID II., in 1357; who d. in 1403, and was s. by his elder son,

THOMAS DE SOMERVILLE, (one of the ambassadors deputed, in 1423, to the court of London, to treat for the ransom of King JAMES I.) who was created, 15 Dec. 1430, LORD SOMERVILLE. His lordship m. Janet, dau. of Sir Alexander Stewart, of Dernley, with whom he acquired the Barony of Cambusnethan; and dying in 1445, was s. by his only son,

WILLIAM, 2nd baron; who m. Janet, dau. of Sir John Mowat, of Stanhouse; and dying in 1456, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 3rd lord; who d. in 1491-2, and was s. by his grandson,

JOHN, 4th lord, (son of William, master of Somerville, by Margery, sister of Hugh, 1st Earl of Eglington;) at whose decease s. p. the dignity devolved upon his brother,

HUGH, 5th lord; who m. Janet, dau. of William Maitland, of Leithington; and dying in 1549, was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 6th lord. This nobleman was a strenuous opposer of the Reformation, saying, with the Earl of Atholl and Lord Bothwick, "that he would believe as his fathers had done before him." His lordship joined Queen MARY, at Hamilton, in May, 1568, with three hundred horse, at whose head he fought at the battle of Langside, and was severely wounded. He m. Agnes, dau. of Sir James Hamilton, of Finnart; and dying in 1569, was s. by his elder son,

HUGH, 7th lord; who m. Eleanor, dau. of George, Lord Seton; and dying in 1597, was s. by his son,

GILBERT, 8th lord. This nobleman entertained King JAMES VI. most sumptuously at his castle of Cowthaly, which the monarch jocularly called Cow-daily, from seeing a cow and ten sheep killed daily. His lordship, by a course of similar extravagance, ran entirely through his estates. He m. Margaret, dau. of John Somerville, of Cambusnethan, and had three surviving daus.,

Mary, m. 1st, to James, Lord Torphichen; and 2ndly, to Sir William Douglas, of Pumphrestoun.

Margaret, m. to Sir Humphrey Colquhoun, of Balvie. A dau., m. to Stewart, of Minto.

His lordship d. in 1618; and as he left no male issue, the title devolved upon his brother,

THE HON. HUGH SOMERVILLE, of Drum, as 9th lord, but he never assumed the honour. He m. Margaret, dau. of Gavin Hamilton, of Raploch; and dying in 1640, was s. by his elder son,

JAMES SOMERVILLE, (10th lord, but he likewise declined assuming the dignity,) who m. Lillias, dau. of Sir James Bannatyne, of Newhall, a lord of Session; and dying in 1677, was s. by his only son,

The paternal line of the present House of Stafford is stated to have been originally Danish, and the name "Jernegan." Weaver, in his work on "Ancient Funeral Monuments," has these observations:—This name hath been of exemplarie note before the Conquest, if you will believe thus much that followeth, taken out of the pedigree of the Jerninghams by a judicious gentleman, anno MXXX., CANUTE, King of Denmark and of England, after his return from Rome, brought divers captains and souldiers from Denmark, whereof the greatest part were christened here in England, and began to settle themselves here: of whom Jernegan, or Jernengham, and Jernihingho, now Jennings, were of the most esteem with CANUTE, who gave unto the said Jerningham certaine manors in Norfolk; and to Jennings certain manors lying upon the sea-side, near Harwich; in regard of their former services done to his father, SWENUS, King of Denmark."

Bloomfield's History of Norfolk commences the pedigree of the Jerninghams with

JERNEGAN, or JERNINGHAM, who was settled at Horham-Jernegan, co. Suffolk, in the reigns of King STEPHEN and King HENRY II.; and dying in 1182, was s. by his son,

SIR HUBERT FITZGERNEGAN, Knt. of Horham-Jernegan, who d. in 1208, and was s. by his son,

SIR HUBERT JERNEGAN, Knt., who had been involved in the insurrection of the barons against King JOHN, but on the accession of HENRY III., in 1216, he submitted, and obtained his pardon. He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR WILLIAM JERNEGAN, who was s. by his brother,

SIR HUGH JERNEGAN. This gentleman having, in 1243, made an exchange with his mother, transferred to that lady the messuage of Horham-Jernegan, and removed the residence of his own family to Stonham-Jernegan. He was s. by his son,

SIR WALTER JERNEGAN, of Stonham-Jernegan, who m. Isabella, dau. of Sir Peter Fitzosbert, of Somerley Town, in Suffolk, and sister and co-heiress of her brother, Sir Roger, (who was summoned with about sixty other persons, 8th June, 1294, "22 EDWARD I." to attend the king, wherever he might be, to advise on the affairs of the realm; but it is doubtful whether that summons can be deemed a regular writ of summons to parliament constituting a barony.) This lady was the widow of Sir Henry de Walpole, of Walpole and Houghton, co. Norfolk. Sir Walter d. about the 31st year of EDWARD I., and was s. by his son,

SIR PETER JERNEGAN, of Somerley Town, who, at the decease of his mother, succeeded as co-heir to her portion of the extensive possessions of the Fitzosbert family. From this Sir Peter we pass over a long line of gallant and distinguished personages to his descendant,

SIR HENRY JERNINGHAM, of Huntingfield and Wingfield, in Suffolk, and of Costesey, in Norfolk, who was the first among the Suffolk and Norfolk knights that declared openly for Queen MARY on the demise of EDWARD VI., in the year 1555; for which important service he was constituted by her majesty, immediately after her accession, vice-chamberlain, captain of the guard, master of the horse and of the household, and one of the privy council. Sir Henry also obtained grants from the queen of several large manors in Norfolk, Suffolk, Herefordshire, and Gloucestershire, particularly those of Costesey, in Norfolk, and Wingfield Castle, in Suffolk. The former he made the chief place of residence of the family, having rebuilt the mansion, and it has so continued down to the present time. Sir Henry entertained Queen ELIZABETH there in her progress to Norfolk; but his adhesion to the ancient faith seems to have been a bar to any favour at court during that queen's reign. He m. Frances, dau. of Sir George Baynham, of Clowerwall, co. Gloucester, and heiress to her maternal uncle, Sir Anthony Kingston; and dying in 1573, was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY JERNINGHAM, Esq. of Costesey Hall, who m. 1st. Eleanor, dau. of William, Lord Dacre of Gillesland, and granddau., maternally, of George, 4th Earl of Shrewsbury, by whom he had five sons and a dau. He m. 2ndly, Frances, dau. and co-heiress of his cousin, Sir John Jernegan, of Somerley Town, and widow of Sir Thomas Bedingfeld, by whom he had one son and a dau. He d. in 1619, and was s. by his eldest son,

I. HENRY JERNINGHAM, Esq. of Costesey, who was created a Baronet, 16 Oct. 1621. Sir Henry m. Eleanor, daughters of Thomas Throckmorton, Esq. of Throckmorton, co. Worcester,* and had issue,

JOHN, who m. in 1612, Mary, dau. of Sir Francis Moore, Bart. of Fawley, Berks; and dying in the lifetime of his father, left,

HENRY, successor to his grandfather.
Frances, m. to Philip Crambleton, Esq.

Dorothy, m. to Thomas Pegge, Esq.
William, m. Mary, eldest dau. of Francis Barnard, Esq., and relict of Hugh Lee, Esq., and of John Yonge, Esq.
Thomas (Sir), knighted for his gallantry at the Isle of Rhé, in 1627.

Catherine, m. in 1624, to Francis Saunders, Esq.

This gentleman suffered severely during the civil wars. In the Usurpation, the park at Costessey was let down, and the deer destroyed, the mansion, with the domain, let to a farmer, and a considerable part of the buildings was suffered to fall into decay. Sir Henry d. in 1646, and was s. by his grandson,

II. SIR HENRY, who m. Mary, dau. of Benedict Hall, Esq. of High Meadow, co. Gloucester; and dying in 1680, was s. by his only surviving son,

III. SIR FRANCIS, who m. Anne, dau. of Sir George Blount, Bart. of Sodington, co. Worcester, by whom he had seven sons and two daughters; and dying in 1730, was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR JOHN, b. in 1678; m. in 1704, Margaret, dau. of Sir Henry Bedingfeld; but dying s. p., 14 June, 1737, was s. by his brother,

V. SIR GEORGE, b. in 1680. This gentleman m. in 1738, Mary, eldest dau. and eventual heiress of Francis Plowden, Esq., by Mary, dau. of the Hon. John Stafford-Howard, younger son of the unfortunate Sir William Howard, Viscount Stafford, (and sister and heiress of John-Paul Stafford-Howard, 4th and last Earl of Stafford, who d. in 1762, when the earldom created in 1688 expired,) by whom he had surviving issue,

WILLIAM, his successor.
Edward, a man of letters and distinguished in literature.
Charles, a general-officer in the French service, and knight of Malta and St. Louis; d. 25 Nov. 1814.

Sir George d. 21 Jan. 1774, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

VI. SIR WILLIAM, b. 7 March, 1736; m. in 1767, the Hon. Frances Dillon, eldest dau. of Henry, 11th Viscount Dillon, and left by that lady (who d. in 1825), at his decease, 14 Aug. 1809,

GEORGE WILLIAM, his successor, and late Baron Stafford, which dignity he inherited through his great-grandmother, Mary Howard, wife of Francis Plowden, Esq., granddau. of the so unjustly attainted Viscount Stafford, and mother of Mary, wife of Sir George Jennings, the 5th baronet. This barony was created by patent, dated 12 Sept. 1640, (see note) and conferred upon Mary Stafford, (jointly with her husband, Sir William Howard, K.B.,) sister and sole heiress of Henry Stafford, 13th Baron Stafford; a barony created in 1299, but forfeited by Edward de Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, lord high constable and K.G., who was beheaded in 1521. Henry Stafford, the duke's son and heir, was restored in blood by an act of parliament passed in the 1st year of EDWARD VI., whereby it was enacted, "That the said Henry, Lord Stafford, and the heirs male of his body, may be taken and reputed as Lord Stafford, and that the said Henry be restored in blood." His lordship was summoned to parliament from 1548 to 1558. He m. Ursula, dau. of Sir Richard Pole, K.G., by Margaret Plantagenet, Countess of Salisbury, niece of EDWARD IV., and was great-grandfather of the Mary Stafford who m. Sir William Howard, Viscount Stafford. STAMFORD

STAMFORD, EARL OF, (George - Harry Grey,) Earl of Warrington; Baron Grey, of Groby; and Baron Delamere, of Dunham-Massey, co. Chester; b. 7 Jan. 1827; s. his grandfather in 1845.

Lineage.

This is one of the most ancient and illustrious families in the peerage. It deduces an uninterrupted line from the Conquest, and has allied with the Plantagenets and Tudors.

HENRY DE GREY obtained from King RICHARD I. the manor of Turroo, in Essex, and had the same confirmed by King JOHN, with the privilege of hunting the fox and hare in any lands belonging to the crown except the king's own demesnes. In the reign of HENRY III., he had a grant of the manor of Grimston, co. Nottingham, from Robert Bardolph, whose niece and co-heiress, Isolda, he married, and eventually shared in the inheritance of all the said Robert's lands. From his 2nd son by this lady,

JOHN DE GREY, descended the lords Grey de Ruthin, (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage), the extinct Earls and Dukes of Kent, the extinct Dukes of Suffolk, the Earls of Wilton, and the house of which we are now treating. The 2nd son of Reginald, Lord Grey de Ruthyn,

SIR EDWARD DE GREY, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Henry, son and heir-apparent of William, Lord Ferrars, of Groby, and in consequence assumed that title. His lordship d. in the 36th year of HENRY VI., and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN GREY, who m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Richard Widvile, Earl of Rivers, by whom he had two sons. Sir John fell at the battle of St. Albans fighting under the banner of HENRY VI., in the 39th year of that prince's reign, and his widow became subsequently queen-consort of EDWARD IV. Sir John Grey's eldest son and heir,

SIR THOMAS GREY, through the influence of his mother, was created in the 11th year of EDWARD IV., Earl of Huntingdon, and in four years afterwards advanced to the MARQUISATE OF DORSET. After King EDWARD's death, however, his lordship was attainted of high-treason, but restored upon the elevation of HENRY VII. to the throne. He d. 10 April, 1501, and was s. by his eldest surviving son, (by his 2nd wife, Cicely, dau. and heiress of William Bonville, Lord Bonville and Harrington.)

THOMAS, 2nd Marquess of Dorset, K.G. This nobleman carried the sword of state at the celebrated meeting between HENRY VIII. and FRANCIS I. at Ardres, in 1520. His lordship d. 10 Oct. 1530, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, 3rd marquess; who m. for his 2nd wife, Frances, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, by Mary, Queen-Dowager of France, and sister of King HENRY VIII., and was in consequence advanced, 11 Oct. 1551, to the DUKEDOM OF SUFFOLK and installed a knight of the Garter. The issue of this marriage were three daus.; the eldest, the amiable and unfortunate Lady Jane Grey, having, through the ambition of her father, and father-in-law, for a few days usurped the empty trappings of royalty, was attainted, and, subsequently, in consequence of her father's second rebellion, brought, with her husband, Lord Gullford Dudley, to the block, 12 Feb. 1554-5. Lady Catherine Grey, the 2nd dau., marrying Edward Seymour, Earl of Hertford, without the permission of Queen ELIZABETH, was committed to the Tower by her majesty, where she died, 26 Jan. 1567; while the 3rd, Lady Mary Grey, m. Martin Keys, Esq. of the co. Kent, serjeant-porter to Queen ELIZABETH, and d. without issue in 1578. The unhappy father, having rebelled again after receiving the Queen's pardon, suffered soon after his eldest dau., 23 Feb. 1554-5, and his brother, Thomas, 27 April, following. From that period the honours of the family were eclipsed until revived by King JAMES I., who created

SIR HENRY GREY, Knt., (son of Lord John Grey, of Pirgo, co. Essex, and only nephew of the attained duke,) 21 July, 1603, Lord Grey of Groby, co. Leicester. His lordship m. Anne, dau. of William, Lord Windsor, of Bradenham; and dying in 1614, was s. by his grandson,

(The latter was one of the judges upon the trial of the unfortunate CHARLES, and his signature appears to the warrant for execution.) The earl d. in 1673, and was s. by his grandson, Sir Francis s. his father, as 7th baronet, Sir Thomas Stapleton, Lord Le Despencer, 3 Oct. 1831.

Lineage.

The family of STAPLETON, which derived its surname from a town in the county of York, is no less famous for the gallant warriors it produced in different eras, than by the dignities and honours conferred upon them by the sovereigns under whose rule they had the good fortune to flourish. Amongst even the knights of the Garter, upon the institution of that noble order, we find a person of the name and family.

They subsequently transplanted themselves into Ireland, and enjoyed a considerable estate in Tipperary until the reign of CHARLES I., when John Edmund Stapleton, Esq. of Thoriesbeg, being completely ruined by his adhesion to the royal cause, the family sought new fortune in the different foreign lands of Europe. Some went into Spain, where they attained high military rank; others into France, and there also, adopting the soldier's profession, became eminent in arms. Of the latter, a branch acquired a large estate at Dervaliers, near Nantes, in Bretagne, and bore the title of Counts of Tréves.

SIR JOHN STAPLETON, Knt., settled in Ireland, temp. HENRY II., and from him we pass to his lineal descendant, BARCLAY-STEUART, SIR HENRY, of Coltness, and of Goodtrees, both in the county of Lanark; s. his cousin in 1839.

Lineage.

JAMES STEUART, of Allanton, the 5th of that designation, d. in 1607, leaving two sons, SIR WALTER, his successor, and

JAMES STEUART, a posthumous child, b. in 1608. This gentleman was bred to the business of a merchant and banker at Edinburgh, and was eminently successful, through the interest of his uncle, Lord Carmichael, who was lord-treasurer-depute of Scotland. He m. in 1630 Anne, dau. of Henry Hope, and niece of Sir Thomas Hope, of Craighall, co. Fife, lord-advocate, by whom he had six sons and one dau. Mr. Steuart was elected to parliament for the city of Edinburgh in 1639, and soon afterwards received the honour of knighthood. Sir James purchased, about the year 1644, the lands of Westburn, or Kirkfield, and subsequently the Barony of Coltness. In 1649, he was elected lord provost of Edinburgh, and a second time in 1659; but he was dismissed at the Restoration as a covenantor, being at the same time committed to Edinburgh Castle, and fined £500; but he obtained his release and a remission of the penalty through the influence of Sir Archibald Primrose, lord-register. He was again, however, sent to prison, where he remained for some years, and was liberated eventually through the same interest. Sir James lost his first lady in 1646, and m. 2ndly, in 1648, Marion, widow of Sir John Elliot, and only dau. of David McCulloch, Esq. of Goodtrees, co. Mid-Lothian, by whom he acquired that estate, and had four daus. He d. 31 March, 1681, and was s. at Coltness by his eldest son, Sir Thomas Steuart, while the estates of Goodtrees passed by bequest to his 4th son.

I. JAMES STEUART, who became, in consequence, of GOODTREES. This gentleman was bred an advocate, and very early distinguished himself by his profound knowledge of the Roman, Scotch, and English laws. He m. 1st, Agnes, dau. of the Rev. Henry Trail, of Blebo, by whom he had one son and three daus.; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Alexander Air, Esq., by whom he had two sons and four daus. Mr. Steuart having taken an active part in bringing about the Revolution, was appointed lord-advocate of Scotland in 1692, and created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1695. Sir James attained the reputation of being one of the most able, ingenious, and acute lawyers of his time; and his "Answer to Dirlton's Doubts" fully establishes that character. He purchased from his nephew, Sir David Steuart, in 1712, the estate of Coltness; and dying in 1718, was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR JAMES, of Goodtrees and Coltness, b. in 1681; m. in 1705, Anne, dau. of Sir Hugh Dalrymple, of North Berwick, lord-president of the Court of Session, by whom he had one surviving son and several daus. Sir James, who was a distinguished advocate, was appointed, in 1709, solicitor-general for Scotland; and after the union, in 1718, he was returned to parliament by the co. of Mid-Lothian. He d. in 1727, and was s. by his only son,

III. SIR JAMES, who m. in 1743, Frances, eldest dau. of David, Earl of Wemyss, by whom he had an only surviving child, JAMES, the late baronet. Sir James was an advocate, and, like his grandfather, early distinguished himself by the most splendid abilities and a knowledge of his profession which probably would have raised him to the highest offices of the state, had he not unfortunately been concerned, although not in a public manner, in the rising of 1745. Informations were in consequence lodged against him, and he retired with his family into France. During his residence abroad, he wrote, in French, a defence of Sir Isaac Newton's chronology, and also composed his great and well-known work, "The Political Economy." In 1773, by the death of Sir Archibald Steuart Denham, the baronetcy of Coltness, which had been conferred, in 1698, upon Sir Thomas Steuart, the 1st of Coltness, was united in the person of Sir James with that of Goodtrees. He d. in 1780, and was s. by his son,

IV. SIR JAMES, b. in 1744, a general in the army and col. of the 2nd regiment of dragoons, who represented the co. of Lanark in three successive parliaments. He m. Alicia, (who d. in 1840,) dau. of William Blacker, Esq. of Carrick, co. of Armagh, but d. s. p. in 1839, and was s. by his cousin, the present baronet.

Entrage.

This ancient family, of the co. of Lanark, is the chief of one of the most extensive branches of the house of Bonkhill, lineally descended from SIR ROBERT STEUART, of Daldowie, 6th son of Sir John Steuart, of Bonkle, or Bonkhill, son to Alexander, 6th lord-high-steward of Scotland, great-grandfather of King ROBERT II., the 1st prince of the Steuart line. About the year 1290, Sir John bestowed the estate of Daldowie, on the river Clyde, part of his extensive possessions in the co. of Lanark and the co. of Renfrew, in patrimony on his son, Sir Robert. He was killed at the battle of Falkirk in 1298; and SIR ROBERT, who fought at Bannockburn with the lord-high-steward, under ROBERT BRUCE, in the following year, together with three of his brothers, Sir Allan, Sir Walter, and Sir Hugh, accompanied Edward Bruce in the expedition to Ireland, in 1315, and participated in the battle of Dundalk, in 1318, when that gallant and enterprising prince terminated his career. From Sir Robert descended,

JAMES STEUART, (10th Baron of Allanton, and 18th in descent from the lord-high-steward of Scotland,) b. in 1715; who m. in 1754, his cousin, Margaret, dau. of Henry Steuart Barclay, Esq. of Collernie, co. Fife, younger brother to Sir James-Steuart, Bart. of Goodtrees, M.P. for Mid-Lothian in the 1st parliament after the Union, afterwards solicitor-general in the reign of GEORGE II., and had a son and heir,

SIR HENRY STEUART, LL.D., F.R.S., and A.S.E., (14th in descent from the lord-high-steward of Scotland,) b. 20 Oct. 1759; who was created a Baronet, with remainder to his son-in-law, Reginald Macdonald, Esq. of Staffa. Sir Henry is well known to have been an elegant scholar and an accomplished gentleman, and his skill and success as an arboriculturist rendered him famous as the founder of the art of transplanting large trees. Sir Henry m. in 1787, Lillias, dau. of Hugh Seton, Esq. of Touch, co. Stirling, and left at his decease in 1836, an only dau. and heir,

ELIZABETH-MARGARET, b. 31 Oct. 1790, who m. in Jan. 1812, Reginald Macdonald, Esq. of Staffa, elder brother of LIEUT.-COL. ROBERT MACDONALD, C.B., of Inchkenneth, co. Argyll, and by him (who s. as 2nd baronet at the decease of his father-in-law, and d. in 1838) she has,

1. HENRY-JAMES, present baronet.

II. ARCHIBALD.

III. Collin-Reginald.

IV. Isabella.

V. Lillias-Margaret.

The heiress of Steuart added, in 1835, the surname of SETON to her own, upon succeeding, as sole heiress in right of her mother, Lillias, to the estate of Touch Seton, co. Stirling, the property of her maternal uncle, the HON. ARCHIBALD SETON, late Member of the Supreme Council, Bengal, and governor of Prince of Wales's Island. She at the same time succeeded to the office of heritable armour-bearer to the queen, and squire of the royal body, which high hereditary office she now holds, and which has been for time immemorial in the family of Seton of Touch, for which various charters are extant, at and previous to 1488. The eldest son of the heiress of Steuart is the present

SIR HENRY-JAMES SETON-STEUART, Bart.

Seton of Touch.

The SETONS are a very ancient race, and trace their origin to Dougal Seton, who lived in the reign of ALEXANDER I. of Scotland, son of MALCOLM KENMORE, 1109. This family were distinguished in Scottish history, and performed many loyal and gallant achievements during the wars with England and the various civil conflicts in Scotland. Dougal's descendant, William, was created Baron Seton de Gordon, in the reign of King ROBERT III.; from whom descended Alexander, who was created, in 1449, Marquess of Huntly. He m. 1st, Giles Hay, heiress of Enzie, by whom he had one son, ALEXANDER; and 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Chancellor Crichton, by whom he had George, 2nd Earl of Huntly, from whom descended the Dukes of Gordon, Earls of Aboyne, Sutherland, &c. &c. From the only son of his 1st marriage, ALEXANDER, the Setons of Touch lineally descend; and Archibald, the late proprietor, was the 9th in descent from Alexander, the 1st Earl of Huntly. He was s. by his sister, Barbara, who dying without children, the property devolved upon the present proprietor, Lady Seton Steuart, his niece.

The Stewons of Touch lay claim to the title of BARON SETON DE GORDON in right of their ancestor, Alexander.

Having broken down the sea walls of the Severn, and guarded the passes by land, Botolph entered Glastonbury when that victorious Norman had made his appearance in the west; and, thus protected, compelled WILLIAM to grant whatsoever he demanded. STRACHAN.

STRACHAN, SIR JOHN, Bart. of Thornton. co. Kincardine, s. his father, 9 June, 1844; m. Mary-Anne, dau. of Isaac Elton, Esq. of Whitestaunton House, co. Somerset.

Lineage.

This family is of great antiquity; so far back as the 12th century we find Walderus de Strachane, or Strathethyne "cum consensu Rudolphi de Strachane heredibus sui," conveying lands to the canons of St. Andrew's, circler 1160, in the reign of King MALCOLM IV., and John, the son of Rudolphus "filius ejus," makes over to the abbot and convent of Dunfermline the lands of Belheldie, "pro salute sue," the deed being confirmed by ALEXANDER III. in 1278. About the year 1316, the Barony of Strachan, Fetteresso, and Dalspersey, &c. &c., merged by marriage into the family of Keith, but the line of Strachan of Thornton was carried on by the branch of Strachan of Monboddie, descended lineally therefrom and coeval therewith; Sir James Strachan of Monboddie, in the reign of King DAVID BRUCE, ("Jacobus de Strathyne," as he is called in the charters,) having obtained the lands and Barony of Thornton, Kincardineshire, by the marriage of Agneta de Thornton. Of this alliance there were two sons: Duhan, the eldest, had the lands of Monboddie. On the second son, Sir John Strachan, to whom he gave Thornton, the honour of knighthood was conferred by King ROBERT II. in 1375, and to him the previous charters were ratified and confirmed by the same monarch in 1376. Sir James Strachan, of Monboddie, the representative of the family of Monboddie, became the representative of the family of Thornton, whose lineal descent from that family was thereafter further proved and confirmed by deed under the Great Seal in 1663, Sir William Strachan, of Monboddie, being particularly designed as lineally descended from the family of Thornton, as follows, viz., "Ex antiquissima Strachanorum Thorntounii, Baronum in vice nostro Kincardiensi, familia rectralineâ oriundum opibus, honore potentie et avite rerum gestarum gloria imprimis refulgente." The late Baronet,

SIR JOHN STRACHAN, of Thornton, Clifden, Teignmouth, Devon, succeeded, from the failure and extinction of the previous heirs male, and as the nearest and lawful heir male in general and representative of the family of Strachan of Monboddie and also as the nearest and lawful heir male in general to Sir Alexander Strachan, of Thornton, Bart., of Kincardineshire, who was created and raised to the dignity of Baronet by King CHARLES I. on the 28 May, 1625, by royal patent of that date. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of David Hunter, Esq. of Blackness, Forfarshire, and had issue, viz.,

- i. JOHN, of her Majesty's household, present baronet.
- ii. James-Graham, of the Bombay civil service, deceased.
- iii. Amelia, m. to the Rev. William-Page Richards, LL.D., rector of Stoke Abbas, Dorset.
- iv. Catherine-Margaret, m. to John Cave, Esq. of Brentry House, Gloucestershire.
- v. Jane-Elizabeth, deceased.

This ancient family of Strachan of Thornton was connected by marriage with the families of the Earl of Middleton, Earl of Erroll, Lord Ruthven, ancestor to the Earl of Gowrie, the Earls of Angus, Balcarras, and Airlie, and to the Earls of Marischall, &c.

A member of the French family of Lyon (which originally sprang from the noble Roman house of Leoni) accompanied the Norman into England in 1066, and removed into Scotland in about thirty years afterwards. This Lyon was high in favour with the Scottish King EDGAR, and obtained from that prince considerable grants in Perthshire, to which he gave the name of Glen-Lyon. From him, lineally descended

SIR JOHN LYON, son of John de Lyon, feudal Baron of Forteviot, &c., and son-in-law and secretary to King ROBERT II., from whom he obtained a grant, in 1371-2, of the lordship, or Thanedom, of Glamis, in Forfarshire. Sir John, who was great-chamberlain of Scotland, fell in a duel with Sir James Lindsay, of Crawford, at the Moss of Balhall, co. Forfar, in 1383, and was s. by his only son,

Lineage.

The ancient family of Tracy can boast of descent from Saxon ancestors, being descended from the blood-royal of the Saxon kings of England, and possessing at the present day the same property as their Saxon ancestors did before the Conquest; viz., Toddington, in the co. of Gloucester.—a rare instance of WILLIAM the Conqueror's forbearance.

ETHELRED, surnamed the Unready, (son of King EDGAR,) obtained the crown of England at twelve years of age, A.D. 979. He d. in 1016, leaving eight sons and four daus. Of his sons, one was EDWARD the Confessor; and of his daus., the youngest,

GODA, m. to Walter de Maunt, Earl of Mantes, a nobleman in Normandy, who by this marriage became Lord of Sudeley and Toddington, in the co. of Gloucester, and left issue,

RALPH DE MAUNT, created Earl of Hereford, Lord of Sudeley and Toddington; a man of great power and much engaged in military enterprise against the Danes and Britons. This Ralph, Earl of Hereford, left a son,

HAROLD, lord of the manors of Sudeley and Toddington, in the co. of Gloucester, and Ewyas, in the co. of Hereford, at the time of the Norman Conquest, and continued in the possession of them by King WILLIAM the Conqueror. He left two sons,

JOHN, the elder.

ROBERT, who assumed the surname of EWTAS from his castle of Ewyas, in Herefordshire, and had a greater estate than John, his eldest brother. His only dau., Sibyl, m. 1st, Robert de Tregos, and afterwards, Roger de Clifford.

The elder son,

JOHN, assumed the title of DE SUDELEY, from his place of residence, and became John de Sudeley, Lord of Sudeley and Toddington, co. Gloucester. He m. Grace, dau. and heir of Henri de Traci, Baron of Barnstaple, (which Barony of Barnstaple, in Devonshire, he possessed in the reign of HENRY I.,) and left two sons,

His descendants continued Lords of Sudeley until Joan (the eldest sister and co-heir of John de Sudeley, Lord of Sudeley, who was summoned to parliament, temp. EDWARD I.) m. WILLIAM LE BOTELER, or Butler, of Wem, in Shropshire, and upon partition of the estate made 42nd EDWARD III., the manor and castle of Sudeley was assigned to Thomas le Boteler, or Butler, in whose family it long continued, and amongst whose descendants and representatives the barony is in abeyance.

II. WILLIAM.

The second son,

WILLIAM, took his mother's name of TRACI, and was possessed of Toddington, in Gloucestershire, and the Barony of Barnstaple, in Devonshire, which was worth £100 sterling in England and £200 in Normandy. He held twenty-six knights' fees in 1165, and was steward of Normandy. This William, it is asserted, was one of the murderers of Thomas à Becket. From him directly descended the Tracys of Toddington, VISCOUNTS TRACY, of Rathcoole, in the peerage of Ireland. (See BURKE'S Extinct Baronetage.)

HENRY TRACY, 8th viscount, who s. his brother in 1793, m. Miss Weaver, and d. in 1797, leaving an only dau. and heir, Tintage.

All our antiquaries coincide in attaching a long and distinguished line of ancestors to this family, and in giving it an Anglo-Saxon origin; but they differ as to the identity of its founder, some tracing that honour to Sir Allan Gower, Lord of Sittenham, in Yorkshire, and high-sheriff of the county at the time of the Conquest; while others name William Fitz-Guyer, of Sittenham, who was charged with a mark for his lands in the sheriff's accounts, anno 1167. In more than a hundred years afterwards (towards the close of the thirteenth century) we find

SIR JOHN GOWER, one of the persons of note summoned to be at Carlisle, with horse and arms, on the Feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, to march against the Scots; and again, in the following year, the same personage is summoned, for a like purpose, to proceed to Berwick. After Sir John comes

LAWRENCE GOWER, who obtained the king's pardon in the 7th EDWARD II. for having been concerned with the Earl of Lancaster in the murder of Piers Gaveston, at Blacklow Hill, 19 June, 1312. This Lawrence was s. by

SIR NICHOLAS GOWER, who was returned one of the knights of the shire, co. York, in the 12th EDWARD III. to a great council summoned by Edward the Black Prince, then guardian of the realm, and held at Northampton; for which service, being in attendance fourteen days, he received the sum of £5 12s. In the 24th of the same monarch we find Sir Nicholas obtaining the king's permission to go to Rome, with six valets and seven horses in his retinue; and in 1351, he was commissioned to investigate some outrage committed upon Hugh, Archbishop of Damascus, at Newstead, near Boland. From Sir Nicholas we pass to his grandson,

SIR JOHN GOWER, who was a standard-bearer to Prince Edward, son of King HENRY VI., and having been made prisoner at the battle of Tewkesbury, 4 May, 1471, was there beheaded. This gallant but unfortunate soldier had m. Elizabeth, dau. of Edward Goldsborough, one of the barons of the Exchequer in the reign of HENRY VII., and left, with other children, his successor,

SIR EDWARD GOWER, who m. Margery, dau. of Sir Robert Constable, of Flamborough, and relict of John St. Quintin, of Harpham, and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS GOWER, who was captain of a band of light horsemen in the army which invaded Scotland, under the Duke of Somerset, in 1547, and master of the ordnance in the expedition against the same kingdom in 1560. He m. Anne, dau. of James Maleverer, and co-heiress of her grandfather, Sir William Maleverer, of Arnccliffe, by whom he had an only son, his successor,

SIR EDWARD GOWER, who m. Barbara, dau. of John Baxter, Esq., and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS GOWER, Esq. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Gabriel Fairfax, Esq. of Seeton, and was s. by his eldest son.

I. SIR THOMAS GOWER, Knt. of Sittenham, co. York, who was created a Baronet 2 June, 1620. Sir Thomas m. Anne, dau. and co-heiress of John Doyley, Esq. of Merton, co. Oxford, and was s. by his eldest son,

He m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Howard, of Naworth Castle, but by that lady had no issue; and 2ndly, Frances, dau. and co-heiress of Sir John Leveson,* Knt. of Haling in Kent, and of Lilleshal, co. Salop, by whom he had two sons and a dau. He was s. by (the son of his eldest son, Edward Gower, by Dorothy, dau. of Thomas Wentworth, Esq. of Elmsall,) his grandson,

III. SIR THOMAS GOWER. This gentleman, who was a colonel of foot, d. in the camp at Dundalk in 1689; and never being married, the title reverted to his uncle,

IV. SIR WILLIAM LEVESON-GOWER, who by the adoption of his uncle, Sir Richard Leveson, of Trantham, in Staffordshire, knight of the Bath, inherited the entire of that gentleman's extensive estates. Sir William was one of the Duke of Monmouth's bail in 1683, and represented Newcastle-under-Line in the four parliaments of King CHARLES II., in the Convention Parliament in 1688, and in all others to the time of his death. He m. Lady Jane Granville, eldest dau. of John, Earl of Bath, (eventually one of the co-heiresses of her nephew, William-Henry, Earl of Bath, with whom that peerage expired in 1711, (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage), by whom he had three sons and two daus., and was s. in 1691, by his eldest son,

Lineage.

This very ancient family derives its surname from Swinburne Castle, in Northumberland, which it possessed from so remote a period, that (although Sir William Dugdale notes them not as such) the Swinburnes of Swinburne Castle have been esteemed feudal lords.

SIR ADAM DE SWINBURNE, representative of the family temp. EDWARD II., left a son, Adam de Swinburne, of Swinburne, who d. s. p., and three daus. viz.,

CHRISTIAN, m. to John de Widdrington, and thus Swinburne Castle, the ancient seat of the Swinburnes, passed to the Widdringtons, from whom it was purchased in 1696, by Thomas Riddell, Esq. of Fenham, and is now the property of that gentleman's descendant, the present THOS. RIDDELL, Esq. of Felton Park and Swinburne Castle.

BARBARA, m. to John de Strivelyn, of Built Castle, Cumberland.

ELIZABETH, m. to Walter Heron, of Haddiston.

The family immediately before us, which springs from a common progenitor with the Swinburnes of Swinburne Castle, and has preserved a male succession, derives directly from Lord Taaffe is a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, chamberlain and privy councillor of the Emperor of Austria, knight and grand cross of the Order of St. Stephen; he was governor of Styria, and then of Galicia; he was also minister of justice; and is now president of the supreme tribunal.

Lineage.

The members of this noble family have resided for a series of years in the Austrian dominions, and have filled the highest offices, civil and military, under the imperial government, doubtless from having heretofore, as catholics, been debarred the prouder gratification of serving their own. The Taaffes are of great antiquity in the counties of Louth and Sligo, and have produced in ancient times many distinguished and eminent persons, amongst whom was Sir Richard Taaffe, who flourished temp. King EDWARD I., and d. in 1287; contemporary with Sir Richard was the

LORD NICHOLAS TAAFFE, who d. in 1288, leaving two sons, John Taaffe, Archbishop of Armagh, who d. in 1306; and

RICHARD-FITZ-NICHOLAS TAAFFE, whose eldest son,

RICHARD TAAFFE, Esq., was seated at Ballybraggan and Castletumpagh. This gentleman served the office of sheriff of the co. Louth in 1816, and to his custody was committed the person of Hugh de Lacie, the younger, Earl of Ulster, after his condemnation for high treason, in inciting the invasion of Ireland by Edward Bruce, until the execution of that unfortunate nobleman at Drogheda. From this Richard lineally descended

SIR WILLIAM TAAFFE, Knt. of Harleston, who distinguished himself by his services to the crown during Tyrone's rebellion in 1597; and subsequently maintained his reputation against the Spanish force which landed at Kinsale in 1601. Sir William d. in 1630, and was s. by his only son, (by his 2nd wife, Ismay, dau. of Sir Christopher Bellew.)

SIR JOHN TAAFFE, Knt., who was advanced to the peerage of Ireland, 1 Aug. 1628, in the dignities of Baron of Ballymote, and VISCOUNT TAAFFE, of Corren, both in co. Sligo. His lordship m. Anne, dau. of Theobald, 1st Viscount Dillon, by whom he had, (with other issue), THEOBALD (Sir), who succeeded to the honours.

LUCAS, a major-general in the army, appointed governor of Ross in 1649, to defend that place against CROMWELL. He was subsequently obliged to expatriate himself, and served as a colonel in Italy and Spain. He returned, however, and d. in Ireland.

Peter, a canon of the order of St. Augustine, killed at Drogheda, 1649.

Jasper, slain in battle, and d. s. p.

WILLIAM, m. Margaret, dau. of Connor O'Kennedy Roe, by whom he had, with three daus., FRANCIS, who m. Anne, dau. of John Cressan, Esq. of Olrean's Castle, in Sligo, and had issue, NICHOLAS, who inherited as 6th viscount; Anne, m. to John Brett, Esq. of Rathdoony, co. Sligo; Mary, m. to Theodore Verdon, Esq. of Clunigahell; and d. s. p.

His lordship d. in 1642, and was s. by his eldest son,

THEOBALD, 2nd viscount who was advanced to the Earldom of Carlingford, 26 June, 1662. This nobleman espoused zealously the royal cause during the civil wars, and had his estates sequestered by the Usurper. After the Restoration, he obtained, however, a pension of £800 a year, and upon being advanced to the peerage, received a grant of £4000 a year, of the rents payable to the crown out of the retrenched lands of adventurers and soldiers during such time as the same remained in the common stock of reprisals, and out of forfeited jointures, mortgages, &c. The earl was s. at his decease by his eldest surviving son by his 1st wife, Mary, dau. of Sir Nicholas White, of Leixlip, NICHOLAS, 2nd earl and 3rd viscount. This nobleman fell at the battle of the Boyne, in the command of a regiment of foot, under the banner of King JAMES, and leaving no issue, the honours devolved upon his brother.

FRANCIS, 3rd earl, the celebrated Count Taaffe of the Germanic empire. This nobleman, who was sent in his youth to the city of Olmutz to prosecute his studies, became first one of the pages of honour to the Emperor FERDINAND, and soon after obtained a captain's commission from CHARLES, the 5th Duke of Lorraine, in his own regiment. He was subsequently chamberlain to the emperor, a marshal of the empire, and councillor of the state and cabinet. His lordship was so highly esteemed by most of the crowned heads of Europe, that when he succeeded to his hereditary honours, he was exempted from forfeiture by a special clause in the English act of parliament, 1st WILLIAM and MARY; and in the acts passed in Ireland, 9th of the same reign, to hinder the reversion of divers outlawries and attainders, it was provided, that nothing therein contained should extend to attaint or convict of high treason, Nicholas, Earl of Carlingford, or his brother, &c. &c. The earl d. in Aug. 1704, and leaving no issue, the honours devolved upon his nephew,

THEOBALD, 4th earl, (son of the Hon. Major John Taaffe, who fell before Londonderry in the service of King JAMES, by Lady Rose Lambert, dau. of Charles, 1st Earl of Cavan.) This nobleman m. Amelia, youngest dau. of Luke, 3rd Earl of Fingal; but d. without issue, in 1738, when the Earldom of Carlingford expired, while the viscounty and barony passed to his lordship's next heir male,

NICHOLAS, Count Taaffe of the Germanic empire, as 6th viscount, (refer to WILLIAM, son of the 1st viscount.) This nobleman obtained the golden key, as chamberlain, from the Emperor CHARLES VI., as he did from his imperial majesty's successor, which mark of distinction both his sons enjoyed. His lordship, as Count Taaffe, acquired great renown during the war with the Turks in 1738, and achieved the victory of BELGRADE with high honour. He m. Mary-Anne, dau. and heiress of Count Spandler, of Lintz, in Upper Austria, a lady of the bedchamber to her imperial and Hungarian majesty, and had issue,

TALBOT DE MALAHIDE.

TALBOT AND MALAHIDE, BARON, (James Talbot), of Malahide, co. Dublin, in the peerage of Ireland; hereditary lord-admiral of Malahide and the seas adjoining; m. 9 Aug. 1842, Maria-Margaretta, youngest dau. of Patrick Murray, Esq. of Simprim, co. Forfar, and has issue,

His lordship s. as 4th baron at the decease of his father, 20 Dec. 1850.

Lineage.

The castle and lordship of Malahide, on the sea-coast, near Dublin, have been possessed by the family of Talbot from a period contemporary with the first introduction of English government into Ireland, and at this moment they furnish an instance unusually rare, of a baronial estate having continued for upwards of 650 years in the male heirs and name of him on whom it had been originally conferred by HENRY II. It is remarkable, too, that of the ancient seigniorial estates in Ireland, whose lords were vested with the dignity of parliamentary barons, not one can be traced to have been held directly and immediately under the crown but the lordship of MALAHIDE. In this respect Malahide seems to have been unique in Ireland, and its lords, pursuant to the nature of their original tenure and the terms of their royal charters, never rendered homage, suit, or service to any but the crown, nor acknowledged any superior but the king of England alone. Richard de Talbot, who is mentioned in Domesday-Book, was the common ancestor of the Lords of Malahide and of the Earls of Shrewsbury; and in consequence of the well-known affinity of those two branches, the family in Ireland, by ancient entails and settlements, made the members of the house of Shrewsbury next heirs in remainder to their Irish estates.

RICHARD TALBOT, "Chevalier," was Lord of Malahide in the reign of HENRY II., and after that monarch conferred the dominion of Ireland on his son, Prince (subsequently King) JOHN, Sir Richard obtained a confirmatory grant of the lordship, with Seck and Seck, Toi and Them, Infangtheof, and the judgment of Water, and of Iron, the Duel, the Pit, the Gallows, and all other the appendages of civil and criminal jurisdictions as possessed by the baronage of that day, to hold to him and his heirs by rendering to the king the service of one archer with a horse and coat-of-mail for ever. Sir Richard had also confirmed to him the advowson of the church of Malahide; and having, about the year 1193, presented his brother, Walter Talbot, to that benefice, he d., leaving two sons, Reginald and Adam. The elder,

REGINALD TALBOT, being a minor at his father's decease, the wardship of the estates devolved to the crown; and during his nonage, Walter, his uncle, having died, the church became vacant, whereupon Henry de Londres, Archbishop of Dublin, then acting as justiciary, or chief governor, of Ireland, appointed a clerk to the benefice in right of the king, as is set forth in an ancient inquisition. Reginald soon after d. without issue, and was s. by his brother and heir,

ADAM TALBOT, Kord of Malahide, whose descent is specifically set forth in some proceedings taken by the crown to protect the estates of the family against certain encroachments of the Archbishop of Dublin. His son and heir was

RICHARD TALBOT, who is entered on the Exchequer roll of 1278, as Lord Richard Talbot, and who by the name of Richard-Fitz-Adam Talbot, Knt., granted to King EDWARD I. in the year 1286, all wardships, reliefs, marriages, escheats, &c., happening within his lordship of Malahide; and it further appeared by the same deed, which is enrolled on the Antiquissimus rolls of Ireland, that he settled Malahide on his son,

SIR MILO TALBOT, who was s. by his son,

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, who was commanded, in 1316, to appear at the Exchequer with one horse caparisoned, to hear and performed what the judges there, by advice of the king's privy council, should order, as part of the service by which he held the family estates. On the remembrancer's roll of the 9th of EDWARD II., he is entered as being abroad in the public service, or, "in servitio domini regis;" and afterwards, while at home, was entrusted with high power by the crown. He was the associate in arms of Sir John Birmingham, who, with several noblemen and gentlemen, having defeated Bruce when he invaded Ireland, was created Earl of Louth by EDWARD II. in 1319, with £20 yearly fee out of the profits and rents of the county; and this creation, which vested the seigniority of Louth in Sir John, was so resented by the more ancient families of De Vernon, Gernon, Savage, &c., that in the year 1329, the earl and about one hundred and sixty noblemen and gentlemen were slain by those families at Ballibragan. Historians have all agreed in noticing this event; and amongst the few names which they have left us of those who were killed, are those of the earl, some of his kinsmen, and Talbot, Lord of Malahide. By his lady, Margaret (de Ashbourne), he had a son and heir,

THOMAS TALBOT, who, at his father's death, being a minor, was taken into the crown's guardianship, and King EDWARD, by patent tested at Guilford, 7 July, 1329, made a grant of the wardship of all his estates during minority. He was afterwards summoned in the year 1374, a parliament being called; but particularly a special parliamentary writ, tested at Naas, 20 Nov., was issued to the same Sir Thomas, and of the forty-four lay peers then summoned, his name stands in the consimular writ as the fourth after the Earls of Ormond, Kildare, and Desmond; and by the foregoing and other ancient lists still existing, it is proved this family had place and rank amongst the most ancient parliamentary peers of Ireland. By his lady, Agnes, he had issue, two sons, RICHARD and Thomas.

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, the elder son, was sheriff of co. Dublin; and by his wife, Cecilia, (who afterwards m. Robert Gallane, and had dower in Glonaghlea), left issue, a son,

THOMAS TALBOT, a minor at his father's death, who d., leaving a son and heir,

CHRISTOPHER TALBOT, whose guardianship and estates in the cos. of Dublin, Meath, and Kildare, were granted to Sir Thomas Fleming, Baron of Slane, by patent, dated at Westminster, March 1, in the 1st year of King HENRY IV. Christopher d. a minor and without issue, whereupon the lordship devolved on

THOMAS TALBOT, son of Lord Thomas, (who was summoned to the great councils and parliament in the reign of EDWARD III., as above mentioned.) For him, as "Thomas, filius Thomæ Talbot militis," homage of two-thirds of Malahide was respited, 12 Nov. 1430; but he d. soon after, as it appears that on the 8 Nov. 1432, the king granted to Thomas Cusacke and others the custody of all estates in the several counties of Dublin, Meath, and Kildare, of which he had lately d. seized, and which were now vested in the crown by the minority of his son and heir,

RICHARD TALBOT, Lord of Malahide, who m. the Lady Matilda Plunkett, dau. of Christopher, Baron of Killeen. Of this lady a word en passant. There is among the ancient paintings in the castle at Malahide a whole-length, in which the horned cap of the 15th century is very conspicuous; and this painting family tradition points out as the Hon. Maud Plunkett, dau. of Christopher, 1st Baron of Killeen, the widow of Hussey, Baron of Galtrim, and wife of Sir Richard Talbot. There is also in the ruined church attached to the castle an altar-tomb with a representation in bold relief of the same lady, and the escutcheons at the base are charged with the arms of Plunkett, Cusack, and Talbot. Of this Lady Maud the legend of the country pathetically tells us, that she was maid, wife, and widow, in one day, her husband having been killed immediately after marriage: and it must be here observed, as a proof of the accuracy of such traditions and family reputation, that on examining the public records, it is found that the Lady Matilda Plunkett was dau. of Lord Killeen, and was m. to Thomas Hussey, Baron of Galtrim, who was murdered, as already mentioned, and that she obtained a patent wherein the king recognises her as wife of Sir Richard Talbot, and granted her possession of her late husband's (Thomas, Baron of Galtrim) estates in the co. of Meath. Her ladyship, on the death of Sir Richard, m. John Cornewalsh, who was chief-baron in the reign of HENRY VI., on the Wednesday after the feast of the blessed Virgin Mary, 1444, and enjoyed, with her husband, dower out of the lordships of Galtrim and of Malahide, in right of her two former lords. There are numerous other records as to this lady in the Exchequer, where it can be traced that she d. on the 17 July, in the year 1482, having survived her 3rd husband several years. Sir Richard Talbot, by Lady Maud, left a son and heir,

THOMAS TALBOT, who, on the 15 Nov. in the year 1469, had a patent of privileges conferred on him by the crown, as "Thomas Talbot, Armiger, Dominus de Malahide;" and in the evidence-chamber are several deeds, whereby the lordships of Louth, Ashe, Castlefrank, &c., were conveyed to him by Sir James Strangeways, Knt., Richard Strangeways, his son and heir, John Conyers, Knt., Margery, his wife, and John Conyers, their son, who were co-heirs of the Barons Darcy of Knaith, and the latter of whom was ancestor of the Earls of Holderness. On the 15 Nov. 1469, the king granted him a patent as "Thomas Talbot, Armiger, Dominus de Malahide," exempting him from attendance at assizes; and on the 21 Sept. 1475, he had licence, as Lord of Malahide, to absent himself out of Ireland for three years. Soon after this, his majesty King EDWARD IV., by a patent under the great seal, still preserved amongst the family deeds at the castle, 8 March, 1476, granted him all the customs of merchandise coming to the port of Malahide, and that he and his heirs should be admirals of that port, with power of holding courts of Admiralty, and appointing officers, gaugers, searchers, water-bailiffs, &c.; and further, that he should have respite of his homage due to the crown for that manor for fifty years. He d. 23 July, 1487, when all his estates in the counties of Dublin, Meath, Louth, and Kildare were taken into the king's hands. By a settlement which was executed 14 Sept. previous to his death, his estates were conveyed to him by trustees as "Dominus de Malahide," and to Elizabeth, his wife, for life, and remainders were created therein for John, Richard, and Thomas, his younger sons. By the said Lady Elizabeth, who survived him, he left as his son and heir,

SIR PETER TALBOT, who did homage in the Exchequer for the family lordships, and is styled "Dominus de Malahide" in the records of that court. He m. the Lady Catherine Fitz-Gerald, dau. of Gerald, Earl of Kildare, and afterwards Lady Elizabeth Preston, who d. 20 July, 1529; and having vested his estates in trustees by his last will, 12 Sept. 1529, he desired to be buried in the church of Malahide, by Dame Jenett Eustace; and after leaving several considerable bequests, for the repair and maintenance of the chancel, he devised all his lordships of Malahide, Garristown, Louth, and Castlering, to his son and heir, Thomas, and next to his sons, John and Walter, with remainder to his brothers John and William; all his estates in the co. of Waterford and Kilkenny he leaves to his son William. By inquisition he was found to have died

10 July, 30th of HENRY VIII., leaving, as his son and heir,

SIR THOMAS TALBOT, who, on the 18 Dec. in the year 1529, had a grant of livery of all his father's estates in several counties in Ireland. Sir Thomas, 16 Oct. 1532, being sued in the Exchequer for not executing the office of sheriff of the county of Dublin, pleaded the patent granted to his grandfather by King EDWARD IV., already mentioned, exonerating him and his heirs from such offices, and declared that he would not act as sheriff; whereupon the proceedings were discontinued. By Katherine, his wife, he had three sons; one of whom, Robert, was father of William Talbot, who acquired the estate of Carton, co. Kildare, and who, being created a Baronet, 4 Feb. 1622, was grandfather of Colonel Richard Talbot, who, by patent, dated 20 June, 1685, was created Baron of Talbot's-town, Viscount of Baltinglass, and Earl of Tyrconnell, with remainder in tail-male to his nephews; and was subsequently, 20 March, 1689, advanced to the dignity of Marquess and Duke of Tyrconnell by King JAMES II., in whose service, as chief governor of Ireland, he died. The duke, by Frances, Countess Hamilton, left two daus., of whom Charlotte was m. to the Prince de Vintimiglia, and had issue, two daus.: the one m. to M. Verac, and the other to the Prince Belmonte; but both dying without issue, Richard-Wogan Talbot, now Baron of Malahide, became heir-general to the Duke of Tyrconnell, as descendant and sole heir of Frances, the duke's sister. In the castle there is a half-length painting by Sir Peter Lely; and notwithstanding all that was written by his successful, yet unforgiving enemies at the Revolution, this portrait goes far to support what we find said of the duke in Count Grammont's memoirs, that he was "one of the tallest men in England, and possessed of a fine and brilliant exterior; his manners were noble and brilliant; and that he was 'one of the most genteel men in the court of CHARLES II.'" There is also a painting of the duchess, who was eldest dau. and co-heiress of Richard Jennings, of Sandridge, in Hertfordshire, and sister to Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough; and her beauty and character are thus depicted by a cotemporary:—"She had the fairest and brightest complexion that ever was seen; her hair a most beautiful flaxen, her countenance extremely animated, though, generally, persons so exquisitely fair have an insipidity; her whole person was fine, particularly her neck and bosom. The charms of her person and the unaffected sprightliness of her wit gained her the general admiration of the whole court; in these fascinating qualities she had there (CHARLES's court) other competitors; but scarcely one, except Miss Jennings, maintained throughout the character of unblemished chastity." After the death of the duke, whose sincere attachment to his unfortunate sovereign has never been disputed, the duchess was permitted to erect a house (still standing) in King-street, Dublin, as a nunnery for poor Clares; and in this obscure retirement, burying all the attractions and graces which once so adorned the court of England, she d. at the age of 92, and was interred in Patrick's Cathedral, 9 March, 1730. But to return to Sir Thomas Talbot; he was s. by his son and heir,

WILLIAM TALBOT, who became possessed of the lordships of Malahide, Garristown, Louth, Ashe, and Castlering, with all the courts and royalties attached thereto, and to his estates in the counties of Waterford and Kilkenny; and having settled all the family estates in the counties of Dublin, Meath, and Kildare on his grandson, Richard, and the heirs male of his own body, he left a remainder over to the use "of the right heirs of John Talbot, of Grafton, within the realm of England," ancestor to the Earls of Shrewsbury, and his heirs for ever. To his 2nd son, John, he left his Louth estates; and this Sir John afterwards m. Bridget, dau. of Sir John Talbot, of Grafton, and d. 7 Nov. 1618. Sir William Talbot d. 4 Feb. 1696, leaving his grandson,

RICHARD TALBOT, his heir, then aged eleven years and three months; after succeeding to his estates, he, in common with the other ancient and dignified families of the country, incurred the tyrannous jealousy of Lord Strafford, then lord-lieutenant of Ireland, who sought to wrest from him the admiralty of the port of Malahide, and other his valuable rights; but on pleading the ancient charters under which his family had so long inherited, the court gave judgment against the crown, and thus Strafford's designs were defeated. Sir Richard d. 29 July, 1640, having previously executed a settlement of his lordships of Malahide, Garristown, and the Louth estates, (which had lately reverted to him.) leaving, by his wife, Eliza, dau. of Sir German Kempe, of Sussex, a son and heir.

JOHN TALBOT, who, during the Commonwealth government, had the mortification to see his castle occupied by the celebrated Myles Corbet and other regicides; and though, on the restoration of CHARLES II., he re-obtained possession of the chief portion of his paternal estates, yet a valuable property was then usurped from the family by the crown, and still so continues, notwithstanding that three several monarchs subsequently admitted the fact, that spoliation had been committed. By his wife, the Lady Catherine Plunket, dau. of Luke, Earl of Fingall, he left a son and heir, RICHARD TALBOT, who was appointed auditor-general of Ireland immediately before the revolution. He m. Frances, sister of Richard, Duke of Tyrconnell, a lady of strong and masculine spirit, by whom (who d. in 1718) he left issue at his decease, in 1708.

John, m. Frances, dau. and heir of Col. Nicholas Wogan, of Rathoofy, who was heir male and direct descendant of Sir John Wogan, chief governor of Ireland in 1295 and 1310, and had a son, RICHARD, Valentine.

The two elder sons dying issueless, the estates and representation of the family devolved eventually upon the son of John, the 3rd son.

Westmeath, of the Milesian princely house of Breffney, which lady was created by letters patent, dated 26 May, 1831, Baroness Talbot, of Malahide, and Lady Malahide, of Malahide, co. Dublin, in remainder to the heirs male of her body by her husband, Richard Talbot, by whom he left issue at his decease, 24 Oct. 1788.

TEMPLE, SIR GRENVILLE-LEOFRIC, of Stowe, co. Buckingham, R.N.; b. at Florence, 5 Feb. 1830; s. his father as 11th baronet, in 1847.

Lineage.

This ancient family derives its surname from the manor of Temple, co. Leicestershire, and it deduces its descent from Leofric, Earl of Chester, (erroneously styled Earl of Leicestershire,) who lived in the reign of EDWARD the Confessor. This Leofric m. the celebrated Godiva, of Coventry notoriety, who is said to have appeased the wrath of her offended lord, and to have obtained a restitution of privileges for the good citizens of Coventry, by exhibiting on horseback in the simple habiliments of Eve, to the confusion of an unlucky knight of the needle, whom tradition hath stricken blind for presuming to peep. Certain it is that pictures of the earl and his countess were set up in the south window of Trinity Church, in that ancient city, about the reign of RICHARD II., more than three centuries after the occurrence of the supposed event; his lordship holding a charter in his right hand, with the words,

I, Lurik, for love of thee,
Do set Coventry toll free.

And there is still a yearly procession of a naked figure observed by the grateful citizens on Friday after Trinity Sunday. From this Earl of Chester lineally descended

PETER TEMPLE, Esq., who, in the latter years of King EDWARD VI., obtained a grant of the manor of Marston Boteler, co. Warwick, and became lord of the manor of Stowe, co. Buckingham. This gentleman m. Millicent, dau. of William Jekyll, Esq. of Newington, co. Middlesex, and had two sons.

* A tradition, preserved in the Roper family, records that QUEEN ELIZABETH offered a ducal coronet to Margaret Roper; but the high-minded daughter of Sir Thomas More refused the proffered honour, as being a compromise for what she considered, the judicial murder of her father. Horace Walpole, in his correspondence, alludes to the subject:—"It was like proposing to Margaret Roper to become a duchess in the court that cut off her father's head, and imagining it would please her."

The surname of this family, TOKETON, as originally written, was derived from a place of that name in Kent, of which its remote ancestors were feudal lords.

His lordship claimed the Baronies of Clifford, Westmorland, and Vesey, in right of inheritance from his grandmother; and that of CLIFFORD was confirmed to him by the House of Lords, 12 Dec. 1691, when he assumed the additional title of Baron Clifford, which barony at his decease, in 1729, fell into abeyance between his daus. and co-heirs, and so continued until the crown, in 1734, interposed in favour of Margaret, Countess of Leicester, his lordship's 3rd dau.; but at her ladyship's decease without issue, in 1775, it relapsed into abeyance between her sisters, which abeyance the crown again terminated, in 1776, in favour of Edward Southwell, as stated above. Lineage.

This family (one of the few native houses at present to be found in the peerage of Ireland) deduces its descent from the royal line of Thomond, a race of princes which sprang from the celebrated Hibernian monarch, Brian Boirohne, who commenced his reign in 1007, and terminated it with his life at the battle of Clontarffe, in 1014. The last of those princes,

CONNOR O'BRYEN, who was inaugurated King of Thomond in 1528, d. in 1540, when his son was set aside, and the principality usurped by his brother,

MURROUGH O'BRYEN, who surrendered his royalty to King HENRY VIII., and was created in consequence, by that monarch, 1 July, 1543, Earl of Thomond, with remainder to his deposed nephew, Donough O'Bryen, and Baron of Inchiquin, to his own heirs male. His lordship d. in 1561, when the earldom devolved accordingly upon the said

DONOUGH, who, on surrendering the patent to EDWARD VI., obtained a new grant of the dignities to himself and the heirs male of his body, by patent, dated 7 Nov. 1552, and also possession of all the honours and lands which had fallen to the crown by the death of his uncle. From this noblesman the Earldom of Thomond passed in regular succession to HENRY, 8th EARL OF THOMOND, and 1st

VISCOUNT TADCASTER; at whose decease, s. p., in 1741, the honours became dormant. A branch of the house of Thomond, however, still exists, though confiscation and religious persecution consigned it long to obscurity. Its immediate progenitor,

MURROUGH EM CASHA O'BRIEN, migrated to Kerry in the middle of the 17th century, and was father of MURROUGH OGE O'BRIEN, who fought for King JAMES, under Lord Clare, at the Battle of the Boyne. By his wife, a dau. of O'Rourke, he had a son,

BRYAN O'BRIEN, called Bawn, who m. Ellen Moriarty, heiress of the Farren estate, on the banks of the river Loune, and had three sons, Teig, Murrough, and Donough; of whom the eldest,

T H R E I P L A N D, SIR PATRICK-MURRAY, of Fingask Castle, co. Perth; b. 26 May, 1800; s. his father, 11 Jan. 1837.

Lineage.

I. PATRICK THREIPLAND, Esq. of Fingask Castle, co. Perth, was made a knight-bachelor by King CHARLES II., in the year 1674, and afterwards a Baronet of Nova Scotia, by King JAMES II., 10 Nov. 1687, with remainder to his heirs male. Sir Patrick was a staunch supporter of the family then on the throne. He took an active lead in the politics of his country during the usurpation of CROMWELL, and for many years successively discharged, with infinite credit, several important public duties, which were committed to his care. He m. 13 March, 1668, Euphemia, dau. of John Conqueror, Esq. of Frierton, by whom he had one son and six daus.; and dying in 1689, was s. by his son,

II. SIR DAVID, who m. 1st, in 1688, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Ramsay, Bart. of Banff, by whom he had seven sons and three daus.; and 2ndly, in 1707, Dame Catherine Smythe, of Barnhill, by whom he had two sons and four daus. Sir David Threipland having imbibed all the Tory principles of his father, held a secret correspondence with the son of JAMES II. and his adherents; and in 1715, he was among the first, with his sons and a party of followers, to aid the Earl of Marr in setting up the standard of the Chevalier de St. George and in proclaiming that prince king, under the title of JAMES VIII. of Scotland and Third of England; in consequence of which, Sir David's title was attained by act of parliament, in the 1st year of King GEORGE I., and his estates and effects were annexed to the crown. He d. in 1746, and was s. by his youngest and only surviving son,

(III. SIR) STUART, who being also strongly attached to the cause of the house of Stuart, linked his fate with that of the unfortunate Charles-Edward in 1745, and participated in all the difficulties and misery which that prince and his followers were doomed to undergo. After the result of the battle of Culloden, so fatal to the hopes of the Jacobites, Sir Stuart Threipland's maternal property, as had been the case with his paternal in 1716, was forfeited; and a reward having been offered for his apprehension, he contrived to escape into France, where he remained at the court of the Stuarts, until the act of indemnity permitted his return to Scotland in security; when, at a sale of forfeited lands, in 1782, he repurchased the family estates, which are now in the possession of his descendants. He m. 1st, in 1758, Jannet, eldest dau. of David Sinclair, Esq.

of Southdun, by whom he had a son and dau., who both d. issueless; and 2ndly, in 1761, Miss Jannet-Budge Murray, of Pennyalnd, by whom he had four sons and a dau., viz.,

- Stuart-Moncrieff, late advocate-general at Bombay; m.
- Elizabeth, dau. of Walter Campbell, Esq. of Shawfield.

IV. SIR PATRICK MURRAY, b. in Nov. 1762, who petitioned GEORGE IV., when his majesty was in Scotland, in 1822, for the restoration of the honours of his house, which had been forfeited on account of his grandfather's accession to the rising of 1715, and the king was graciously pleased to signify his assent, 25 April, 1826, to the introduction of a bill into parliament, whereby the attainder of Sir David Threpland was reversed. Sir Patrick m. Jessy Murray, dau. of William-Scott Kerr, Esq. of Chatto, co. Roxburgh, and had issue,

His severest calamity, however, was the loss of the manor of Ravenston, which he held by lease from the crown, at the yearly rent of £63. 13s., payable at Lady-day and Michaelmas, or within forty days after these periods; but advantage having been taken many years after, (occasioned by a servant's losing part of the money at gaming, which he was sent to pay,) he was deprived of his estate; and although the queen's receiver subsequently had the money, and gave an acquittance for it as if paid at the proper period, yet he could never obtain restitution of the property. JOHN, the unfortunate Admiral Byng, so unjustly executed, 14 March, 1757, under the sentence of a court martial. On the coffin, in the family vault at Southhill, in Bedfordshire, of the admiral, the following inscription appears engraved upon brass:—

To the perpetual disgrace of Public Justice,
 The Honourable John Byng,

 Political Persecution,
 On March 14th, in the year 1757,
 When bravery and loyalty

TOWNSHEND, MARQUESS, (George - Ferrars Townshend,) Earl of Leicester, Viscount Townshend, of Raynham, co. Norfolk; Baron Townshend, of Lynn Regis, in the same county; Baron Ferrars of Chartley, Baron Compton, one of the co-heirs to the Barony of Bouchier, and a Baronet; b. 13 Dec. 1778; m. 12 May, 1807, Sarah, dau. of the late William-Dunn Gardner, Esq. His lordship s. as 3rd marquess, at the decease of his father, 27 July, 1811. The marquess is high-steward of Tamworth.

Lineage.

This ancient house deduces its descent from Lodovic, a noble Norman, who, settling in England during the reign of HENRY I., assumed the surname of Townshend, and by marriage with Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas de Haville, obtained the manor of Raynham, co. Norfolk, which has ever since remained in possession of his descendants, and is now the principal residence of the family. Directly descended from this personage was,

ROGER TOWNSHEND, a lawyer of great eminence in the reign of EDWARD IV., and M.P. for Calne, in Wiltshire. In the 1st year of EDWARD V., Mr. Townshend was constituted king's serjeant-at-law, and the year following, nominated by RICHARD III. one of the justices of the Court of Common Pleas, wherein he continued until his decease, his patent being renewed by HENRY VII., who also conferred upon him the honour of knighthood. Sir Roger m. Anne, dau. and co-heiress of Sir William de Brewse, Knt. of Wenham Hall, co. Suffolk; in consequence of which alliance the Townshend family may quarter the arms of the ancient Barons of Brember, of the family of Braose, and likewise of Milo, Earl of Hereford, Newmarch, Baron Brecknock, &c. &c. Sir Roger had issue six sons* and four daus. He d. in the 8th year of HENRY VII., and his eldest son, Sir Roger Townshend, Knt., dying without issue, we shall proceed with the second son,

JOHN TOWNSHEND, Esq. of Brampton, co. Norfolk, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir John Heydon, K.B. of Beacons-thorp, in the same co., and was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD TOWNSHEND, Esq. of Brampton. This gentleman m. Catharine, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Humphry Brown, Knt. of Ridley, co. Chester, one of the justices of the Court of Common Pleas; and dying in 1544, was s. by his only son, SIR ROGER TOWNSHEND, of Raynham, who received the honour of knighthood in 1588, from Charles, Lord Howard of Effingham, for his spirited conduct against the Armada.

* From the 5th son, Thomas, descended the TOWNSHENDS of Wretham, now represented by the BULLOCKS of Shipdham. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. iv. p. 130.)

Sir Roger m. Jane, youngest dau. of Sir Michael Stanhope, Knt. of Shelford, co. Nottingham; and dying in 1600, was s. by his eldest son.

Sir JOHN TOWNSHEND, knighted by the Earl of Essex at the memorable siege of Cadix. He was M.P. for the co. of Norfolk, temp. ELIZABETH, and a very distinguished member of the first parliament of King JAMES. During the sitting of which, however, Sir John had the misfortune to engage in a quarrel with Sir Matthew Brown, of Beachworth Castle, which terminated in a duel, fought on horseback, on Hounslow Heath, wherein both the combatants were mortally wounded, Sir Matthew dying on the spot, and Sir John Townshend soon after, on the 2nd Aug. 1603, leaving two sons by Anne, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Sir Nathaniel Bacon, K.B. of Stiff Key, co. Norfolk; by the eldest of whom.

I. ROGER TOWNSHEND, Esq., M.P. for the co. of Norfolk, who was created a Baronet, 16 April, 1617, he was succeeded. Sir Roger m. Mary, 2nd dau. and co-heiress of Horatio, Lord Vere of Tilbury, by whom he had two sons and five daus. He d. 1 Jan. 1686, and was s. by his elder son.

II. SIR ROGER; who d. during his minority, when the title devolved upon his brother.

III. SIR HORATIO. This gentleman rendered essential services to the Royal cause during the Usurpation: he was one of the six commoners who, with six peers, went to the Hague to entreat King CHARLES II. to return to his dominions, and take the government of them into his own hands. It was he also who fortified the town of Lynn for his majesty's reception, and was the commander-in-chief of the Royalist forces on the coast of Norfolk. Clarendon gives a brief memoir of Sir Horatio in his History of the Rebellion. Being thus one of the most forward in restoring the monarchy, Sir Horatio was elevated to the peerage after the accomplishment of that most desirable event, (20 April, 1661,) by the title of Baron Townshend of Lynne Regis; and advanced, 11 Dec. 1682, to the dignity of Viscount Townshend of Raynham. Lineage.

The old and knightly family of Trafford, seated at Trafford, in the county palatine of Lancaster, from a period antecedent to the Norman Conquest, has preserved, time immemorial, an unbroken male descent.

RANDOLPHUS DE TRAFFORD, who flourished "Ante Conquestum," as the family pedigree sets forth, was father of another

RANDOLPHUS, of whom mention is made in two deeds to "Radulphus filius Radulphi," by which it appeareth that Radulphus, the father, "was then dead, and had flourished in King CANUTE, the Dane, his time, about the year 1030, and perhaps died after, in St. Edward the Confessor his time, about the year 1050: hee had no surname, as then few of our Saxon nobility or gentry had." From this Radulphus sprang the great house of TRAFFORD, which has since uninterruptedly held a most distinguished place amongst the first families of Lancashire. (For full details of the descent, refer to BURKE'S Commoners.) The late JOHN TRAFFORD, Esq. of Croston, who inherited the estates and representation of the family upon the decease, in 1779, of his kinsman, Humphrey Trafford, Esq. of Trafford, m. 21 Sept. 1778, Elizabeth, dau. of Stephen Walter Tempest, Esq. of Broughton, co. Sir William assumed, in 1802, the surname of SALUSBURY, in compliance with the testamentary injunction of his cousin, OWEN-SALUSBURY BREBETON, Esq.

Lineage.

This ancient family derives its surname from the lordship of Trelawney, or Treleon, in the parish of Altonon, co. Cornwall, which, in the time of EDWARD the Confessor, was the property of its earliest known ancestor,

EDUNT, whose son,

HAMELIN, was likewise the owner of Treleon after the Norman invasion, by a tenure from the Earl of Mortain, as found at the general survey. From this Hamelin lineally descended

SIR JOHN TRELAWNY, member for the co. of Cornwall, and one of the coroners thereof; which office, in former times, was conferred upon the most eminent knights in the shire alone. Sir John, who was a soldier, acquired great renown in the French wars of HENRY V., and obtained from that monarch a pension of £20 a year. Under the figure of King HENRY, which formerly stood over the great gate at Launceston, was the distich,—

"He that will do ought for me, Let him love well Sir John Tirlawne."

From this valiant knight we pass over several other very eminent men to Tintage.

This ancient family came originally to Scotland from France, and was first settled in the county of Angus, in a barony called to this day the Barony of Touryn, or Tourin, where they lived for several generations. The Turins appear, however, to have removed into Aberdeenshire about the beginning of the fourteenth century, as we find ADAM TURYN, or TURIN, mentioned in the reign of King ROBERT THE BRUCE, among the number "Nobilium virorum ibidem existentium." His son, or nearest descendant, WILLIAM TURYN, having attached himself to the fortunes of King DAVID II., and shared that sovereign's exile, and having subsequently returned to Scotland in 1342, was in requital for his services and loyalty, invested with the barony of Foveran, or Foverne, in the county of Aberdeen, which estate was held by his descendants for the space of three hundred years, from father to son. At the end of that space, at the time of the rebellion in the reign of King CHARLES I., JOHN TURING, the laird of Foveran, having, both by reason of consanguinity (his wife, the Lady of Foveran, a daughter of Gordon of Geicht, being the aunt of George, Marquess of Huntly, the leader of the king's party in the North of Scotland) as well as from community of faith, warmly espoused the cause, raised and maintained at his own expense a body of horse, under the banner of his illustrious relative, the Marquess of Huntly; in acknowledgment for which services he was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in the year 1638. After the decease of Sir John Turing, the devoted adherent of CHARLES II., the title lay dormant until the year 1792, when SIR ROBERT TURING, his lineal descendant, resumed the title and family honours. Sir Robert was m. to a Miss Campbell, of Saddle, and dying at his residence, Banff Castle, in 1831, without male issue, the title devolved to the nearest lineal descendant, the present baronet, SIR JAMES-HENRY TURING, her Britannic Majesty's consul at Rotterdam. Sir James Turing's descent is from the second son of SIR JOHN TURING, the 1st baronet. He is son of the late John Turing, Esq., by Margaret, his wife, dau. of Smart Tennent, Esq. of Musselburgh, N.B. He had one brother and one sister, viz.,

John-Robert, who m. Jane Stewart, dau. of the late Alexander Fraser, Esq., Provost of Aberdeen, and left at his decease, a son, John-Robert, and a dau., Agnes. Martha-Elizabeth, m. to G.-R. Curtis, Esq. of Gainsborough

THOMAS CARPENTER, Esq. who bequeathed his estate to his second-cousin,

LIEUT.-GENERAL THE RIGHT HON. GEORGE, LORD CARPENTER. This nobleman, who was a younger son, commenced his career as page to the Earl of Montagu, in his embassy to the court of France in 1671; and on returning, in the next year, rode as a private gentleman in the 3rd troop of guards; from which station (then deemed an honourable introduction to a military life) Mr. Carpenter was appointed quarter-master to the Earl of Peterborough's regiment of horse, the lieut.-colonely of which he subsequently attained. In 1693, Colonel Carpenter m. Alice, dau. of William, 1st Viscount Charlemont, and widow of James Margeton, Esq., and purchased afterwards, for eighteen hundred guineas, a part of his lady's dowry, the

In 1709, he had attained the rank of lieutenant-general; and in 1715, he forced the rebels under Lord Derwentwater to surrender at discretion, at Preston, thus securing the throne to the present reigning family. In 1716, General Carpenter was appointed governor of Minorca, and subsequently commander-in-chief of all the forces in Scotland; when he was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, by patent, dated 29 May, 1719, as *Baron Carpenter, of Killaghy, co. Tintage.

This family has been of knightly degree ever since the Conquest, when

SIR WALTER TYRELL, a Norman knight, came into England, and soon after became tenant of the manor of Langham, co. Essex, which he held at the general survey under Richard de Tombrigg. Of this Sir Walter, Morant, in his History of Essex, observes: "Whether he was the same person who shot William Rufus in the New Forest, or whether he did it at the instigation of Archbishop Anselm, through the persuasion of a fanatic monk, as it is asserted by Alan de Insulis, we are not able to determine." It is far indeed from being an ascertained point that this family is descended from the Walter Tyrell who slew Rufus, and as far is it from being certain that the deed was done designedly. Ordericus Vitalis, in his history of Normandy, relates, that Sir Walter Tyrell, on his death-bed, declared that he was not so much as in the field when William Rufus was killed. From Sir Walter Tyrell descended

SIR THOMAS TYRELL, Knt. of Rumseys Tyrell, co. Essex, who m. Margaret, dau. of John Fillo, Esq. of Old Hall; and had issue two sons, I. Herts, in the peerage of Great Britain; Viscount Grimston, and Baron Dunboyne, of Dunhoyne, co. Meath, in the peerage of Ireland; Baron Forrester, of Corstorphine, in the peerage of Scotland; and a Baronet of England; lord lieut. of Herts; b. 22 Feb. 1809; m. 12 Sept. 1844, Elizabeth, dau. of Major Richard Weyland, of Wood Eaton, co. Oxon, and has, Harriot-Ellizabeth, b. in 1845; and Jane, b. in 1848. His lordship s. his father, 17 Nov. 1845.

Etymology.

The surname of Grimston was taken from GRIMSTON, co. York, where the founder in England of this family, SYLVESTER DE GRIMSTON, settled at the time of the Conquest. He was standard-bearer at the battle of Hastings, and the year following was appointed chamberlain to the new monarch, when he did homage for Grimston, Hoxton, Tonstead, and other lands which he held of Lord

Roos, as of his honour of Roos in Holderness. From Sylvester de Grimston lineally descended,

WILLIAM DE GRIMSTON, who m. Armatrade, dau. of Sir John Rysam, Knt., and had three sons,

THOMAS, his heir, of Grimston, ancestor of the present CHARLES GRIMSTON, Esq. of Grimston Garth, in Yorkshire.

ROBERT, of whom presently.
John, dean of Windsor in 1418.

ROBERT DE GRIMSTON, the second son, marrying the dau. of Sir Anthony Spelman, removed to the estates obtained through his wife in Suffolk, (lands at Risehungle and Ipswich,) in which he was s. by his son,

EDWARD GRIMSTON, Esq., who m. 1st, Philippa, dau. of John, Lord Tiptoft, sister and co-heiress of John, Earl of Worcester, and widow of Thomas, Lord Roos, but had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of William Drury, Esq. of Rougham, co. Suffolk, and had four sons and three daus., by the eldest of whom,

EDWARD GRIMSTON, Esq., he was succeeded. This gentleman's grandson,

SIR EDWARD GRIMSTON, Knt., served in several parliaments for the borough of Ipswich in the reign of ELIZABETH, was called to the privy-council of her majesty, and continued comptroller of Calais, an office to which he was appointed in 1552, by King EDWARD VI. In the beginning of 1558, Calais being taken by the Duke of Guise, Sir Edward Grimston, the comptroller, was amongst the chief prisoners, and was closely confined in the Bastille; from which, however, he effected his escape in two years afterwards, by cutting out one of the window-bars with a file, and letting himself down by a rope conveyed to him by his servant, with whom he changed clothes. Sir Edward lived to the advanced age of ninety-eight, and was s. at his decease by his son,

EDWARD GRIMSTON, Esq. of Bradfield, in Essex, M.P. for the borough of Eye in the 31st ELIZABETH. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Ralph Coppinger, Esq. of Stoke, in Kent, by whom he had five sons, and was succeeded by the second, but eldest surviving,

II. SIR HARBOTTLE. This gentleman, who was a lawyer, and member of parliament for Colchester in the beginning of King CHARLES I.'s reign, took part against the court as long as he could constitutionally do so; but after the murder of the king (from whose mock trial until the perpetration of that foul deed Sir Harbottle was kept in close confinement) he lived in retirement till the restoration of the monarchy, when he was chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, 25 April, 1660, which accomplished that desirable event. He was afterwards called to the privy-council, and constituted master of the Rolls, and recorder of Harwich. Lineage.

The family of Vivian is of great antiquity in the co. of Cornwall. Mr. Whitaker, in his Treatise on the Ancient Cathedral of Cornwall, claims for them a Roman descent, and in support of his opinion cites a passage from the Annals of Tacitus, in which mention is made of Vivianus Annius, a commander in the Roman legion, and son-in-law of Corbulo, who had been a leader in the imperial armies in Gaul and Germany. Dr. Borlase and others consider the name Celtic, and that the family is of Celtic origin. Be this as it may, whether descended from the Romans or the Celts, the Vivians of Cornwall are indisputably to be considered amongst the oldest inhabitants of the county. The family before us is descended from the branch that resided at Trenoweth, in the parish of St. Columb, in the reign of HENRY VII., and after that at Trewan, in the same parish. These estates, with Withiel and other property in the co. of Cornwall, passed to the Trelowarren family in the reign of WILLIAM III., by the marriage of the heiress, Mary Vivian, with Sir Richard Vyvyan, Bart. of Trelowarren.

Charles. Drury.

Lineage.

The Wakes are mentioned by Brompton as in the immediate train of the CONQUEROR; but it is the opinion of antiquaries that the individual of the name of Wake recorded in the roll of Battle Abbey, was one of those who being weary of Harold's rule, fled into Normandy, and invited Duke WILLIAM; hence the family is supposed to have been of importance prior to the Conquest. From

BALDWIN, LORD WAKE, founder of the Abbey of Brun, who d. in 1156, descended, through a long line of eminent ancestors,

SIR THOMAS WAKE, a gallant knight who fought with the Black Prince, and distinguished himself particularly at the battle of Najara. He was sheriff of Northamptonshire for five successive years in the reign of EDWARD III. By Alice, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Fateshull, Knt. of Bletso, Bedfordshire, he had a son and heir,

SIR THOMAS WAKE, Knt., who m. Maud, dau. of Sir Thomas Pigot, Knt., and was s. by his son,

This gentleman was so extensive a landed proprietor in the co. of Somerset, Northampton, Kent, and the principality of Wales, that he acquired the designation of "the Great Wake." He m. Agnes, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Lovell, Knt., and was s. by his son, ROGER WAKE, Esq., of Blysworth, who was sheriff of Northamptonshire, in the 2nd RICHARD III.; and having joined that monarch at the battle of Bosworth, was attainted by the parliament of HENRY VII., but afterwards obtained pardon and restitution of his lands. WALSHAM, SIR JOHN-JAMES, of Knill Court, co. Francis, b. 9 April, 1833.

Charles, b. 26 Aug. 1837.

Arthur, b. 16 June, 1833.

Anna. Fanny.

This gentleman was created a Baronet, 30 Sept. 1831, in consideration of his being the eldest co-heir and representative of Gen. Sir Thos. Morgan, Bart., whose title (extinct since 1768) was conferred upon him, in 1660, as a reward for his great military services, and specially for "his zeal in forwarding the Restoration."

Lineage.

The remote origin of the Norman family of Walsham cannot be clearly traced. In 1105, its earliest recorded ancestor gave his lands and tenements in Downham, or Dunham, co. Norfolk, towards the endowment of the Cluniac Priory of Thetford, then recently founded (upon William de Walsham's advice,) by Roger Bigod, one of the CONQUEROR'S barons. There seems, however, no reason to doubt the derivation of this surname from Walsham St. Mary (or South Walsham), in Norfolk, as the advowson of that parish was sold by Nicholas de Walsham to Simon de Criketot, in the reign of RICHARD COEUR DE LION—for the purpose, probably, of enabling him to take that part in the Crusades of which the armorial bearings of his descendants (five cross-crosslets on a cross, with a Saracen's head for a crest) are obviously commemorative.

The Norfolk branches of the Walshams (of which were, William de Walsham, prior of Norwich in 1201; Nicholas de Walsham, lord abbot of St. Benedict's, at Hulme, in 1286, &c.) became extinct, in the male line, on the deaths of Sir Roger de Walsham, Knt., Lord of Gunton, cir. 1385; of John de Walsham, Lord of Brumstead, cir. 1408; and of Thomas Walsham, Lord of Witton, (who was returned in 1432, as one of the principal gentry of Norfolk,) cir. 1450. But in the reign of EDWARD I., Sir Robert de Northwold, Knt., brother of John de Northwold, Lord Abbot of Bury, gave the manor and advowson of Brockley, in Suffolk, to his (presumed) nephew, ALEXANDER DE WALSHAM, whose father, Ralph de Walsham, was grandson, it is supposed, of the Gilbert de Walsham who held the lordship of Mendham-Walsham, in Suffolk, of the Abbot of Bury, at the close of the 12th century. Alexander de Walsham became Lord of Brockley in 1303; and having m. Jane, dau. of William de Melford, d. before 1338, and was s. by his only son,

SIR ALEXANDER DE WALSHAM, Knt., Lord of Brockley, and one of the warriors of Cressy, by whom the present church at Brockley was built. Sir Alexander d. in 1349, and William de Walsham (his only son, by his wife, Alice) having predeceased him, his estates devolved on his infant grandson,

JOHN DE WALSHAM, of JOHN WALSHAM, Lord of Brockley, who was still under age in 1361, as the king presented to Brockley in that year, on account of the patron's minority. Shortly after 1384, however, John Walsham sold Brockley to the Stranges, and migrated into Cheshire; in which county, also, (like the Mainwarings, Trussels, and Pembridges, who held lordships both in Suffolk and Cheshire, of the honour of Chester, he appears to have possessed a good estate. His grandson and heir,

JOHN WALSHAM, Esq. of Presteigne, obtained considerable possessions in Radnorshire by his marriage with Mary, granddaun. and co-heiress of Sir Jenkin Hervey, Knt. of Llanvair, co. Montgomery; and by her left at his decease, in 1473, a son and successor.

RICHARD WALSHAM, Esq. of Presteigne, who m. Eleanor Powell; and was s. in 1496, by his only son,

JOHN WALSHAM, Esq. of Presteigne, who m. Jane, dau. and co-heiress of Thomas Chapman, Esq. of Discoed, a Herefordshire justice of the peace; and dying in 1524, left a son and successor,

Hereford, (the lineal descendant of Sir John de Knill, Knt., Lord of Knill in the 12th century,) became possessed of that ancient inheritance, in which he was s. in 1639, by his eldest son,

JOHN WALSHAM, Esq. of Knill Court, who was summoned, in 1643, to do knightly service for the manor of Knill, by attending the king in his wars. He m. Margaret, dau. of Roger Lyde, Esq. of Lyde's Court, co. Hereford; and dying in 1648, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM WARD, 6th son of Edward Ward, Esq. of Bixley, in that shire, was a wealthy goldsmith in London, and Jeweller to the Queen of King CHARLES I. Having a very ample fortune, he resided at Heal, in Staffordshire; and in his lifetime, Edward Sutton, Lord Dudley, bestowed Frances, his granddau. and heiress, upon

HUMBLE WARD, Esq., the said William Ward's son and heir; which Frances, upon the demise of her grandfather, Lord Dudley, in 1643, succeeded to that barony, (created by writ of summons, 25 Feb. 1342, 16th EDWARD III.,) and became

FRANCES, BARONESS DUDLEY; when her husband, Humble Ward, above mentioned, was knighted, and subsequently, 23 March, 1644, elevated to the peerage, as Tintage.

This ancient family traces its origin to John, baronial Lord of Weems, whence the surname was probably derived, who was younger son of the celebrated MACDUFF, Thane of Fife, the vanquisher of the tyrant MACBETH.

SIR MICHAEL DE WEMYSS was sent, according to Fordun, in 1390, with Sir Michael Soot, to Norway, by the lords of the regency in Scotland, to conduct the young Queen MARGARET to her dominions; but her majesty unfortunately died upon the journey, at the Orkneys. Sir Michael swore fealty to EDWARD I. in 1296, and he witnessed the act of settlement of the crown of Scotland by King ROBERT I., at Ayr, in 1315. From Sir Michael lineally descended*

SIR JOHN WEMYSS, of Wemyss, who m. 1st, in 1574, Margaret, eldest dau. of William, Earl of Morton, but by that lady had no issue; and 2ndly, in 1581, Anne, sister of James, Earl of Moray, by whom he had, with other issue.

SIR JOHN WEMYSS, of Wemyss, who was created a Baronet 29 May, 1625; and elevated to the peerage of Scotland, as Baron Wemyss, of Elcho, 1 April, 1638. His lordship was advanced to the dignities of EARL OF WEMYSS, in the co. Fife, and Lord Elcho and Methel, 25 June, 1638. He m. 3rdly, Margaret, dau. of John, 4th Earl of Rothes, (widow successively of James, Lord Balfour, and Francis, Earl of Buccleuch,) by whom he had an only surviving dau., MARGARET, in whose favour his lordship, having resigned his peerage to the crown, obtained 3 Aug. 1672, a new patent, conferring the honours of the family, with the original precedence, upon her ladyship. He d. in 1680, when the baronetcy became dormant, but the other dignities descended accordingly to his dau.,

WEMYSS OF BOGIE.

WEMYSS, SIR JAMES, of Bogie, co. Fife; s. to the Baronetcy of Nova Scotia on the demise of his father in 1821.

Lineage.

SIR JAMES WEMYSS, the first of the Wemyss's of Bogie, was the 2nd son of Sir David Wemyss, lord of that ilk, progenitor of the Earls of Wemyss. He obtained from his father, in patrimony, the lands of Bogie, with many others too numerous to specify. Sir James had the honour of knighthood conferred upon him by King JAMES VI., and was appointed vice-admiral of Scotland in 1591. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John Melville, of Raith, by whom he had several children, but none of them arrived at maturity except one son,

JAMES, who m. Margaret, dau. of Andrew Kinninmouth, of that ilk, by Helen, his wife, dau. of Henry, Lord Sinclair, and by her he had three sons and a dau.,

- 1 JOHN (Sir), of Bogie, who became his grandfather's heir.
- 2 David, of Balfarg, who carried on the line of the family, as hereafter mentioned.
- 3 Henry, whose descendants now represent the family, as shown hereafter.

Sir James d. in the year 1640, having lived to a very great age, and was s. by his grandson.

SIR JOHN WEMYSS, who had the honour of knighthood conferred on him by King CHARLES I. He m. twice: 1st, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Aiton, of that ilk; and 2ndly, a dau. of Sir Archibald Johnston, of Warriston, by neither of whom had he any children. He lived in great extravagance, and d. in 1679, leaving the estate overwhelmed with debt, and was s. by

SIR JAMES WEMYSS, eldest and only surviving son of David, of Balfarg, who was a great loyalist, and invariably attached to the interests of the Royal family. Being negligent of his private affairs, and a very bad economist, he greatly increased the encumbrances which were left upon the estate by his uncle. Upon the death of David, Earl of Wemyss, in 1680, without issue male, Sir James became the male representative; and, by the old investitures, would have succeeded both to the estates and honours of Wemyss, but Earl David having altered their destination, and having resigned them into the hands of the crown, obtained a new grant of the estate and honours to himself in life rent, and to his youngest dau. and her heirs male in fee. The Nova Scotia Baronetcy, however, which was conferred on his predecessor, 29 May, 1625, devolved on Sir James as the heir male (which he declined to assume), but he and his posterity ever after carried the arms of Wemyss simply, without any mark of cadence. He m. a dau. of Sir John Aiton, of that ilk, by whom he had three sons and one dau., who, with their families, all died, excepting his eldest son, John. Sir James was, in 1704, created a Baronet by Queen ANNE, by patent to him and his heirs male whosoever; and dying soon thereafter, was s. by his only son,

SIR JOHN WEMYSS, of Bogie, who m. a dau. of Sir William Lockhart, advocate, by whom he left one son,

SIR JAMES WEMYSS, of Bogie; who, being no economist, found himself, not many years after his succession, in such difficulties, as to be under the necessity of parting with the family estate, which had been handed down to him loaded with debt. He accordingly sold it, and retired to his house in Kirkaldy, where he died a bachelor a few years afterwards. Upon that event, the representation in the male line devolved on the descendants of HENRY WEMYSS, 3rd son of James, and grandson of Sir James Wemyss, the 1st of Bogie, the eldest surviving of whom was the REV. JAMES WEMYSS, minister of the parish of Burntisland, Fifeshire, his great-grandson, who m. Christian, dau. of Samuel Charteris, Esq., solicitor of customs for Scotland. By that lady he left several daughters and one son, SIR JAMES WEMYSS, the present baronet, who was served heir to the baronetcy on the death of his father.

Creation—12 Oct. 1704.

Arms—Quarterly: 1st and 4th, or, a Hon. rampant, gu. armed and langued, az.; 2nd and 3rd, arg., a Hon. ramp., sa.

Crest—A swan, ppr.

Seat—Anciently, Bogie, Fifeshire.

Residence—Edinburgh.

The family of Nogent le Rotrou (now Nugent) descends from the illustrious house of Bellesme, and, in consequence of such descent, is one of pre-eminent distinction. FOULKE DE BELLESME, together with his elder brother, Geoffrey de Bellesme, Count of Perche, were the sons of Rotrou de Bellesme, Lord of Nogent le Rotrou, Count of Perche, 4th in descent from William de Bellesme, Lord of Nogent le Rotrou, Count of Alençon and of Perche, A.D. 1028, and 7th in descent from Albert, 1st Count of Perche, A.D. 930. Both brothers accompanied WILLIAM the Conqueror from Normandy, and were with him at the battle of Hastings. Foulke de Bellesme was father of Gilbert de Nogent and Hugh de Nogent. The latter m. Emma, dau. and heiress of Walter de Lacy, Lord of Evis de Lacy, in Herefordshire, and assumed the name of Lacy. Their son, Gilbert, took the name of Lacy, and was father of Hugh de Lacy, Lord of Meath, in Ireland, and of Rosa de Lacy, who afterwards m. Gilbert de Nogent, 1st Baron of Delvin, her cousin. Gilbert de Nogent, the elder son of Foulke de Bellesme, was the grandfather of Gilbert de Nogent, 1st Baron of Delvin; and also of Hugh de Nogent, who obtained a grant of the lands of Bracklin. The branches of Alençon, Perche, Chateaudun, and Lacy, having merged, by heiresses or otherwise, in the crowns of France and England, the only male remaining branch of the house of Bellesme, or Nogent le Rotrou, is that of the Nugents in Ireland.

George Grenville Temple, Marquess of Buckingham, Earl Nugent, K.G.

RICHARD, 12th Baron Delvin, had summonses to parliament in the years 1486, 1490, and 1493, and was constituted by the lords-justices and council, in 1496, commander and leader in chief of all the forces destined for the defence of the counties of Dublin, Meath, Kildare, and Louth. His lordship was subsequently summoned to parliament in 1498, but failing to appear, he was fined forty shillings for non-attendance. In 1504, Lord Delvin accompanied the Earl of Kildare to the famous battle of Knocktough, in Connaught, and was the first to throw a spear into the ranks of the Irish, by which he chanced to kill one of the Burkes. In 1527, he was nominated lord-deputy of Ireland, and conducted the public affairs with integrity and honour, until treacherously taken prisoner by O'Connor. That native chieftain having made inroads upon the confines of the Pale, in 1528, Lord Delvin ordered the detention of a yearly rent due to him out of certain caracates of lands in the county of Meath; which procedure led to a conference at the castle of Rathin, belonging to Sir William d'Arcie, when by stratagem the lord-deputy was seized and detained prisoner, many of his attendants being slain, wounded, and taken. Walter Wellesley, of Dangan Castle, and Sir Walter Delahide, of Moyclare, were subsequently deputed to expostulate with O'Connor, and to procure his lordship's liberation, but ineffectually, when another lord-deputy was appointed to administer the government, and Lord Delvin remained in confinement until O'Connor's pension was restored. His lordship d. 28 Feb. 1537, and was s. by his grandson,

RICHARD, 13th Baron Delvin, who d. in 1562, leaving, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of Jenico Preston, Viscount Gormaston, a son and heir, CHRISTOPHER, 14th Baron of Delvin. This nobleman obtained a commission from the crown, in 1567, authorizing him to extirpate the O'Mores, sons of Ferrasse Mac Rosse, and their followers; but notwithstanding the zeal his lordship evinced in that service, he was himself sent prisoner to London, in 1580, and committed to the Tower, on suspicion of holding correspondence with the rebels of Leinster; but his innocence being soon afterwards fully established, he was enlarged, and returning to Ireland, was present in Sir John Perrott's parliament, in 1585. In 1588, he obtained a grant of the priory of Foure, county of Westmeath; and being, in 1592, appointed by commission leader of the forces raised in the county of Westmeath at the general hosting on the hill of Tarah, he brought with the Nugents, his kinsmen, twenty horsemen thither; and so acceptable were his services to Queen ELIZABETH, that, by privy seal, A.D. 7 May, 1597, she ordered him a grant in fee-farm of 80 many manors and forfeited lands in the counties of Cavan and Longford at his election as should amount to the crown-rent of £100 a year English. But this grant not having been executed during his life, on account of the troubles in Ireland, King JAMES, 10 Aug. 1603, ordered £60 in lands, per annum, to be granted to his widow and son. being concerned in a conspiracy with the Earls of Tyrone and Tyrconnel, and others, to surprise the castle of Dublin, out of the lord-deputy and council, dissolve the estate, and set up a government of their own. His lordship effected, however, his escape, by the assistance of his servant, and was subsequently proclaimed a traitor. Surrendering in the following year, he obtained a pardon under the great seal, (A.D. 1608,) and so entirely re-established himself in a few years in royal favour, that he was created EARL OF WESTMEATH, 4 Sept. 1621. WILLOUGHBY DE ERESBY.

WILLOUGHBY DE ERESBY, BARON, (Peter-Robert Drummond-Willoughby,) and Baron Gwydyr, of Gwydyr.

dyr, co. Carnarvon; and a privy-councillor; b. in March, 1782; m. 20 April, 1807, Clementina-Sarah, dau. and sole heiress of James Drummond, 1st Lord Perth, (a dignity now extinct,) by whom he has issue, ALBERIC, b. 25 Dec. 1821.

Clementina-Elizabeth, m. 8 Oct. 1827, to Gilbert-John Heathcote, Esq., M.P., eldest son of Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Bart.

Elizabeth-Susan.

Charlotte-Augusta-Arabella, m. 10 Aug. 1840, to Robert-John, present Lord Carrington.

In consequence of his alliance with the heiress of Lord Perth, his lordship assumed by sign-manual, 5 Nov. succeeding his marriage, the additional surname and arms of DRUMMOND. He inherited the Barony of Gwydyr,* as 2nd baron, at the decease of his father, 29 June, 1820; and the ancient Barony of WILLOUGHBY DE ERESBY, as 19th baron, upon the decease of his mother, 29 Dec. 1828, as well as the joint hereditary great-chamberlainship of England.

Lineage.

This is one of the very ancient baronies created by writ of summons, which pass being heritable by heirs male or female, at different periods into different families, and sometimes remain for centuries dormant; for in the instance of there being no male heir, but several female, the barony does not devolve upon the eldest dau., but upon all conjointly, and cannot, consequently, be inherited until there be a single heir to the whole, without the especial interference of the crown.

The lordship of Eresby, which constituted the head of this barony, was settled by WILLIAM the Conqueror, with other manors, upon

WALTER DE BEC, one of his companions in arms, who m. Agnes, dau. and heiress of Hugh, son of Pinco, Lord of Tathall, in the co. Lincoln, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY DE BEC, of Eresby, in the co. Lincoln, whose son and heir,

WALTER BEKE, m. Eva, niece and heiress of Walter de Grey, Archbishop of York, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY BEKE, who m. Hawise, sister of Thomas de Muleton, and was s. by his son,

WALTER BEKE, who left three sons,

JOHN, of whom presently.

Anthony, Bishop of Durham and Patriarch of Jerusalem. (For a more detailed narrative of this celebrated prelate and the family of Bec, see BURKE's Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

Thomas, Lord Bishop of St. David's.

The eldest son and heir,

JOHN BEKE, had licence of King EDWARD I. in the 4th year of that monarch's reign, to make a castle of his manor-house at Eresby, and was summoned to parliament amongst the barons of the realm, in the 23rd and 24th of the same reign; dying in seven years afterwards, his lordship left issue by his wife, Sarah, dau. of Thomas, Lord Furnival.

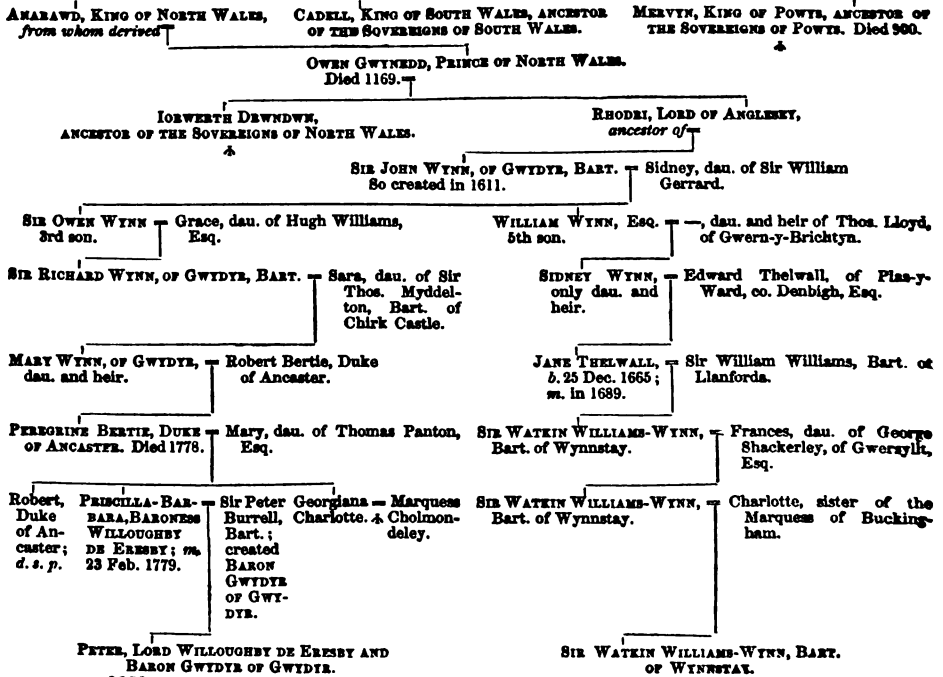

WALTER, his son and heir, Lord of Eresby, who survived his father but a few years, and d. issueless; when the BARONY of BEC of ERESBY fell into ABERANCE, as it still continues. Alice. Margaret, m. to Richard de Harcourt. Mary, d. em.

ALICE BEKE, the eldest dau. and one of the co-heiresses of her brother, m.

SIR WILLIAM DE WILLOUGHBY, Knt., great-grandson of Ralph de Willoughby, lord of the manor of Willoughby, in the co. Lincoln; which Sir William de Willoughby, in the 54th of HENRY III., was signed with the cross, together with many other persons of the first rank, who accompanied that monarch's son, Prince EDWARD, into the Holy Land. He d. in 1306, and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT WILLOUGHBY, who upon the decease of Anthony Beke, Bishop of Durham, s. as next heir to that prelate. This Robert Willoughby, being actively engaged in the French and Scottish wars of King EDWARD I., was summoned to parliament among the barons of the realm, in the 7th of EDWARD II., (26 July, 1313,) as LORD WILLOUGHBY DE ERESBY; and dying in three years afterwards, was s. by his son, (by Margaret, dau. of Edmund, Lord Deincourt.)

 RHODRI MAWR, KING OF WALES.
A.D. 848. Died 847.

JOHN WILLOUGHBY, then a minor, who was committed to the wardship of William, Lord Zouch of Harringworth, for which that nobleman paid a thousand marks to the king. In the 20th of EDWARD II., this John Willoughby received the honour of knighthood, by bathing, &c., having all the necessary appendages out of the king's wardrobe; and in the 1st of EDWARD III., making proof of his age, had livery of his lands, and was summoned to parliament from 27 Jan. 1332 to 10 March, 1349. His lordship subsequently distinguished himself in the Scottish wars, and was one of the principal commanders at the battle of Cressi. He m. Joan, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Rosceline, Knt., and was s. by his eldest son.

JOHN, 3rd Lord Willoughby de Eresby. This nobleman was engaged in the wars of Gascony in the 29th of EDWARD III., and in the next year participated in the glory of Poitiers. His lordship m. Cicely, dau. of Robert de Ufford, Earl of Suffolk; and dying in the 46th of EDWARD III., was s. by his son.

Lord Willoughby m. 1st, Alice, elder dau. of Sir William Skipwith, Knt., lord-chief-baron of the Exchequer, temp. EDWARD III., by whom he had,

WILLIAM, his successor. Robert.
Thomas, ancestor of the Lords Willoughby de Broke. (See that dignity.)
John. Bryan.

His lordship m. 2ndly, Margery, dau. of William, Lord Zouch of Harringworth, but had no issue; and 3rdly, Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of William, Lord Latimer, and widow of John Nevil, Lord Raby, but it does not appear that he had any other issue. He d. 13th RICHARD II., and was s. by his eldest son.

WILLIAM, 5th baron. This nobleman was one of the peers in the parliament of the 22nd of RICHARD II., when that monarch made a formal resignation of his royal dignity. His lordship m. 1st, Lucy, dau. of Roger, Lord Strange of Knokin, by whom he had, (with four daus.)

ROBERT, his successor.

Thomas (Sir), a celebrated warrior, who received the honour of knighthood for his valour in the field. He m. Joan, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Richard Arundell, Knt., and was s. by his elder son, ROBERT (Sir), who was also found to be next heir male to his uncle, ROBERT, Lord Willoughby, in the 30th HENRY VI. He m. Cicely, 2nd dau. of Leo, Lord Welles; and dying in the 5th EDWARD IV., was s. by his elder son, ROBERT (Sir), who d. in two years afterwards, and was s. by his brother, CHRISTOPHER (Sir); who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Jenney, of Knottshall, Suffolk; and had issue, WILLIAM, his successor, of whom hereafter, as 9th LORD WILLOUGHBY; Christopher, from whom the Lords Willoughby of Parham derived; and Thomas, ancestor of Lord Middleton.

Lord Willoughby m. 2ndly, Joan, dau. of Thomas Holland, Earl of Kent, (by Joan, surnamed the Fair Maid of Kent, only dau. of Edmund of Woodstock, Earl of Kent, son of King EDWARD II.,) and widow of Edmund of Langley, Duke of York, son of King EDWARD III. (Her ladyship, after Lord Willoughby's decease, m. a 3rd husband, Henry, Lord Scrope; and a 4th, Henry Bromfielde, Lord Vesey.) Lord Willoughby de Eresby d. in the 11th of HENRY IV., and was s. by his elder son.

ROBERT, 6th baron. This nobleman took a distinguished part in the French wars of HENRY V., and participated in the triumph of AGINCOURT. He was subsequently at the storming of the castle of Caen, and at the protracted siege of Roan. In the reign of HENRY VI., he shared the laurels of Vernoll; and with Sir John Falstolf, soon afterwards gallantly defeated a projected surprise of Charles de Villiers. For all these eminent services his lordship was created Lord Willoughby of Monbray and Beaumegui, and Earl of Vendome and Beaumont, and installed a knight of the most noble order of the Garter. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, youngest dau. of John Montacute, Earl of Salisbury, by whom he had an only dau., JOAN. He m. 2ndly, Maud, dau. of Sir Richard Stanhope, Knt., and cousin and co-heiress of Ralph, Lord Cromwell of Tattshall, but had no other issue. His lordship dying in the 30th of HENRY VI., the honours acquired by himself expired, while the barony devolved upon his only dau. and heiress,

JOAN WILLOUGHBY, who m.

SIR RICHARD WELLES, Knt., who bore in her right the title of Lord Willoughby de Eresby, and was summoned to parliament as 7th baron, in 1455. His lordship was son of Leo, 6th Baron Welles, who fell in one of the conflicts between the houses of York and Lancaster, and was attainted in 1461. Lord Willoughby obtained a full restoration, however, in blood and honours in 1465; but fell a victim afterwards himself to the vibrations of fortune between the Red and White Roses, and was beheaded in 1469, when he was s. by his only son.

ROBERT, 8th Lord Welles and 8th Lord Willoughby; who coming into immediate conflict with the Yorkists, under King EDWARD IV., at Stamford, and suffering a signal defeat, was taken prisoner and beheaded, (refer to BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) The baronies then devolved upon the last lord's only sister and heiress.

JOANE WELLES, who m.

RICHARD HASTINGS, and he was summoned to parliament as Baron Welles; but dying without issue, in 1503, and his lady in three years afterwards, the ancient Barony of Willoughby reverted to her ladyship's kinsman, (refer to Sir Thomas Willoughby, younger son of WILLIAM, 5th baron.)

ROBERT, 11th baron; who claimed the Earldom of Oxford and the great-chamberlainship of England in right of his mother, but succeeded in establishing his pretensions to the chamberlainship only; he was, however, created Earl of Lindsay 23 Nov. 1626. In 1630, his lordship was installed a Knight of the Garter; and at the breaking out of the civil war, was nominated commander-in-chief of the king's forces. Of this nobleman Lord Clarendon says, "He was a man of great honour, and spent the youth and vigour of his age in military actions and commands; and albeit he indulged to himself great liberties of life, yet he still preserved a very good reputation with all men, and a very great interest in his country, as appears by the supplies he and his son brought to the king's army, the companies of his own regiment of foot being commanded by the principal knights and gentlemen of Lincolnshire, who engaged themselves in the service principally out of their personal affection for him." The Barony of Willoughby de Eresby merged in this Earldom of Lindsay and the Dukedom of Ancaster, to which honour the 4th earl was elevated, until the demise of Robert, 4th duke, without issue, in 1779, (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) when the Dukedom of Ancaster and the Marquise and Earldom of Lindsay reverted to his grace's uncle, the Hon. Brownlow Bertie, with whom those honours expired in 1809; and the ancient Barony of Willoughby de Eresby fell into abeyance between his grace's sisters and heiresses.

Lineage.

The name of Wylmot, or Wilmot, is very ancient in England. Speed mentions Wilmot, a nobleman of Sussex in the time of King ÆTHELRED. The family before us was settled, antecedently to the Conquest, in Nottinghamshire, from whence it removed into the co. Derby in 1533, where, according to Sir William Dugdale, it flourished in great repute.

The family represented by this peerage and the house of Cholmondeley derive from a common progenitor, namely, ROBERT FITZHUUGH, of Malpas, in Cheshire, one of the barons of Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester, temp. WILLIAM the Conqueror. (See EGERTON OF EGERTON AND OULTON, Bart.)

SIR THOMAS EGERTON, of Egerton and Oulton, 7th baronet, (for preceding details, see EGERTON, Bart.) was elevated to the peerage, 15 May, 1784, by the title of Baron Grey de Wilton, of Wilton Castle, in the co. Hereford. His lordship m. in 1769, Eleanor, youngest dau. and co-heiress of Sir Ralph Asheton, Bart., by whom he had several children, but one only to survive; namely, ELEANOR, who m. in 1794, Robert, Viscount Belgrave, afterwards MARQUESS OF WESTMINSTER. WINCHESTER, MARQUESS OF, (John Paulet,) Earl of Wiltshire, and Baron St. John of Basing; b. 3 June, 1801, lieut.-colonel in the army; s. his father as 14th marquess, 29 Nov. 1843. His lordship is premier marquess of England.

Tintage.

This family is said by Collins to derive its surname from the Lordship of PAULET, in Somersetshire, whereof its progenitor, Hercules, Lord of Tournon, in Picardy, became proprietor, upon settling in England, in the reign of HENRY I. But by Colliason's history of that county, it appears that Walter de Dowal owned this lordship in the time of the CONQUEROR, and that from him it descended to the Paganel, Fitzhardings, Gaunts, and Gournays. It is certain, however, that the Paulets enjoyed, from a very early period, a manor in this parish, and hence doubtless took their surname.

SIR JOHN PAULET, Knt., m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir John Creedy, of Creedy, and dying in 1378, left two sons, Sir Thomas, the elder, progenitor of the Earls Paulet; and

WILLIAM PAULET, (the younger son,) of Melcomb Paulet, in Somersetshire, serjeant-at-law, from whom sprang the extinct ducal house of Bolton, and

SIR WILLIAM PAULET, great-grandson of John Paulet, Esq., by Constance de Poynings, one of the co-heiresses of her brother, Sir Thomas de Poynings, Lord St. John of Basing, (at the decease of which nobleman, the Barony of St. John of Basing and Poynings fell into abeyance, see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) This Sir William enjoying the confidence of King HENRY VIII., was elevated by that monarch to the peerage, 9 March, 1538-9, as Baron St. John of Basing, and at his majesty's decease was appointed one of the executors to his will. Lord St. John continuing a leading political character, was created in the ensuing reign, 12 Jan. 1549-50, Earl of Wiltshire, and 12 Oct. 1551, MARQUESS OF WINCHESTER. He was installed a knight of the Garter, and held the important office of Lord-Treasurer of England during the reigns of EDWARD VI., and Queens MARY and ELIZABETH. The marquis being asked how he had contrived to preserve the treasurership through so long a series of changeable years, replied, by being a willow, not an oak. This nobleman erected the beautiful and magnificent seat called Basing, in the co. Southampton. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Alderman Sir William Capel, Knt. of the city of London; and dying at the advanced age of ninety-seven, 10 March, 1572, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 2nd marquis; who had been summoned to parliament in the lifetime of his father, as Lord St. John, and by that title was one of the peers who sat, 10 Jan. 1571-2, on the trial of Thomas Howard, Duke of Norfolk. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Robert Willoughby, Lord Broke, by whom he had four sons and two daus.; and 2ndly, Winifred, dau. of Sir John Burgess, Knt., lord-mayor of London, and widow of Sir Robert Sackville, Knt., but had no other issue. The marquis d. in Feb. 1628, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

JOHN, 5th marquis; who at the commencement of the civil wars, hoisted the royal banner on the battlements of Basing, and there triumphantly maintained it so long as a single stone of the noble mansion remained; but that, after a protracted siege, falling by storm into the hands of the Usurper, was burnt to the ground, and the marquis's property, in plate, jewels, &c., destroyed by the rebels, to the amount of £200,000. His lordship had, however, the satisfaction of living to witness the restoration of the monarchy. He d. in 1674, and was buried at Englefield, where a beautiful inscription by Dryden, appears upon his monument. His lordship m. 1st, Jane, dau. of Thomas, Vis-

He had the spleen to an high degree, and affected an extravagant behaviour; for many weeks he would not open his mouth till such an hour of the day when he thought the air was pure. He changed the day into night, and often hunted by torchlight, and took all sorts of liberties to himself, many of which were very disagreeable to those about him. He was a man of profuse expense, and of a most ravenous avarice to support that; and though he was much hated, yet he carried matters before him with such authority and success, that he was in all respects the great middle of the age." It is the opinion of Sir William Dugdale, that this family is descended from a common ancestor with the Herberts, Earls of Pembroke; namely, Henry Fitz-Herbert, chamberlain to King HENRY I.; and Leland says, "The Finches that be now say, that their proper name is Herbert, and that, with marriage of the Finche's heir, they took Finche's name. One Vincent Finch, in HENRY IV.'s days, recovered by a suit the manor of —, by Winchelsea." And in an old inscription in Braborne church the name is written Herbert, alias Finch.

T i n e a g e.

The family of Worsley, or De Workesley, as it was anciently written, is of high antiquity, being descended from Sir Elias De Workesley, lord of the manor of Workesley, (now Worsley,) about seven miles from Manchester, at the time of the Norman conquest. He is mentioned in an old chronicle as attending Robert, Duke of Normandy, in his expedition for the recovery of the Holy Land, and is said to have been buried at Rhodes. This family continued to hold large possessions in the said county till the year 1377, in the reign of RICHARD II., when Elizabeth, daughter of Geoffrey Workesley, being found by an inquisition to have been born out of marriage, the lordship came to Sir John Massey, who had married the sister of Sir Geoffrey; however, the estate was again taken possession of by Robert Worsley, and Thomas Brereton, Esq. of the county of Chester, who married the daughter and heiress of Sir John Massey, recovered it from Robert Worsley by a suit in Chancery; it was afterwards disposed of to the Lord-Chancellor Egerton, from whom it descended to the Duke of Bridgewater, who made the canal from the mill in the township of Worsley over the river Irwell, at Barton Bridge, to convey coals from his mines to Manchester. The family we are now treating of branched off about the year 1307, in the reign of EDWARD II., and are still in receipt of quit and chief rents over the townships of Worsley, Bedford, Astley, &c., in Lancashire; the remaining branch of the family continued lords of Worsley Hall, in the said county, till the 3rd of HENRY VIII. Tintage.

The Williams-Wynns of Wynnstay have for several generations enjoyed preeminent rank in the principality of Wales, and are second to none among the Cambrian families in territorial possessions and political influence.

I. WILLIAM WILLIAMS, Esq., an eminent lawyer, recorder of Chester, and speaker of the House of Commons in the reign of CHARLES II., knighted by King JAMES II. upon his appointment to the solicitor-generalship, and created a Baronet 6 July, 1688. Sir William, while speaker, was tried upon an information brought against him in the Court of King's Bench, for a libel, in causing to be printed (as speaker of the House of Commons) the information of Thomas Dangerfield, Gent. ; and although he pleaded the privilege of parliament, and that he had acted in obedience to the orders of the house, he was nevertheless fined ten thousand pounds, the greater part of which he was eventually compelled to pay. Sir William was constituted one of the king's council after the Revolution, and terminated his political life by the introduction of the Treating Act, which passed into a law, and still continues one of the safeguards to the purity of parliament. Family of Wynm.

To the House of Gwydir, now represented maternally in one of its branches by the Williams-Wynns of Wynnstay, must be conceded the first rank in Cambrian genealogy. This eminent family deduces male descent through their immediate ancestor, Rhodri, Lord of Anglesey, younger son of Owen Gwynedd, Prince of North Wales, from Anarawd, King of North Wales, eldest son of Rhodri Mawr, King of Wales. This last monarch, the descendant of a long line of regal ancestors, succeeded to the crown of Powys on the demise, in 843, of his father, Mervyn Vrych, King of Powys, and by inheritance and marriage acquired the Kingdoms of North Wales and South Wales. He was slain A.D. 876, and left, by Angharad, his wife, sister and heiress of Gwgan ap Meuric, Lord of Caeridigan, three sons,

I. ANARAWD AP RHODRI MAWR, of whose line we have to treat.

II. Cadell ap Rhodri Mawr, King of South Wales, ancestor of the SOVEREIGNS OF SOUTH WALES.

III. Mervyn ap Rhodri Mawr, King of Powys, who d. A.D. 900; progenitor of the SOVEREIGNS OF POWYS: of whose dynasty an account will be found in BURKE'S Landed Gentry, under the lineage of one of their most distinguished scions, the HUGHES or GWERCLAS, BARONS of KYMMER-YN-EDERNION, now represented in the male line by WILLIAM HUGHES, Esq., eldest son of the late William Hughes, Esq. of Pen-y-Clawdd, co. Denbigh; and in the female line by RICHARD WALMESLEY LLOYD, Esq., eldest son of the late Richard-Hughes Lloyd, Esq. of Plymog, co. Denbigh, Gwerclas, co. Merioneth, and Washall, co. York. (Refer to VAUGHAN of NANNAU, Bart.)

The eldest son,

ANARAWD AP RHODRI MAWR, King of North Wales,

whose palace was at Aberfraw, in Anglesey, d. in 917, leaving issue, I. IDWAL VACH AP ANARAWD; and, II. Ellis ap Anarawd, slain, in 940, with his brother Idwal. Anarawd was s. by his elder son, IDWAL VOEL, King of North Wales, who was slain with his brother Ellis, in 940, fighting against the Anglo-Danes. By his cousin, Avandreg, dau. of Mervyn, King of Powys, Idwal left with other issue, an elder son,

MEURIC AP IDWAL VOEL, who was taken prisoner in the defeat sustained in 977, and deprived of his eyes by Iago, who suffered him to languish in prison, where he died leaving a son,

IDWAL AP MEURIC, who was in 992 raised by the people to his hereditary throne of North Wales, of which he had been dispossessed by Meredith ap Owen, King of Powys. In the following year, Swane, a Danish chieftain, landed in North Wales; and Idwal in resisting him was slain. His only son,

IAGO AP IDWAL, excluded from the throne by Llewelyn ap Seisyllt, husband of Angharad, Queen of Powys, was restored in 1021, on the decease of that prince. Iago ap Idwal, who was slain in 1037, in a battle fought between him and Griffith, King of Powys, son of Llewelyn ap Seisyllt, left an only son,

CYNAN AP IAGO, excluded from the throne by Griffith ap Llewelyn, who also usurped the kingdom of South Wales. Cynan ap Iago, after two gallant and unsuccessful attempts to recover his crown, died, leaving an eldest son,

GRIFFITH AP CYNAN, who, after several ineffectual endeavours to reinstate himself in his dominions, which had been usurped by Trahaern ap Caradoc, formed an alliance in 1079 with Rhys ap Tewdwr, Prince of North Wales, for the vindication of the rightful succession. The two princes met Trahaern on the mountain of Carno, where an action ensued, which terminated in the defeat and death of the usurper, and the restoration of Griffith and Rhys. Griffith ap Cynan, who was FOUNDER OF THE I. ROYAL TRIBE OF WALES, bore as his ensigns "Gules, three lions, passant in pale, argent, armed, azure." He d. in 1136, at the age of 82, and lies buried on the south side of the great altar in the cathedral of Bangor, having reigned fifty-seven years. This monarch m. Angharad, dau. of Owen ap Edwin, Lord of Tegaingl, (see BURKE'S Landed Gentry, OWEN OF BETTWS,) and had issue, I. OWEN GWYNEDD; II. Cadwalader ap Griffith, Lord of Caeridigan, who d. 1172, a distinguished participator in the events of his times. Griffith ap Cynan was succeeded in the throne by his eldest son,

OWEN GWYNEDD AP GRIFFITH, Prince of North Wales, a chivalrous and distinguished monarch, who, after a popular reign of thirty-two years, died in Dec. 1169, and was buried at Bangor. Owen Gwynedd, who bore "Vert, three eagles displayed, in fesse, or," m. twice; 1st, Gwladys, dau. of Llowarch ap Trahaern, Lord of Pembroke, and was by her father of IORWERTH DRWYNDWN AP OWEN GWYNEDD; excluded from the throne, first by his illegitimate brother, Howel, and subsequently by his brother David, son of Owen Gwynedd, by his second marriage. The following details are compiled from original papers in the possession of Patrick Chalmers, Esq. of Auldbar, and other authentic sources, particularly from the Diary of Sir Peter Young, Knt., from which extracts are given in his Life by Smith.

JOHN YOUNG, burgess of Edinburgh in 1541, m. Margaret Scrymgeour, of the ancient and noble family of Scrymgeour, and sister of Henry Scrymgeour, the celebrated scholar, professor of philosophy, and of civil law, at Geneva. Their father was Scrymgeour of Glasswell, the descendant of an immediate branch of the Scrymgeours of Diddue, who were created hereditary standard-bearers of the kings of Scotland, in 1067, by ALEXANDER I., and became afterwards Earls of Dundee. John Young d. at Dundee, in 1583, in the 86th year of his age; his wife d. some years previously. Sir Peter Young says "his family was an ancient one," but gives no details. There appears to have been a family of that name settled in Forfarshire in the fourteenth century. John Young had four sons and two daus., who survived him, viz.,

- i. John, rector of the church of Dysart.
- ii. PETER, of whom presently.
- iii. Alexander, who m. the dan. of Arnott, of that ilk: he was many years usher of the privy chamber to King JAMES VI., and d. in 1603, leaving his estates in Elgin and Perthshire to his brother Peter.
- iv. Henry, an officer in the service of the King of Sweden, killed at Schonen, and d. before his father.
- v. Isabella. vi. Johanna.

The 2nd son,

SIR PETER YOUNG, was b. at Dundee, 15 Aug. 1544. On the 4th Jan. 1569, Peter Young was appointed assistant tutor, with George Buchanan, to King JAMES VI. He appears to have attracted the notice of Cecil early, as we find both him and Buchanan pensioners of Queen ELIZABETH. In 1598, he was appointed one of the commissioners for visiting the universities of St. Andrews, Aberdeen, and Glasgow. On the 20th July, 1586, he was sent ambassador to Denmark. In 1587, he was again sent, with Patrick Vaux, of Barnbarroch, to that court. On the 25th Oct. 1589, he accompanied the king on his voyage to Norway, and thence to Denmark, to see the Princess ANNE; this was a secret voyage—his majesty wishing much to see the princess, to whom he was then affianced; Patrick Vaux also went with the king. The royal nuptials took place soon afterwards. In 1594, he was sent on a third embassy to Denmark, one to the Dukes of Mecklenburgh and Brunawick being joined with it. In June, 1595, King JAMES appointed eight commissioners for managing his affairs and household, thence called "The Octavianians," of whom Peter Young was one. On 19th Feb. 1605, Peter Young was knighted by the king, then JAMES I. of Great Britain, in the palace of Whitehall, receiving at the same time a grant of a pension of £800 per annum for life. In April, the queen appointed Sir Peter Young one of her commissioners for managing her revenues and affairs in Scotland. He appears to have been much favoured by her majesty on many occasions; and on the marriage of his eldest dau., she honoured the nuptials with her presence.—Diary. Sir Peter Young m. in 1577, Elizabeth Gibb, dau. of John Gibb, a gentleman of the king's bedchamber, and by her had seven sons and five daus., viz.,

- i. JAMES, his heir, } twins.
- ii. Henry,
- iii. Peter, and iv. Robert, (twins.) Robert d. at Westminster in 1620, after his return from the Holy Land, having passed some years travelling in the East.
- v. Patrick. vi. John.
- vii. Michael.
- viii. Maria, m. to John Douglas, of Tilliequillie, father of Sir John Douglas, Knt. of Tilliequillie.
- ix. Margaret, m. to David Lindsay, of Kinnitha, Forfarshire.
- x. Frederica, } twins.
- xi. Johanna,
- xii. Anna—"And so God blessed me with a twelfth child."—Diary.

His wife d. in 1595, and he m. 2ndly, Dame Janet Murray, relict of Lord Torphichen, and dau. of Murray of Polmaise. This lady d. six months after their marriage. Sir Peter Young m. 3rdly, about the year 1600, Margery Nairne, dau. of Nairne, of Sandyfurde, in Fife. By this marriage he had four daus.; of whom Nicola m. David Boswell, of Balmuto, Fife. Sir Peter Young purchased the lands of Easter Seaton, near Abroath, in Forfarshire, in the year 1580, and gradually acquired by purchase and by grants, other lands in the same county. He was, for many years, king's almoner for Scotland, and retired from public life some years before his death. He appears to have enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his royal and munificent master till his majesty's death. On taking leave of the king, prior to his journey to the north, he was charged by his majesty with a copy of his works, to deliver with his own hands to the Archbishop of York. In 1611, he writes from the palace of Holyrood a letter of thanks to the king, for the many favours bestowed on himself and family; a copy of this letter in Latin is in the Diary. Smith says, "Sir Peter Young was a man of distinguished abilities and finished education. He lived in habits of friendship and intimacy with many of the most eminent men in Europe, and was engaged in extensive correspondence with them. His uncle, Henry Scrymgeour, bequeathed him his valuable library, rich in Greek MSS. It was brought to Scotland in 1578. What became of it after his death is uncertain; probably the most valuable portions of it passed into public collections, through his son, Dr. P. Young." Sir Peter Young d. at his house at Easter Seaton, in 1628, in the 84th year of his age, and was buried in the church of St. Rigeons, where his monument, with a suitable inscription, is still extant. He was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, afterwards SIR JAMES YOUNG, Knt. He m. 1st, Isabella, dau. of Arbutnot of Findownie, and had by her two sons,

- i. Charles. ii. PETER.

He m. 2ndly, Jane Stewart, by whom he had one dau.,

- iii. Anne, m. to George Seaton, of Winne.

Sir James was one of the gentlemen of the bedchamber to the king, and had a grant of 1000 acres of land given him in the county of Longford, Ireland. He was s. by his 2nd son,

PETER YOUNG, who also succeeded to the estate of his uncle, the Dean of Winchester. He m. Isabel, dau. of Ochterlony of Pittenweam, and had one son and two daus.,

- i. ROBERT, who succeeded him.
- ii. Margaret, who m. in 1659, Sir John Forbes, Bart. of Craigevar Castle, co. Aberdeen, representative of a branch of the noble house of Forbes, Lord Forbes, ancestors of the Earls of Granard, in Ireland.
- iii. Another dau., m. Guthrie, afterwards of Westhall, from whom are descended the Guthries of Guthrie, and of Craige.

In 1620, Robert Young and his father, Peter Young, conjointly, sold the estate of Easter Seaton and other lands, and purchased part of the estates of Auldbar from Sir James Sinclair, completing the purchase in 1678. Robert m. Anne Graham, dau. of Sir William Graham, of Claverhouse, and sister of the celebrated Viscount Dundee, and had issue,

- i. David, who succeeded him, and who had for his tutor the distinguished scholar, Ruddiman, who speaks highly of his pupil's gentlemanlike accomplishments. On his marriage with Margery, dau. of Fotheringham of Powie, his father conveyed to him, in fee, the estates of Auldbar, reserving to himself the life rent: he was s. by his son Robert in 1743, who sold the lands and barony of Auldbar, in 1753, to William Chalmers, of Aberdeenshire.
- ii. Anne, m. to Barclay of Balmakurne.

A younger son of David Young was living in Aberdeen in 1758. Nothing more is known of this branch. Alexander Young, Bishop of Edinburgh, translated to Ross, was one of the Seaton family: he d. in 1644, a prelate of distinguished learning and piety. John Young, also of this family, was elected Bishop of Argyll in 1661, but d. before he was consecrated. (See KAIRN'S Catalogue of Scotch Bishops.)

Of Sir Peter Young's younger sons, the 3rd, Peter, was attached to the train of Lord Spencer; sent on a special mission, in 1628, to invest Gustavus Adolphus with the order of the Garter, and was knighted by that monarch, who also granted him permission to quarter the arms of Sweden with his own proper arms. He was gentleman-usher to King CHARLES I., and d. unm. in 1661. Patrick, 5th son, was librarian to King JAMES I. and CHARLES I.; rector of Hayes, in Middlesex, and Lannerage, in Denbighshire, and prebendary and treasurer of St. Paul's. He was educated at St. Andrews, where he took the degree of M.A. in 1603. In 1605, he was admitted ad eundem at Oxford, where he pursued his studies in the Greek language, and became a profound scholar. Dr. Patrick Young d. in 1652, leaving two daus. co-hesresses: the elder, Elizabeth, m. John Atwood, Esq. of Broomfield, Kent; and the 2nd, Sir Samuel Bowes, Knt. John Young, the 6th son, after completing his education, entered the church, and was afterwards Dean of Winchester. He was educated at Cambridge. Dr. John Young was chaplain to King JAMES I., and bore his majesty's commission in the Assemblies at Perth, in 1617 and 1618. He also took an active part in the Scotch parliament, held at Edinburgh in 1620; and was much employed by the king in his dealings with the Scotch clergy. He founded a school at St. Andrews. Some of the descendants of this family came to Ireland, and settled in Ulster; of these, the ancestor of Sir William Young, Bart., was

THE REV. JOHN YOUNG, a clergyman of the established church. His mother, Isabella, was a sister of Sir Peter Young, of Easter Seaton, who m. a kinsman and namesake. In the reign of King JAMES I. of England, this Rev. John Young m., in Scotland, a dau. of the Earl of Douglas, and went to the north of Ireland, where they settled; after some time he obtained church preferment, and also considerable landed property, through the lady's father, by an exchange of lands in the counties of Donegal and Derry, with Lord Abercorn, for an equivalent in Scotland, as a settlement on his dau. and her family. Part of these lands are now in the possession of Richard Young, Esq. of Coolkeiragh, their lineal descendant. The Rev. John Young had a numerous family. His eldest son, JAMES YOUNG, resided in the county of Donegal, where he married, and had several children, of whom nine were sons. Being a man of good fortune, much attached to the protestant cause, he was not only an active partisan at the siege of Derry, but was enabled frequently to send aid to the besieged during their arduous struggle. He was, in consequence, one of the citizens of Derry attainted by JAMES II.

JOHN YOUNG, Esq. of Coolkeiragh, the great-grandson of this James Young, m. Catharine Knox, granddau. of the Right Rev. Andrew Knox, the 2nd Bishop of Raphoe after the Reformation, who d. in that see in 1633. By this marriage the estate of Lough Esk,* co. Donegal, came into the possession of Thomas, a younger son of John Young, to whom, while in infancy, it was willed by his uncle, Thomas Knox. This

This barony having fallen into abeyance upon the decease of Sir Cecil Bishopp, Lord de la Zouche, 11 Nov. 1828, the crown was pleased to terminate the same in favour of his lordship's elder dau. (the present baroness) immediately after.

Lineage.

The family of Bishopp deduces its pedigree from WALTER BISHOPP, who came into England with King HENRY II. from Gascony. From this individual, through a long line of distinguished persons, lineally descended

THOMAS BISHOPP, Esq., representative in parliament for Gatton, in Surrey, in 1549; who m. Elizabeth, relict of William Scot, Esq., and only dau. of Sir Edward Belknap, Knt., privy councillor to Kings HENRY VII. and HEN. WILLIAM LA ZOUCHE was called to parliament, as Baron De la Zouche, or Zeuche. From this nobleman the barony descended in regular succession to

EDWARD LA ZOUCHE, the 11th baron; summoned to parliament from 2 April, 1571, to 17 May, 1625, in which latter year he died, leaving two daus., namely,

Lineage.

This family is of very ancient German extraction, and was for ages seated at Feldkirk, in the Austrian Tyrol, and also at the Château de La Feld, in Alsace; of which latter place extensive ruins still remain, and where, as early as the eleventh century, Hubert, Count de la Feld, had the honour to receive Sr. Leo (Pope Leo IX.) and his court, on their way from Mayence to consecrate the cathedral at Strasbourg.

Two succeeding Counts of this family were great benefactors to the cathedral church of Strasbourg, and lie buried in the chantries which they founded there. They were styled "Comites," or Counts de la Feld; and from this common origin have sprung the Barons Von der Feld of Estonia, the Counts de la Feld of Breslau and of Westphalia, now extinct, and the branch settled in England.

The titles of this family have been confirmed at Rome, A.D. 1578, and subsequently, A.D. 1697, by INNOCENT XII. Previously to this latter period, Count John de la Feld, ancestor to the present Count, having greatly distinguished himself in the imperial service against the Turks, and having taken a standard from the enemy at the battle of Zenta, in Hungary, was created by the Emperor LEOPOLD I. a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, the patent bearing date 1695, and the dignity to descend to his heirs for ever. A granddau. of this Count, namely, Magdalen, dau. of Count Join, was m. to Joseph, Baron Von Häffelin, whose son, Theodore, Baron Von Häffelin, having m. his cousin, Countess Mary de la Feld, was father to his Eminence and Excellency the Cardinal Casimir Von Häffelin, Bavarian minister at Rome in the Pontificate of Pius VII.

Baron Dimsdale s. his father 25 Sept. 1825. He is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the county of Hertford, a magistrate for Essex and the liberty of St. Albans. He was sheriff of the latter county in 1830-1.

Lineage.

THOMAS DIMSDALE, M.D., of the Priory, in the co. of Hertford, b. 29 May, 1712, member for the borough of Hertford in two successive parliaments, was grandson of Robert Dimsdale, who accompanied William Penn to America in 1684, and fourth son of Sir John Dimsdale, Knt. of Theydon Gernon, in Essex, by Susanna, dau. of Thomas Bowyer, Esq. of Albury Hall, Herts. Doctor Dimsdale in 1745, made a voluntary and gratuitous offer of his services as assistant to the medical staff of the army sent to the north, under the command of the Duke of Cumberland, to suppress the Scotch rebellion; and he continued in the service until after the surrender of Carlisle to the king's forces, when he received the thanks of his royal highness the commander-in-chief. The ample fortune Dr. Dimsdale enjoyed had induced him to retire for some years from the practice of his profession, when his high reputation in the art of inoculating for the small-pox having reached the Empress CATHERINE of Russia, he was especially invited, in 1762, by her majesty to the court of St. Petersburg, for the purpose of inoculating herself and the grand duke, her son, which invitation he accepted, and acquitted himself so much to the satisfaction of his imperial patients, that her majesty rewarded his services with the appointment of actual councillor of state, and physician to her imperial majesty, with an annuity of £500 per annum, conferring upon him, at the same time, a Barony of the Russian empire, with the title of "Honourable" attached, to be borne by him and the eldest of his lawful descendants in succession. She likewise gave him the sum of £10,000 sterling, with £2000 for the expenses of his journey, and presented him with a miniature of herself and the grand duke, richly set with diamonds. His second son, Nathaniel, who had accompanied him to the Russian court, had conferred upon him, at the same time, a similar dignity, with similar limitations. Her imperial majesty was further pleased to grant to both father and son, and their lawful descendants, permission to add to their family arms a black wing of the displayed eagle of the Russian imperial coat, on a gold shield placed in the centre, with the usual helmet over the shield, surmounted by the baron's coronet. A patent in accordance was ordered by the empress to be made out, embellished with her majesty's portrait and other splendid ornaments, and delivered to the Barons Dimsdale. Baron Dimsdale w. 1st, Mary, only child of Nathaniel Brassey, Esq. of Radford House, Herts, but by that lady, who d. in 1744, had no issue. Lineage.

The history of this family was published at Paris, in 1647, in a folio volume, entitled "Genealogia et Historica Grimaldæ Gentis Arbor;" it is also found in that valuable and extraordinary work of Henning's, "Theatrum Genealogicum," printed at Magdeburgh, 1598; being, perhaps, the first book ever published on the subject. It is likewise in Le Père Anselme's "Histoire Généalogique de la Maison Royale de France et des Pairs," 1728; and, amongst many others, in Anderson's "Royal Genealogies," published in London in 1736; and (at great extent) in the Marquis Adorno's "Genealogie delle Famiglie Nobili di Genova," published at Genoa in 1825.

From these works, it appears that this family is descended, in the male line, from the Merovingian Kings of France, having for ancestor, PHARAMOND, king of the West Franks in 490. It possesses the sovereign principality of Monaco, in Italy; it ranked (until the French revolution) as the third foreign princely house of France, in which kingdom it had the duchy peerage of Valentinois; it ranks as ducal in Spain, where, in 1790 and 1788, the Marquesses Giuseppe and Hieronimo Grimaldi were prime ministers; it has thrice married into the Imperial house of Lorraine, by one of which marriages it obtained the principality of Lixrain; it possessed the principality of Saint Catherine, in Sicily, and those of Hierace and Salerno (the latter being now in the royal family) in Naples; and it ranks as ducal in Genoa, where it has given several doges to the Republic, and ruled in ancient times as consuls.

The ninth in descent, in the male line, from PHARAMOND, king of the West Franks in 490, was GRIMOALDUS, (major-domus of his kinsman, CHILDEBERT III., King of France,) the brother of Charles Martel, who was grandfather of CHARLEMAONE. Grimoaldus was slain in 714. His wife was Theodilinda, dau. of Rabotus, Duke of Frisia.

The fifth in male descent from Grimoaldus was GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco, who obtained that sovereignty for his valour, from the Emperor ORTO, in 990, in chief and perpetual demesne. This small principality is situated at the confines of Nice, on the banks of the Mediterranean; it has descended in direct succession, and is held by the family at this day, ranking as one of the sovereign principalities of Europe. This Prince Grimaldi m. Crispina, the daughter of Rollo, Duke of Normandy, and from their younger son sprung the house of Bec Crispin, of Normandy, five members of which accompanied their kinsman, WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, into England, in 1066, and survived the battle of Hastings; three of whom are recorded in Domesday Book as tenants in chief. His descendant was,

GUIDO I., Prince of Monaco, who flourished in 990. He greatly assisted the Emperor HENRY with ships and three-oared galleys, belonging to the Republic of Genoa and to himself. He m. Rolanda, dau. of the Count d'Alençon. His descendant was,

GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco, who obtained many victories over the Saracens, and built the tower and town of Sinus Grimaldi, on which former the Grimaldi arms (lozengy, argent and gules) still remain carved. It is observed, in the small but interesting History of the Clifford Family, that these arms, and the lozengy shield of the kings of Bavaria, are as ancient as any in Europe; a manuscript essay is in existence, tracing them higher than any other arms now borne as hereditary. He m. Alexia-Commene, niece of the Emperor COMNENUS of Constantinople; and was s. by his son,

GUIDO II., Prince of Monaco, admiral of the Emperor HENRY IV., against the Milanese, in 1120. He m. Arasima, dau. of the Marquis of Savona and Final. He was s. by his eldest son, GRIMALDI. His younger son, Otholino, was captain of the archers to HENRY I., King of England, and to LOUIS, King of France, in the wars between Pope ALEXANDER and the Emperor FREDERICK I. Guido m. Louisa of Lorraine.

GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco, was consul or supreme chief of the Republic of Genoa in 1163, 1170, and 1184. He was prefect of the army of the Emperor LOTHAIRE II., admiral of the Republic of Genoa, and having joined many of his own ships to the fleet of the Republic, he fought and vanquished the Saracens and Pisanese. He was twice ambassador from Genoa to the Emperor FREDERICK, and in 1169, was ambassador to the Emperor of Morocco. He m. Antonia Pia, dau. to the Count of Provence. He was s. by his son, ORBERT; his younger son, Frederic, was councillor, chamberlain, and great master of the cross-bowmen of the King of England. The elder son,

ORBERT-GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco, was major-domus of the Emperor BARBAROSSA, and ambassador from him to King PHILIP of France, and to RICHARD I., King of England, in 1189, to induce them to join the Emperor in the enterprise of delivering the Holy Land. This occasioned the first parliament ever held since the Conquest, to be holden at Westminster in that year, being an assembly of bishops, earls, and barons, convened by RICHARD, to consider the proposal, which was readily agreed to. Obert built the church of St. Luke, at Genoa, for himself and his successors, which is used by the family at this day, and in which most of their baptisms and marriages have taken place. He was consul of Genoa in 1197, and admiral. He d. in 1223 or 1232, having m. Conradina, dau. of Obert Spinola, a Genoese patrician, by whom he had, amongst others, GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco.

INGO, of whom hereafter.

Luchena, m. to James, nephew of MICHAEL, Emperor of Constantinople.

The posterity of the last-named Grimaldi has continued in possession of the principality of Monaco to this day, and 't is not necessary to notice them otherwise than as connected with England.

REYNER II., GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco, who d. in 1314, was a celebrated admiral, adding fifteen of his own galleys to the fleet of the Republic, or to that of any sovereign with whom he entered into alliance. This appears by a record in the Tower of London, being a petition to the Lords Auditors deputed by the Kings of England and France, to redress the damages done by "Monsieur Reyner Grimbaud," who is stated to have taken upon him sovereign jurisdiction in the seas of England, as admiral of the French King, taking the people and merchants of England and other nations, and carrying them into France, where he caused them to abide his judgment and award concerning their goods and merchandize.

CHARLES GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco, is mentioned by Hume, in his History of England, to have commanded the Genoese archers in 1346, at the battle of Crecy, so fatal to the French. He was also, according to Froissart, frequently engaged against the English, and at Vannes, in Brittany, captured four, and sank three of their vessels. He was admiral of France, and assisted Philip with thirty of his own three-ored galleys of Monaco.

REYNER III., GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco, was commander, both by sea and land, of the forces of the Kings of Naples and France. It appears, from Rymer's Fœdera, that King EDWARD III. issued letters patent, in 1375, authorizing the purchase, from Ralf Basset, of Drayton, for 12,000 francs of gold, of his prisoner, Rayner Grimaldi, a Genoese, taken in the wars, in the last voyage which the king's dear son, the King of Castile, and the Duke of Lancaster, made in his service there.

In 1441, JOHN GRIMALDI, Lord of Buell, obtained by a decree of the parliament of France, the fief of the Countship of Saucerre, for his valour in an engagement with the English.

In 1485, King RICHARD III. granted letters patent, making JOHN GRIMALDI, of Genoa, a denizen.

In 1615, PETER-FRANCIS GRIMALDI, of Genoa, Lord of Buell, visited England. There is an interesting letter in the Sydney Papers, from Sir John Throgmorton to Viscount Lisle, acquainting him with the arrival in England of Signor Petro Grimaldi, in order that the King might be informed thereof, as the said "Italian gentleman braggeth infinitely of our dear master's favour unto him, and produceth a letter which he sayeth his majesty wrote lately unto him."

In 1697, the two COUNTS GRIMALDI arrived in England with the embassy, to congratulate WILLIAM III. on his accession.

In 1708, the MARSHAL GRIMALDI opposed Marlborough at the siege of Oudernarde.

In 1723, the MARQUIS GRIMALDI, of Genoa, was ambassador from the Republic to the King of England.

In 1767, the Duke of York, brother of King GEORGE the Third, died, whilst on his travels, at the Castle of Monaco; the Prince soon after visited the King in England, by invitation.

The French Revolution drew many members of this family to England—as the Bishop of Noyon, the Count Charles-Philip-Augustus Grimaldi, Prince Joseph Grimaldi, of Monaco, and the Princess of Monaco, who m. 2ndly, the late Prince de Condé, and d. in England.

We return now to INGO, second son of Obert, Prince of Monaco.

INGO GRIMALDI, Lord of Carross, Aymer, Stella, and Campastra, was one of the eight nobles governing Genoa in 1226, ambassador to Pavia in 1239, and to the King of Sicily in 1237. He m. 1st, Theodora Doria; 2ndly, Faustina, dau. of the Count of Vintimiglia. He had issue,

BOARELLO GRIMALDI, one of the eight nobles governing Genoa in 1269; ambassador to Provence in 1268, to France in 1268, to the Pope in 1269, and to Naples in 1272. His son was,

CONRADO GRIMALDI, Cavallero; prætor of Bologna in 1306. His son was,

BOARELLO GRIMALDI, counsellor of ROBERT, King of Naples. He d. in 1343, having m. Ginevra, dau. of Domenico Salvago, a noble Genoese. Their son was,

CONRADO GRIMALDI, Lord of Stella, Antient of Genoa in 1327—1364. He m. Isabella, the dau. of Leonardo Doria. Their son was,

LUKE GRIMALDI, Lord of Novi and Stella; ambassador from Genoa to the King of Arragon, and admiral of a small fleet, of which he was owner. He m. about 1364, Maria, dau. of Ansaldo Lomellino, a Genoese noble. Boccaccio, who wrote his "Decameron" at this period, makes the rich Signor Grimaldi, of Genoa, the hero of the eighth novel. Luke was s. by his son and heir,

ANSALDO GRIMALDI, Antient of Genoa in 1400—1416. He was made captive in the wars with the Venetians, and regained his liberty in 1405. He m. Argenta, dau. of Percival Grimaldi, of the Lords of Policastro; she d. about 1445. Their son was,

LUKE GRIMALDI, ambassador from Genoa to Burgundy in 1455, to Milan in 1471—1474. He m. Theodora Manfredi, and died, leaving most ample sums to the Bank of St. George, to be distributed annually to the poor. Their son and heir was,

JOHN BAPTIST GRIMALDI, Antient of Genoa in 1466, 1480, 1503; governor of Corsica in 1491, ambassador to the Pope and Naples in 1477, and to France in 1610. He m. Pellegra, dau. of Baptist Pinello, a Genoese noble. Their issue was,

BENEDETTO, of whom hereafter, and ANSALDO GRIMALDI, surnamed the Great, whose statue was decreed by the Republic of Genoa to be placed in the Hall of St. George, (where it still remains,) and, as a mark of additional honour, to be in a sitting posture. He was a great benefactor to his country, and died, leaving an only daughter, making his nephew, JEROME GRIMALDI, heir to his immense riches.

BENEDETTO, already named, held high offices in the Republic of Genoa. In 1499 and in 1504, about which time he died. He m. Pelegra, dau. of Bendinelli Sauli, a Genoese noble. She d. about 1520. Their son and heir was,

JEROME GRIMALDI. He filled the most important situations in the Republic, but having lost his wife, Francesca, dau. and heiress of Christopher Cattaneo, a Genoese noble, he embraced the ecclesiastical life, and was made cardinal by Pope CLEMENT VII., in 1527. He was Bishop of Venafri and Barona, Archbishop of Bari, and the Pope's legate to Genoa in 1543. He d. in 1543 or 1547, and was buried at Boschetta, near Genoa, where his bust and monument still remain. His son was,

LUKE GRIMALDI, Lord of Beaufort, in Naples, in right of his wife, Pellina, Lady of Beaufort, the dau. and heiress of Battina Spinola, doge of Genoa in 1531, (named the Great and Good,) by his wife, Jacobina, dau. and heiress of Paolo Doria, of Genoa. She d. in 1591. This nobleman (Luke Grimaldi) was ambassador from Genoa to Spain, and in 1584, was sent as ambassador extraordinary to England, to be present on the marriage of Queen Mary with Phillip, the original credentials, a letter of introduction from the Republic to the Queen, being still preserved with the Ashmolean MSS. at Oxford. His name was inscribed in the Book of Nobles of Genoa, called the Golden Book, and he was created a Marquess by the Emperor CHARLES V., whose regard for the family was further shown by creating another branch Counts Palatine, as also Cavalleroes, or perpetual knights, and granting them permission to bear the imperial eagle in chief on the shield of the Grimaldi arms. His son was,

JEROME GRIMALDI, Marquess Grimaldi, Lord of Beaufort, whose name was inscribed in the Golden Book of Nobles. He was one of the great council of Genoa, and m. Pellegra, dau. of John-Baptist Imperiali, a noble Genoese.

FOREIGN NOBLEMEN.

He d. in 1613, and she survived until 1639. Rubens, who visited and resided at Genoa in 1606, found so great patrons in the Grimaldi family, that he dedicated to them his Views of the "Palazzi di Genova," and painted several of their portraits cum amore. Those of the Marchesa Isabella Grimaldi, and of the Marchesa Maria Grimaldi, were exhibited in London in 1841, and one of them is inscribed, "Petrus Paulus Rubens, pinxit et cum singulari Devotione D. 1606." The son of Jerome, by his wife Pellegra, was,

ANBALDO GRIMALDI, Marquess Grimaldi, Lord of Beaufort; senator of Genoa in 1622 and 1639. He m. in 1594, at St. Luke's, Genoa, Battina, the dau. of Ambrose Lomellini, a Genoese noble and descendant of the Doge Lomellini in 1535. He was "il commandante" of the Spanish troops at Genoa, and opposed the French on the bombardment of that city by command of Louis XIV., in 1695; and after its partial destruction and surrender, (his own palace and two other palaces of the Grimaldis being destroyed,) he was compelled, with others, by an edict of Louis, to quit Genoa. VALERIO MAGAWLY-CERATI, a Count of the Holy Roman or Germanic Empire; b. 4 August, 1809; m. 17 Nov. 1831, his first cousin, Jane, only child of the late Andrew Geoghegan, Esq. of Ballymaglevy, co. Westmeath, by Mary, his wife, sister of Francis-Philip, Count Magawly, and has an only surviving son, FRANCIS-PHILIP-RICHARD, b. 23 Nov. 1832. Count Magawly-Cerati s. his father in 1835.

Lineage.

The MAGAWLYS, a family of great antiquity in Ireland, deduce an unbroken descent from NIALL, of the nine Hostages; they were styled "Princes of Calry," in the co. of Westmeath, and they were proprietors of large estates there until the reign of WILLIAM and MARY, when remaining firm in their allegiance to the ill-fated JAMES II., and their chiefs following his fortunes into exile, the greater portion of those lands came within the grasp of the escheator. In 1631, the Emperor CHARLES VI. conferred upon Field-Marshal Philip-Henry Magawly, who m. Margaret d'Este, of Austria, the dignity of a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, and the rank and privileges of a grandee of Spain. The field-marshal, who was son of Henry Magawly, by his wife, Mary, dau. of John Browne, Esq. of the Neale, had one son, Henry, who d. young, and issm., and a dau., the Donna Benedicta Magawly, lady of honour to the empress and "dame de l'ordre de Marie Therese," who d. s. p. in 1799, whereupon the title reverted to his (the field-marshal's) grand-nephew,

AWLY MAGAWLY, of Frankford, in the King's Co., son of Frank Magawly, Esq. of Frankford, by Bridget, his wife, sister of Peter Delamer, Esq. of Lacken, co. Westmeath. He was in the early period of his life in the service of the Empress-Queen MARIA-THERESA, and was employed by her imperial majesty to negotiate the marriage of one of the archduchesses (her daughter) with the Duke of Parma. He m. Jane, dau. of Christopher Fallon, Esq. of Runnymede, co. Roscommon, and had, with dau.s., three sons, of whom the eldest son,

FRANCIS-PHILIP MAGAWLY, b. in 1788, was accredited in 1812, envoy from his holiness the POPE to NAPOLEON. He was subsequently constituted regent of the Duchies of Parma, Plaisance, and Guastella, and filled that high office until those estates were apportioned to the Ex-Empress MARIA-LOUISA, in 1815, when he was chosen prime-minister by her imperial highness, and so continued until 1823, when ill health compelled him to resign. He was also conciller intime and chamberlain to the Emperor of Austria, chancellor of the order of St. George, knight of the order of the Iron Crown (of Monza), &c. &c. He m. in 1808, Clara, only child of Giuseppe, Count Mazzuchini-Guidobono, by Fulvia, his wife, dau. and sole heiress of the Count Cerati, of Parma, (her mother was Ippolita Pallavicino del Scipione, the last descendant of that princely house, and niece of Pope BENEDICT XIV., Lambertini.) By this lady Count Magawly left two sons, Count Mazzinghi, upon whom the dignity of a Count of the Lateran Hall and Apostolic Palace was conferred by Pope GREGORY XVI., was acknowledged representative of the Roman and Tuscan Mazzinghis, as well by his Holiness as by the Grand Duke of Tuscany.

Lineage.

From the history of Florentine families by the historian Ammirato, it would seem that the founder of this ancient family in Italy was a German noble, a follower of the Emperor OTTO. Long prior to the era of the republic they were settled in the city of Florence, and there, at the commencement of the eleventh century, Forte Mazzinghi received the honour of knighthood at the hand of the Emperor CONRAD. They possessed castles, and exercised seigniorial rights in the territory lying between Florence and Pistoja, and from the latter city they immemorially claimed and received tribute, in acknowledgment, it is said, of a successful intercession between its inhabitants and the resentment of an emperor. The archives of Pistoja show this tribute to have been redeemed A.D. 1365. At Florence, the family took part in the frequent revolutions of the Republican period; were engaged as Guelphs in the battles of Arbia and Montecatini. The name was inscribed in the ordinances of justice, A.D. 1392, by which, for a time, all the noble families of Florence were excluded from power. Having subsequently submitted to the conditions imposed by popular jealousy, they filled, upon various occasions, the supreme offices of prior and gonfalonier of justice. From Tedice Mazzinghi, who lived in 1197, lineally descended,

PROSPERO-TOMMASO MAZZINGHI, b. 28 Nov. 1739, an Italian by birth, and son of Giuseppe-Marco Mazzinghi, died in London, 29 May, 1776, leaving, by his wife, Juliet Frederick, two sons and two dau.s., viz.,

MELFORT.

GEORGE DRUMMOND, Duc de Melfort, and Count de Lussan, in France, heir and representative of the Drummonds, Earls of Perth, in Scotland; formerly capt. in H.M. 93rd Highlanders; b. in London, in 1807; s. to the family honours, in 1840, at the decease of his uncle, Charles-Edward, 5th Duc de Melfort; m. 1st, in 1831, the Baroness Albertine de Rothberg, widow of General Count Rapp, Peer of France, and by her (who is deceased) has one son, MALCOLM, b. at Naples, in 1834.

The Duc de Melfort m. 2ndly, in 1847, Susan-Henrietta, widow of Col. Burrows, and dau. of Thomas-B.-D.-H. Sewel, Esq., by Harriet, his wife, dau. of William Beresford, Lord Decies, Archbishop of Tuam.

Lineage.

Traditionally, the Drummonds derive their descent from an Hungarian in the suite of EDGAR ATHELING, but the importance of the family was based on the royal alliance of the Lady Annabella Drummond, dau. of Drummond of Stobhall, with King ROBERT III. From that period the Drummonds held a high position in North Britain, and were raised to the peerage in 1487, by the title of Lord Drummond, and eventually obtained the Earldom of Perth in 1605. Their loyalty to the throne shone at all times conspicuous, but the moment that called forth their whole energies and devotion was the great contest which preceded the final overthrow of the ancient dynasty of Scotland. So long as the conflict was waged on the battlefield, the Drummonds fought manfully in the cause they had espoused, and at length, when the last ruin of the hapless race of Stuart was consummated at Culloeden, they left their native land, to die banished and broken-hearted, in a foreign clime. They had fearlessly set their all upon the cast, and they chivalrously submitted to the hazard of the die.

The immediate ancestor of the Duc de Melfort was John Drummond, Earl of Melfort, 2nd son of James, 3rd Earl of Perth. He retired to St. Germain's, at the Revolution, and was raised by the abdicating JAMES to the Dukedom of Melfort, a title confirmed in France by Louis XIV. This nobleman, attainted by the parliament in 1698, for having been seen at St. Germain's, d. at Paris, in 1714, leaving, with other issue, JOHN, great-grandfather of George-Drummond, now Duc de Melfort. (For full details of the lineage, see p. 1103, under PEERAGES CLAIMED.)

Count Nugent having, at an early age, become heir to his uncle, Oliver, Count Nugent, went to Austria in 1789, and entered the army of that country in 1794, with the Royal permission, communicated to him by his kinsman, the Marquess of Buckingham. In 1795, he was promoted to be Captain of Engineers at the battle of Mayence; in 1799, he was elected Knight of the Military Order of Maria-Theresa after the battle of Varaggio, near Genoa; and in 1800, after the hard fought contest of Marengo, received his commission of Major; in 1805, the battle of Caldiero gained for him the grade of Lieutenant-Colonel; and shortly after that of Colonel; and in 1809, that of Fontana Fredda brought the still more advanced rank of Major-General. In the winter of 1809-1810, General Nugent was named second plenipotentiary at the Peace Congress which preceded Napoleon's marriage, but refusing to sign the proposed conditions, he quitted the Continent and returned to England where he was subsequently given local rank as Major-General, and later as Lieutenant-General in the British army. In 1811, diplomatic intercourse being then completely interrupted, General Nugent went back to Austria with letters and instructions from the Prince Regent and the British Government, and returned subsequently with important communications from the Courts of Austria and Prussia, and from the coalition organizing against France. In the winter of 1812-1813, General Nugent was sent by Government to Spain to the Duke of Wellington to ascertain his intentions in case of a general war, and proceeded, in consequence, by the Mediterranean and Turkey, again to Austria, where he arrived in the most critical moment. The communications he brought decided, and the mediation of Austria ended in a declaration of war. In August, 1813, General Nugent resumed the sword, penetrated with a small force through Croatia (then occupied by the French) to the Adriatic; raised new forces in Croatia, which drove the French army out of all Illyria back into Italy. Assisted by the fleet under Admiral Fremantle, the strong citadel of Trieste was besieged and taken. Meanwhile, British troops arrived from the Island of Lissa. General Nugent embarked at Trieste, and, aided by the squadron commanded by Commodore Rowley, forced a landing in November, 1813, south of the Po in the rear of the French army, with a combined Austro-British force,† with which he fortified Comachio, fought actions at Ferrara, Forli, and Ravenna, and completed the blockade of Venice. Early in 1814, Murat came up, a dubious ally. General Nugent, being reinforced, took the initiative, and after the bloody actions, against the French, of Reggio, Parma, and Piacenza, ended the campaign of 1814 at Marengo in Piedmont, where peace was proclaimed, and the British troops joined Lord W. Bentinck at Genoa. This was the only British force that ever crossed the peninsula of Italy, from the Adriatic to the Mediterranean.

Not long after, General Nugent came to England to submit to Government the conduct of Murat, and receiving fresh instructions for Lord Castlereagh, then at the Congress of Vienna, wrote, at his demand, the answer to the note issued in defence of Murat by his ministers at the Congress. In requital of these services, General Nugent was invested with the order of Knight-Commander of the Bath. In 1815, the war with Murat breaking out, Count Nugent assumed the command of the troops in Tuscany, and contributed mainly to Murat's defeat. He then embarked at Naples with 12,000 men, and 1100 horses, landed at Cannes, in France, was joined by five British battalions under General Lowe, and was marching by Aix, Avignon, and Nismes, in the rear of the French army of the Loire, when peace was proclaimed. He was then ordered to Naples, became Captain-General of the Neapolitan army, but in 1820 he returned to the Austrian service. In 1838 he was promoted full general, in 1848 and 1849 commanded corps d'armée in Italy and Hungary, and in 1849 was made Field-Marshal. Count Nugent had been created, in 1816, a Roman Prince, and in 1826, a Magnate of Hungary, the latter dignity conferring an hereditary seat in the Upper House of the Hungarian Diet.

† The British contingent comprised the 35th regt. under Col. Robertson, two batteries under Capt. Raines, R.A., detachments of the Calabrese and Corsican corps, &c. with Col. Church, and Capt. Angelo on the staff.

FOREIGN NOBLEMEN.

Lineage.

The family of Nugent, one of pre-eminent distinction in Ireland, was founded in that kingdom by GILBERT and HUGH DE NUGENT, great-grandsons of Foulke de Bellesme, Lord of Nogent, who, with his elder brother, Geoffrey de Bellesme, Count of Perche, came to England with WILLIAM the Conqueror. Foulke was a younger son of Rotrou de Bellesme, Lord of Nogent le Rotrou, and Count of Perche, fourth in descent from William de Bellesme, Lord of Nogent, Count of Alencon and of Perche, A.D. 1038, and seventh in descent from Albert, first Count of Perche, A.D. 990. Hugh, another son of Foulke, married Emma, dau. and heiress of Hugh de Lacy. Their son, Gilbert, took the name of Lacy, and was father of Hugh de Lacy, Lord of Meath, &c., and of Rosa, who married Gilbert de Nugent, her cousin. The branches of Alencon, Perche, and Lacy having merged, by heiresses, in the crowns of France and England, the only male branch of the house of Bellesme or Nogent le Rotrou remaining, is that of Nogent, now Nugent, in Ireland. Further details are given under the title of Westmeath, and to these we refer, confining our present notice to the immediate ancestry of Count Nugent.

In 1558, he received the honour of knighthood from the Duke of Norfolk at the siege of Leith, in Scotland, and in the following year was present in the parliament held at Dublin. The Lord-Deputy Sidney, in his relation of the state of the kingdom, sent to the lords of the council from Waterford, 16 Dec. 1575, makes this honourable mention of him:—"Upper Osserie is so well governed and defended by the valor and wisdom of the Baron that now is, as savinge for suertie of good order hereafter in succession, it made no matter, if the countrie were never shired, nor her Majestie's writt otherwise currannt than it is; so humblye he keepeth all his people subject to obedience and good order; and yet united to some shire it shal be, and the Baron hymself verye well agreeinge to yeeld both fyne rent and service, as other countries lately brought to soch frame doe and shall doe." The Lord-Deputy at that time constituted him lord-lieutenant of the King's and Queen's Counties, with divers Irish counties adjoining, which were much better preserved in peace and quiet than they had been, by his diligence, policy, and careful service. II. Evelina.

Lineage.

MEYER-AMSCHEL ROTHSCHILD, the founder of the wealth and influence of this great commercial family, is stated to have been, prior to the invasion of Germany by the republican arms of France, a banker, in no very extensive line of business, at Frankfort-on-the-Maine; and his fortune is said to have sprung from an act of fidelity as honourable and disinterested as any probably upon record. The crossing of the Rhine by the republican soldiers, it will be recollected, was followed by the abandonment of their territories by almost the whole of the minor princes of Germany; amongst others, the sovereign of Hesse Cassel became a fugitive, and with his money and jewels arrived at Frankfort, in the hope of finding there a place wherein he might deposit the treasure in some sort of security. The reputable character of Meyer Rothschild induced the prince to call upon him, and to solicit his taking charge of the property, which amounted to an immense sum. Rothschild at first refused so great a responsibility; but the importunity of the prince prevailed, and his highness delivered up the money and jewels to the banker, without requiring even a receipt. The French army subsequently entered Frankfort, at the very moment, it is said, that Rothschild had succeeded in burying the prince's treasure in his garden. His own property he did not hide, and of that he was entirely despoiled. In truth, he was, like all the other Jews and citizens of Frankfort, reduced to utter poverty; but the treasure confided to him was safe; and sometime after the French army withdrew, Rothschild recommenced as a banker, extending his concerns with caution, by means of the prince's money, until the year 1802, when the latter returned to Frankfort, on his route to Cassel. He had heard that Rothschild had been despoiled of everything, and consequently he had little hope that any portion of his own deposit could have been preserved. He visited the banker, however, and on asking if the robbers had taken all, was most agreeably astonished when Rothschild assured him that not one kreutzer of his treasure had been disturbed. "I have all the jewels," said he, "which I secured untouched in a 'strong chest,' and the money I have also, with five per cent. besides, for your royal highness, from the day that you entrusted it to me." The prince, it is stated, not only refused the accumulated interest, but the capital itself, insisting that his faithful banker should still retain it for twenty years more, at an interest of two per cent. At the congress of Vienna, the Prince of Hesse Cassel represented the conduct of the Frankfort banker in such just and glowing colours, that he secured for him the protection of all the great potentates there assembled, and thus raised him at once to the situation of the first banker in the world. His 3rd son, by Gertrude Schnapper, his wife,

NATHAN-MEYER ROTHSCHILD, sometime of Frankfort, and afterwards of the city of London, b. 19 Sept. 1777, received letters patent of denization, dated 12 June, 44 GEORGE III.; and was advanced by imperial letters patent, dated at Vienna, 29 Sept. 1822, to the dignity of a Baron of the Austrian Empire. The present Count de Salis was a lieut.-col. in the capitulated service of Switzerland, and served in the Swiss guards of the King of France.

Lineage.

This family is found amongst the most ancient of Germany. So far back as the 9th century, it was settled at Castel Mur, (the Roman Castellum Murum), a stronghold of feudal times, situated in the valley of the Maira, on the Italian frontier of the republic of the Grisons. Halto, Archbishop of Mentz, visited this place in the year 913, on his journey to Rome, and mentions in his travels that it was then held by two brothers, Rodolph and Gubertus a Salice, who, he adds, entertained him hospitably in their castle, and when he departed, entrusted him with a sum of money, which they requested he would present to his Holiness Pope ANASTATIUS III. as an offering. The house of De Salis directed for several centuries the political affairs, and filled the highest offices of state in the republic of the Grisons; while some of its members, seeking a wider sphere of action, achieved historical renown in the services of Austria and France. Gubertus de Salis was grand master of the order of St. John of Jerusalem, anno 1168. The early alliances of De Salis connect its pedigree with the house of Hapsburg, the Duke of Carinthia, and Charlemagne. The branch of which we are more immediately about to treat, although settled in England since the beginning of the last century, continued to the time of the French Revolution in possession of large domains in the valley of the Maira, as well as of the principalities, or imperial fiefs, of Widnau and Oberreich, situated on the southern side of the lake of Constance. Those fiefs were held immediately under the Germanic empire, and conferred the sovereign rights of supreme judicature, coinage of money, &c., on their seigneurs or lords. The invasion of this territory, in 1802, by the French under Massena, brought with it a proscription of the nobles, a confiscation of their property, and an entire abolition of all seigniorial rights. A considerable portion of the confiscated estates of the Anglo de Salis was restored in 1814, through the influence of the British minister, Viscount Castlereagh, at the congress of Vienna. His excellency Count John de Salis, (of whom hereafter,) pursuant to a family arrangement, now enjoys the foreign property, which includes the Castle of Oberreich on the lake of Constance, and the chateau of Bondo in the valley of the Maira, immediately adjoining the ruins of the old family seat, Castel Mur. His excellency,

1096

PETER DE SALIS, came over to England in the year 1709, as envoy and minister-plenipotentiary from JOSEPH I., Emperor of Germany, to Queen ANNE; and on the 12th March, 1748, he was created by the Emperor FRANCIS a Count of the Germanic or Holy Roman Empire, with remainder to his issue male. He d. in 1749, leaving an only son and heir,

DE VISMES.

WILLIAM DE VISMES, a Count of the Kingdom of France, b. 19 July, 1805; m. 18 July, 1832, Eliza-Carter, dau. of the Rev. W. Palmer, D.D.,
 rector of Yarcomb, co. Somerset, and has issue,

THEOBALD-WILLIAM, b. 26 Dec. 1833.
 Angilbert, b. 28 Jan. 1835.

Count de Vismes s. his father in 1840.

Lineage.

The family of DE VISMES,* or DE VISMÉ, (as the name is sometimes written,) derives originally from a branch of the sovereign house of PONTHIEU, which was of the blood-royal of France, and founded by

COUNT ANOILBERT, one of the great lords of the count of King FRAN, and governor of Ponthieu, (a district comprising the Boulonnois, Montreuil, Guines, VISMES, Ardres, &c.), who m. BERTHA of France, dau. of CHARLEMAONE, and had two sons, NITHARD and HANID; of the younger, his name alone is preserved. Angilbert became, towards the close of his life, abbot of the monastery of St. Riquier;†
 and dying 18 Feb. 814, was s. by his son,

NITHARD, Count de Ponthieu, who was of the court of LOUIS le Debonnaire, and sided with CHARLES the Bald in the family contents which disturbed that monarch's reign.
 From Nithard we pass to

HARLOWEN, the second of his name, SOVEREIGN COUNT
DE PONTHIEU and MONTREUIL, who was of the council convoked in 927 by HERBERT, COUNT DE VERMANDOIS, at Troyes. To him succeeded

WILLIAM, the first of his name, SOVEREIGN COUNT DE
PONTHIEU and MONTREUIL, who was father of four sons,
 I. HILDQUIN, who continued the line of the COUNTS DE PONTHIEU.

II. ARNOUL, who had from his father the Comté de Bologne.

* This genealogical history of the noble house of De Vismes is compiled and compressed from the following authorities:—Le Père Anselme's "Histoire Genealogique de la Noblesse," Duchesne's "Dictionnaire de la Noblesse," "L'Histoire Generale des Comtes de Ponthieu," "Le Nobilaire de Picardie," "The Archives of the Royal Library at Paris," family papers, &c. &c.

† This celebrated abbey was situated in the ancient county of Ponthieu, two leagues from Abbeville, and in the vicinity of the Seigneurie de Vismes.

III. HUGUES, who had the lands of St. Paul.
 IV. GUILLAUME, who had the lands of Guines.

The 4th son,

GUILLAUME DE PONTHIEU, m. the dau. of Renaud, Seigneur de St. Vallery,* and sister and heiress of CIL-LARD, COUNT DE VISMES, and had several sons;† of whom the 2nd, THEOBALD, Sire de Vismes, accompanied the CON-QUEROR to England in 1066, and was a distinguished leader in the army; and the eldest,

RAOUL DE VISMES, Seigneur de St. Vallery, was grandfather of another

RAOUL DE VISMES, who signed "la Charte communiale" of Abbeville, in 1184, above all the barons, and immediately after the clergy. This Raoul, inspired by the religious fervour of the times, assumed the cross, and embarked for Palestine in 1215, accompanied by his son,

WILLIAM, Count de Vismes, the common ancestor of the different branches of the house of de Vismes which subsequently flourished in France. The representative of the eldest line,

JOHN, Count de Vismes, was father of two sons, viz.,

I. JOHN, Count de Vismes, whose only dau. and heiress, JEANNE DE VISMES, conveyed the great possessions of the de Vismes to her husband, Mathieu de Cayeu, Lord of Senarpont, and was mother of

JOHN DE CAYEU, Lord of de Vismes, Senarpont, &c., who m. Isabel d'Alilly, and had an only dau.
 and heiress,

JEANNE DE CAYEU, *Lady of de Vismes, SEN-
 ARPONT, &c.*, who m. JOHN, SEIGNEUR
DE MONCHY, and had issue,

JOHN, Lord of Monchy, &c. in Turkey, s. p.
PETER, Lord of Monchy, governor of St.
Omer, who left an only dau. and heiress,

JULIENNE, Lady of Monchy, who carried that inheritance in marriage to John Bournell, Lord of Thiemrone.

EDMUND, who inherited the Lordship of DE
VISMES, and acquired from his kinsman, Hugh de Cayeu, Bishop of Arras, the seigneurie of Massy, and was ancestor of the Monchys, Lords of de Vismes, and Marquesses of Senarpont.

II. WILLIAM, ancestor of the present COUNT DE VISMES.

WILLIAM, the second and younger son of John, Count de Vismes, founded the branch of the family which, on the extinction of the elder, became chief of the illustrious house of de Vismes, and thus entitled to its honours. His son and heir,

HUGH DE VISMES, was great-great-grandfather of

PHILIPPE DE VISMES, who was established in Normandy; and his heir male,

GERARD DE VISMES, sometime in the 17th century, inherited the representation of the family, and thus became COUNT DE VISMES. On the revocation of the edict of Nantes, the family, which had embraced the Protestant religion, became involved in the proscriptions that ensued, and being hopelessly ruined in their own country, were forced, with their fellow-sufferers, the other persecuted Huguenots, to seek an asylum in any foreign land hospitable and tolerant enough to receive and protect them.

 son of this Gerard de Vismes,) remained in France, and was secretary to Louis XV. He varia.)

 1827, leaving an only dau., who m. the Count d'Orbigny

 wife of the Viscount de Boubers, of Abbeville; and Mary.

THOMAS WARD, BARON OF THE DUCHY OF LUCCA, and of the GRAND DUCHY OF TUSCANY, Knight of the 1st Class of the Order of St. Louis of Lucca, Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St. Joseph of Tuscany, Knight Senator Grand Cross of the Order of St. George Constantiano of Parma, and Noble, with the title of Baron, in Tuscany, Honorary Councillor of State to His Imperial Highness the Grand Duke of Tuscany, Minister and Councillor of State to H. R. H. Charles, Duke of Parma, &c.; b. at York, in England, 9 Oct. 1810; m. Louisa Gentner, and has issue

CHARLES-LOUIS, b. 22 April, 1843.
 Thomas, b. 15 Jan. 1848.
 Mary-Therese, b. 28 July, 1845; d. at Vienna, 17 July, 1849.
 Elizabeth-Margaret, b. 9 July, 1849.

Baron Ward, who has gained great distinction in the States of Italy as a Diplomatist and Financier, entered the service of the Grand Duke of Lucca in 1830, and held for several years after an influential position at His Royal Highness's Court. In 1847, having succeeded in arranging most satisfactorily and honourably for the Duke of Lucca, a dispute between that potentate and the Grand Duke of Tuscany of many years' standing, and of serious importance in a financial point of view, and having concluded a treaty for the acknowledgment of the Lunese public debt, as well as the Custom Union between the two governments, Mr. Ward was decorated by H. R. H. Charles of Bourbon, Duke of Lucca, with the 1st Class of the Order of St. Louis, and with the insignia of a Commander of the Tuscan Order of St. Joseph, by the Grand Duke of Tuscany. Within a few weeks after (21st June, 1847) he received the nobility and hereditary title of BARON of the Duchy of Lucca. In 1848, Baron Ward was created Senator Grand Cross of the Order of Constantine St. George by the Duke of Parma, and made Knight Grand Cross of the Tuscan Order of St. Joseph. This latter decoration he received as a mark of the Grand Duke of Tuscany's satisfaction at the result of a mission to the Austrian government, relative to the differences then existing between His Royal Highness and the Court of Modena, which Baron Ward brought to a pacific termination. Subsequently, the Grand Duke conferred on him the nobility of Tuscany. Baron Ward was nominated as Altereo or Vice Duke for the Duchies of Parma and Pracenza, after the defeat of Charles-Albert, with the consent of Austria, by the Duke of Parma, but declined to accept the honour.

† Report of the law officers of Ireland regarding Mr. Sewell's claim.

"Upon consideration of all the evidence aforesaid, We are humbly of opinion, that Memorialist (Sewell) has fully proved the several allegations on which he professes to found his hopes and expectations; and that the barony of Athenry appearing to be the most ancient in the list of barons, and being of so great antiquity, and consequently a barony in fee, is now, as stated in the Petition, in abeyance between the said Lady Elizabeth, the mother of Petitioner, the said daughters of Lady St. Lawrence, and the said Lady Wallscourt; and that it belongs now to his Majesty alone to determine whether the said barony shall continue in abeyance or vest in any of the said co-heiresses, and whether his majesty shall vouchsafe to bestow the consideration and favour on the Petitioner, as the son of the eldest daughter of the last Lord Athenry, and his male descendants.

BALTINGLASS, VISCOUNTY OF, AND PORTLESTER, BARONY OF, in the PEERAGE OF IRELAND.

Claimant—THE REV. CHARLES EUSTACE, of Robertstown, co. Kildare,

Whose descent from the Hon. William Eustace, brother and heir of James, 3rd Viscount Baltinglass, has been acknowledged and confirmed by the report of H.M. Attorney-General for Ireland; and whose right to the title by inheritance has been admitted by the same official authority, provided a certain act of attainder (which the claimant maintains was illegal ab initio) be removed.

This act passed in the time of Queen ELIZABETH, and was presumed to have attained the title; but recent researches seem to show that the legality of the attainder cannot be sustained, and that consequently the dignity is at this moment unobscured by any penal enactment. The claimant rests his case on the following grounds:

I. The previous sanction of the English privy council had not been obtained before the introduction of the act into the Irish parliament. This initiatory proceeding, under Poynings's Law, then in full force, was indispensable.

II. JAMES, 3rd Viscount Baltinglass, against whom the act was specially directed, had died three years previously.

III. There is no record of the attainder to be found in the archives of the privy council, London.

IV. The pardon and promise of indemnity granted by the parliament of JAMES I., to all who had opposed the government of ELIZABETH destroyed the attainder, even if such attainder were effectual.

V. The title was borne and recognised by two viscounts long subsequent to the passing of the statute.

In 1830, Mr. Eustace petitioned the crown that his right to the Viscounty of Baltinglass might be acknowledged: his petition was referred by the Queen to her majesty's Attorney-General for Ireland, who, having investigated the case, made an elaborate report thereon to the government, concluding thus:

Extract from the Attorney-General's Report.

"I am of opinion that the petitioner has shown sufficient evidence of his right to the dignity of Viscount of Baltinglass, in case the attainder of James, the third viscount, created by the Act of Queen ELIZABETH, were reversed.

MAIEREE BRADY."

Subsequent reference was made by the crown to the Attorney-General for England, who gave in a report fully confirming that of the Attorney-General of Ireland.

BOTELER, BARONY OF.

Claimant—WILLIAM O'BRIEN BUTLER, Esq.

Descent of the Dignity.

In the 3rd RICHARD I., WILLIAM LE PETTY succeeded Hugh De Lacy, Earl of Hereford, as lord justice of Ireland, and obtained large grants of lands, consisting of many knights' fees, with the baronies of Mollingere, now Mullingar, in the co. of Westmeath, and of Moymet and Dunboyne, in the co. of Meath, and obtained a franchise to sue and be sued in England; and accordingly plea touching some of his lands in Meath, appurtenant to his barony of Dunboyne, was held at Westminster, 1192. In the 8th JOHN, WILLIAM LE PETTY was summoned to parliament by writ, and sat accordingly. In the 13th HEN. III., NICHOLAS LE PETTY, Lord of Dunboyne and Mullingar, was summoned to attend the king with twenty-two others, the great barons of Ireland, 1239. WILLIAM LE PETTY, Lord of Dunboyne and Mullingar, had a daughter, Synalda, his heiress-at-law, who as such succeeded to all his titles and estates, 1290. This Synalda, being so seized, m. SIR THOMAS LE BOTTLER, brother to Edmund, Earl of Carrick, afterwards Ormonde, lord justice of Ireland, and heir of Theobald Le Botlier, Baron of Arclow, lord justice of Ireland in the 31st HENRY III., 1308. Sir Thomas Le Botlier was summoned to parliament, 17th EDWARD II., by writ, by the style and title of Baron Le Botlier, and he sat in pursuance of this summons, as a peer of parliament, in 1324; slain, to the great loss of the kingdom, anno 1399, 3rd EDWARD III., leaving a son, Peter, or Pearce, who obtained a grant, 32nd EDWARD III., of the manor of Grenagh, in the county of Kilkenny; and d. leaving a son and heir, WILLIAM LE BOTTLER, who, by Eliz. his wife, left a son, JAMES, LORD LE BOTTLER, who m. Morina, daughter of Brien; d. 1445, and was s. by his son and heir, Edmond.

The estates and dignities having been seized into the hands of the crown during the wars of the Roses, an act of parliament was passed at Trim, 11th and 12th EDW. IV., whereby this EDMOND, styled EDMOND FITZ JAMES LE BOTTLER, was confirmed in all the titles, dignities, and estates of his ancestors; and he obtained several large grants from the crown in consideration of his great services in the Irish wars. He m. Catharine, dau. of Richard Butler, of Boelick, and left a son and heir,

JAMES LE BOTTLER, who m. Eleanor, dau. of M'Cartie Reagh; and d. in 1508, leaving a son and heir,

JAMES LE BOTTLER, who m. Johanna, dau. of Peter Butler, Earl of Ormonde, by whom he left issue,

EDMOND, LORD LE BOTTLER, who m. Cecilia, dau. of Carma M'Marthy De Muskrie. In the 33rd HENRY VIII., a patent was passed to this Lord Edmond of his Barony of Dunboyne only to him and his heirs male, the king having in the same year changed his own title.

The descendants in tail male of this Lord Edmond, the seventh Baron Le Botlier, succeeded to the titles, by right and by courtesy, until the decease of Lord John, the nineteenth baron, in 1800, who d. s. p., leaving his sister, CATHERINE, his heiress-at-law.

Though the patent of HENRY VIII. does not expressly exclude heirs-general, yet Catherine did not assume the title of Dunboyne; but the baronies, not only of Dunboyne, but also of Mullingar and Moymet, having been held during centuries—i. e., from a period anterior to the reign of HENRY III.—by writ of summons, and sittings upon the paternal side, and more particularly the Barony of Le

FITZWALTER, BARONY OF.

Claimant—SIR BROOK-WILLIAM BRIDGES, Bart. of Goodnestone, co. Kent.

The petition of Sir Brook Bridges was presented to the crown in the year 1841, and the first of six hearings before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords was in 1842. After the summing up of Mr. Loftus Wigram, on the 18th of July, 1844, (the sixth hearing of the case,) the committee came to the unanimous resolution that "the barony is now in abeyance between the petitioner, Sir Brook-William Bridges, as grandson and heir of Dame Fanny Bridges, and the descendants (if any) of Jemima Duke," which, being first passed in the affirmative, was directed by the committee to be reported by the chairman to the House. The words inserted (if any) were part of the resolution, thus intimating considerable doubt whether any descendants remain. The counsel for the petitioner were Mr. Loftus Wigram and Sir Harris Nicolas.

Descent of the Dignity.

The family of RADCLIFFE may be traced to a period antecedent to the Norman Conquest. For centuries after, it held a prominent place in history, and became allied to our noblest and most distinguished houses. Besides many privy councillors, warriors, and statesmen, it produced fourteen earls, one viscount, five barons, seven knights of the Garter, one lord-deputy of Ireland, two ambassadors, several bannerets and knights of the Bath. The foundations of the extraordinary greatness of the family were laid by SIR RICHARD DE RADCLIFFE, of Radclyffe Tower, seneschal of the royal forests of Blackburnshire, who accompanied King EDWARD I. to his wars in Scotland, and obtained from his royal master the grant of a charter of free warren and free chase in all his demesne lands of Radclyffe, Ordshall, &c. Of his sons by his first wife, who was a dau. of Boteler, Baron of Warrington, SIR JOHN RADCLIFFE, the younger, was progenitor of the Radclyffes of Foxdenton; while the elder, SIR WILLIAM, (usually styled "the Great William,") of Culcheth and Edgeworth, and of Radclyffe Tower, was ancestor of the RADCLIFFES, BARONS FITZWALTER, and EARLS OF SUSSEX.

In 1490, the great-grandson of the Great William, SIR JOHN RADCLIFFE, Knt., was governor of Aquitaine, and in the first year of HENRY VI., seneschal of the same duchy. In the fourth year of the same reign, he had a grant of the wardship of Ralph Neville, Earl of Westmorland and Lord of Middleham; and seven years afterwards, all the revenues of the crown issuing out of the counties of Carnarvon and Merioneth, and the lordships of Chirk and Chirkland, were assigned to him to liquidate an arrear of service money amounting to £7000, an enormous sum in those days. This eminent soldier, who was a knight banneret and knight of the Garter, m. Elizabeth, only dau. and heiress of Walter Fitzwalter, last Baron of Fitzwalter of that family, and was s. by his son, SIR JOHN RADCLIFFE, who, in the first year of HENRY VII., being then steward of the king's household, was summoned to parliament as BARON FITZWALTER, in right of his mother. He was subsequently appointed chief justice of all the forests beyond the Trent, and at the coronation of Elizabeth of York, King HENRY's consort, was associated with Jasper Tudor, Duke of Bedford, to perform the duties of high steward of England; but subsequently engaging in the war on behalf of Perkin Warbeck, he suffered attainder and death at Calais, when the barony of Fitzwalter became forfeited. But his son, ROBERT RADCLIFFE, a great favourite of HENRY VIII., was restored in blood and honours, by act of parliament, in the first year of HENRY VIII., and became second BARON FITZWALTER of the Radclyffe family. Four years after, he accompanied the king in his great expedition to Tournay; and ten years subsequently, commanded the van of the army sent into France under the Earl of Surrey. For these eminent services, he was created, 18 July, 1525, VISCOUNT FITZWALTER, by letters patent, and subsequently in three years after, EARL OF SUSSEX. He m. 1st, the Lady Elizabeth, dau. of Henry, Duke of Buckingham; andly, Lady Margaret Stanley, dau. of Thomas, Earl of Derby; and 3dly, Mary, dau. of Sir John Arundel, of Lanherne, in Cornwall. SIR HENRY RADCLIFFE, K.B., Earl of Sussex and Baron Fitzwalter, who commanded 1600 demulances in the expedition into Scotland, in the first year of EDWARD VI., and narrowly escaped with his life. He was one of the first who, on the death of that monarch, declared for his sister MARY, and was in consequence, soon after her accession, appointed by that queen warden and chief justice of all the royal forests south of the Trent, and was also made a knight of the Garter. His lordship m. 1st, Lady Elizabeth Howard, dau. of Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, and had issue, Opinion of His Majesty's Attorney-General and Solicitor-General for Ireland.

"Upon the whole of this case, we are humbly of opinion that the said Garret Butler, the claimant of said title of Viscount of Galmoye, has well proved his right to the same, in case said attainer were out of the way, and that his majesty may, if he shall be graciously pleased so to do, recommend the proper measures to be taken to reverse the attainer created by the said act of WILLIAM III., in order that the said title, honour, or dignity of Viscount of

PEERAGES CLAIMED, ETC.

Galmoye, of the kingdom of Ireland, may be revived in the person of the petitioner, the said Garret Butler, the more so as such attainder arose from the acts of Piers, the third viscount, who was not the lineal ancestor of the said claimant, he having, as before stated, shown his right to the said title through the uncle of the said Piers.

Descent of the Dignity.

SIR EDWARD BUTLER, Knt., who was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 16 May, 1646, as VISCOUNT OF GALMOYE, co. Kilkenny, m. Anne, dau. of Edmund, 2nd Viscount Mountgarret, by whom he had two sons, viz.,

1. PIERS, of Barrowmount, colonel of dragons in the royal army, who fell at the battle of Worcester, in 1650, leaving by Margaret, dau. of the 1st Lord Netterville.

EDWARD, who s. his grandfather.

Richard, d. in 1678, without male issue.

Edmund, of Killoshulan, co. Kilkenny, ancestor of the present family.

Frances, m. to Hervey Morres, grandfather of the 1st Viscount Mountmorres.

Eleanor, m. to William Grace, Esq. of Ballyinch.

II. THOMAS, whose only child, Anne, m. William Cook, Esq. of Painstown.

The viscount d. in 1653, and was s. by his grandson,

EDWARD, 2nd viscount; who m. Eleanor, Lady Aston, dau. of Sir Nicholas White, Knt. of Leixlip, co. Kildare, by whom he had two sons, Piers and Richard; the younger of whom m. and had issue, JAMES, who assumed the title as 4th viscount; and d. s. p. in 1770.

Sophia, m. William Hay, Esq., of Nantes, ancestor of the Chevalier Hay, of the same place.

His lordship d. in 1667, and was s. by his elder son,

PIERS, 3rd viscount; a distinguished officer in the royal army (King JAMES's) at the battle of the Boyne, who was outlawed in consequence, 11 May, 1691; but being in the October following one of the commissioners for the surrender of Limerick, his lordship was included of course in the celebrated treaty of that city; following, however, the fortunes of his royal master (who had created him Earl of Newcastle) into France, he was despoiled of all his estates, and attainted in 1697, by the statute 9th WILLIAM III. c. 5. His lordship, who had the rank of lieutenant-general in the French service, dying in 1740, without male issue, the viscounty was assumed, notwithstanding the attainder, by his nephew and next male heir,

COLONEL JAMES BUTLER, of the Irish brigade in the French service, (eldest son of the deceased lord's only brother, the Hon. Richard Butler, of his Majesty King JAMES's body-guard,) as 4th viscount. His lordship d. s. p. in 1770, when the dignity was assumed by the illegitimate son of his youngest brother, Captain Francis-Piers Butler, of the Irish brigade, by Catherine-Julie de Vallory, (a lady whom Captain Butler eventually married, and acknowledging the said son, legitimated him according to the laws of France, but, indisputably, not according to the laws of England.)

PIERS-LOUIS-ANTOINE, as 5th viscount. This Piers dying issueless in 1826, it is of no importance whether he assumed, consistently with the English law of descent, the representation of the family or not; but while he lived, the branch which should have inherited the peerage did not urge their claim, owing to ignorance of the taint in the birth of the said Piers; but upon his decease, the present claimant and next male heir to the (assumed) 4th viscount, Garret Butler, Esq. of Garrendenny, Queen's Co., lost no time in asserting his right, upon which the law-officers of Ireland came to the favourable conclusion given above.

MONTROSE, DUKEDOM OF. JAMES LINDSAY, Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, claims the Dukedom of Montrose, which was conferred, in 1488, on David Lindsay, 4th Earl of Crawford.

PERTH, EARLDOM OF.

Claimant—GEORGE DRUMMOND, Duc DE MELFORT.

Descent of the Dignity.

The Earldom of Perth was conferred upon JAMES, 4th Lord Drummond, by patent, dated 4 March, 1646, to him and his heirs male whatsoever.

JAMES DRUMMOND, who s. his father in 1662, became 3rd EARL OF PERTH. He m. Lady Anne Gordon, dau. of George, Marquess of Huntly, by whom he had two sons and a dau., James and John (of whom hereafter, as Earl and Duke of Melfort), and Anne.

JAMES, the eldest son, succeeded 4th Earl of Perth, in 1675. He was m. three times: 1st, to Lady Jane Douglas, dau. of the 1st Marquess of Douglas, who was mother of James, Lord Drummond, his heir, (attainted in 1715;) 2ndly, to Lillias Drummond, dau. of James Drummond, of Machony, and widow of the Earl of Tullibardine, by whom he had JOHN; and 3rdly, to Lady Mary Gordon, dau. of Lewis, Marquess of Huntly, who was mother of Edward Drummond, in whom the Perth branch ended, in 1760. The Earl of Perth was chancellor of Scotland, and was created DUKE OF PERTH by JAMES II., at St. Germain, in 1695, with the same limitation as the earldom; that title was confirmed in France by LOUIS XIV., in 1701, on the death of King JAMES, at the same time as the titles of the Dukes of Berwick, FitzJames, Albemarle, and Melfort. His lordship d. at St. Germain, 11 May, 1716, and was s. by his son, James, Lord Drummond, who was styled 2nd Duke of Perth, and who, on account of his attainder, as Lord Drummond, in 1715, could not succeed to the Earldom of Perth, which became then legally dormant. This

JAMES, Lord Drummond, attainted in 1715, 2nd Duke of Perth, m. Lady Jane Gordon, dau. of the 1st Duke of Gordon, by whom he had two sons, JAMES and JOHN. He d. at Paris in 1717, and was s. by the elder,

JAMES, 3rd Duke of Perth, who was wounded at the battle of Culloden, and d. nam. during his passage over to France, on board the French frigate, the Bellona, 13 May, 1746. He was attainted in that year, but the attainder did not take effect upon him on account of his death; but it did upon his brother, Lord John Drummond, who had been included in the same act of attainder, "as the person taking upon himself the rank and style of Duke of Perth, and the person taking upon himself the rank and style of Lord John Drummond." This

LORD JOHN DRUMMOND, in whom the Drummond estates became forfeited, in 1746, d. without issue, in 1747. It was for him that the regiment of Royal Scotch, in the French service, was raised. He was s. by his uncle,

JOHN DRUMMOND, who was not affected by either the attainder of his elder brother, Lord Drummond, in 1715, or by the attainder of his nephews, in 1746, with regard to the Earldom of Perth, and legally could revive the title, and succeed to his father, the 4th Earl of Perth, at whose demise, in 1716, the earldom became dormant. At the death of this John, without issue, in 1787, his last brother,

EDWARD, succeeded, but d. without issue, in 1760; and in him ended all the male descendants of James, 4th Earl of Perth, at whose demise, in 1716, the earldom became dormant, on account of the previous attainder of his son, Lord Drummond. The representation of the Earldom of Perth thereupon reverted to his second cousin,

JAMES DRUMMOND, of Lundin,* grandson (by his first wife, Sophia, heiress of Lundin) of John Drummond, afterwards Earl and Duke of Melfort, who was 2nd son of James, 3rd Earl of Perth. This James Lundin assumed the name of Drummond, and became chief of that house, he was served heir to the last Earl in Edinburgh, in 1766, and thereupon assumed the title of Earl of Perth. He m. Lady Rachel Bruce, and had a son,

JAMES DRUMMOND, to whom the Drummond estates were restored in 1785, by the court of session and parliament, he being the nearest male heir of Lord John Drummond, in whom the estates became forfeited, in 1746, and was created a British peer, as LORD PERTH, in 1797. He d. in 1800, leaving an only dau., Sarah-Clementina Drummond, the present Lady Willoughby de Eresby. At his lordship's decease, the representation of the Earldom of Perth, which is limited to heirs male whatsoever, reverted to

CHARLES-EDWARD DRUMMOND, 6th Duke of Melfort; †

* FAMILY OF DRUMMOND OF LUNDIN.

THE HON. JOHN DRUMMOND (afterwards Earl and Duke of Melfort) m. 1st, Sophia, heiress of Lundin, and assumed the name of LUNDIN. He had two sons, James and Robert. JAMES LUNDIN, d. in 1699, and was s. by his brother, ROBERT LUNDIN, who m. Anne Inglis, and had two sons, John and James.

JOHN LUNDIN, d. without issue, and was s. by his brother JAMES, who s. Edward Drummond in 1786.

PEERAGES CLAIMED, ETC.

great-grandson of John Drummond, Earl and Duke of Melfort, by his 2nd wife, Euphemia Wallace. He was served heir to the Earls of Perth in Edinburgh, in 1802, but being a Roman-catholic prelate, could not bring his case before the House of Lords. He d. at Rome, in 1840, and was s. by his nephew, (the only son of his deceased younger brother, Leon-Maurice, by Luce Elizabeth de Longuemare, his wife.)

GEORGE DRUMMOND, 6th Duke de Melfort, Comte de Lussan, in France, the claimant, b. in London, on the 6th of May, 1807, who has assumed the title of Earl of Perth, in Scotland. He was formerly a captain in her Majesty's service, late of the 93rd regiment of Highlanders. His father and grandfather, though born out of the realm, were British subjects by law, and his blood is in no ways affected by the attainder of his great-great-grandfather, the Earl of Melfort, in 1695, (beyond the Earldom of Melfort,) as his great-grandfather, John, Lord Forth, through whom he succeeds to his great-great-granduncle, the 4th Earl of Perth, was b. in Scotland, in 1682, and was 13 years of age when his father, the Earl of Melfort, was attained; besides, the Earl of Melfort d. in Paris, in 1714, two years previous to his brother, the 4th Earl of Perth.

Claimant—JOHN-THOMAS DOLMAN, Esq.

Descent of the Dignity.

The king made him also a grant of the barony of Melfort and the estate of Duchal, which were dissolved from the crown by act of parliament, and limited by charter under the great seal of Scotland, to Euphemia Wallace, Countess of Melfort, his second wife, for life, and to revert to their eldest son, John, Viscount Forth. The Earl of Melfort followed his unfortunate master and benefactor, King JAMES II., and retired with him to St. Germain, where his majesty conferred on him, 17 April, 1693, the Dukedom of Melfort, which title was confirmed in France by LOUIS XIV., on the death of JAMES in 1701, with several others which had been granted by that monarch. MILES STAPLETON, 3rd baron, summoned to parliament in the 32nd EDWARD III. This nobleman was a person of great note at the period in which he lived. He participated in many of the French campaigns of EDWARD III., and marched under the banner of Philip of Navarre, to within nine leagues of Paris, when the French were obliged to enter into a truce. He was subsequently made a knight of the Garter. His lordship m. Joane, dau. and heir of Oliver de Ingham, Baron Ingham, and widow of Roger le Strange of Knokyn, and was s. at his decease, 47 Edw. III., by his son,

* By the date of Lord Gray's patent, 9 October, 1437, it would seem that his lordship should precede Lord Forbes, whose creation was in 1440, and at the election of peers of Scotland, 12 May, 1739, Lord Gray protested for precedence, and against the calling of Lord Forbes, or any other baron, before himself.

Note.—The foregoing list comprehends all the peerages extant, excepting minor titles that merge in superior ones of the same kingdom. It must be understood, however, that in many instances two or more dignities centre in one individual: thus—the Duke of Richmond is placed in his precedency as an English duke, and also as a Scottish one, as Duke of Lennox. The Duke of Leinster is amongst the dukes in his Irish dukedom, and amongst the viscounts in his English viscounty, &c. &c. Some lords, too, enjoy distinct peerages of the same grade, inherited from different ancestors, and in such cases both titles are given, each in its own order of precedency.

BRITISH ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

THE MOST HONOURABLE ORDER OF THE BATH.

Instituted in 1399. Revived in 1725. Enlarged in 1815.

On 2nd of Jan. 1815, it was declared that, "for the purpose of commemorating the auspicious termination of the long and arduous contest in which this empire has been engaged," the Order should be composed of three classes, viz.,

1st Class—to consist of knights grand crosses, number not to exceed seventy-two, exclusive of the sovereign and princes of the blood royal; one-sixth of which may be appointed for civil services. The remainder must have attained the rank of major-general in the army, or rear-admiral in the navy, and must have been previously appointed to the second class.

2nd Class—Knights commanders, number not to exceed, upon the first institution, one hundred and eighty, exclusive of foreign officers holding British commissions, of whom not exceeding ten may be admitted as Honorary knights commanders. In the event of actions of signal distinction, or of future wars, the number of this class may be increased. To be entitled to the distinctive appellation of knighthood; to have the same rights and privileges as knights bachelors, but to take precedence of them; to wear the badge, &c., pendent by a red ribbon round the neck, the star embroidered on the left side.

3rd Class—Companions of the Order, not limited in number; they are to take precedence of esquires, but are not entitled to the appellation, style, &c. of knights bachelors. To wear the badge assigned to the third class, pendent by a narrow red ribbon to the button-hole. No officer can be nominated, unless he shall have received a medal, or other badge of honour, or shall have been especially mentioned in despatches in the London Gazette, as having distinguished himself in action. This class has never been conferred upon any officer below the rank of major in the army and commander in the navy.

The new BADGE for the MILITARY CLASSES of the Order is a gold Maltese cross, of eight points, enamelled, argent, in the four angles, a lion passant, guardant, or; in the centre, the rose, thistle, and shamrock, issuant from a sceptre between three imperial crowns, or, within a circle, gules; thereon the motto of the Order, surrounded by two branches of laurel, proper, issuing from an escrol, azure, inscribed Ich Dien (I serve), in letters of gold. It is worn by the grand crosses pendent from a red ribbon across the right shoulder, by the knights commanders from the neck, and by the companions from the button-hole.

THE COLLAR is of gold, weighty thirty ounces Troy weight, and is composed of nine imperial crowns, and eight roses, thistle, and shamrock, issuing from a sceptre, enamelled in their proper colours, tied or linked together with seventeen gold knots, enamelled white, having the badge of the order pendent therefrom.

THE STAR OF THE MILITARY GRAND CROSSES is formed of rays, or flames of silver, thereon a gold Maltese cross, and in the centre, within the motto, branches of laurel, issuant as in the badge.

THE CIVIL KNIGHTS GRAND CROSSES retain the old badge and star of the Order, which is of silver, formed with eight points or rays, charged with three imperial crowns, proper, upon a glory of silver rays surrounded with a red circle, upon which is the motto of the Order. Their badge is of gold, and contains a rose issuing from the dexter side of a sceptre, and a thistle from the sinister, all between three imperial crowns encircled by the motto.

THE STAR OF THE KNIGHTS COMMANDERS is in the form of a cross-patée of silver, having the same centre as the grand crosses, but without a gold Maltese cross thereon.

BRITISH ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

THE MOST DISTINGUISHED ORDER OF ST. MICHAEL AND ST. GEORGE.

Instituted 27th April, 1818, by Letters Patent, under the great seal of Great Britain, for Natives of the United States of the IONIAN ISLANDS, and of the Island of MALTA and its Dependencies, and for such other subjects of his Majesty as may hold high and confidential situations in the Mediterranean.

By statutes, dated 16 Aug. 1832, the Order is to consist of fifteen Knights Grand Cross, exclusive of the Grand Master, twenty Knights Commanders, and twenty-five Cavalieri or Companions.

The members of the Order enjoy rank and precedence immediately after the corresponding classes of the Order of the Bath; that is to say, the Knights Grand Cross after Knights Grand Cross of the Bath; the Knights Commanders after the Knights Commanders of the Bath; and the Cavalieri and Companions after the Companions of the Bath, with the exception of the present Senior Cavaliere, who retains the appellation of British Knighthood ("Sir"), and the precedence assigned to him by the original statutes of April, 1818. All natives of the Ionian Islands and of Malta, who receive the third class of the Order, are styled "Cavalieri," and all natives of Great Britain and Ireland "Companions." The Grand Master is the First and Principal Knight Grand Cross, and the Lord High Commissioner to the Ionian States has precedence of all other Knights Grand Cross. The Knights Grand Cross are entitled to bear supporters, and to encircle their arms with the collar, ribbon, and motto of the Order. The Knights Commanders and Cavalieri also encircle their arms with the ribbon and motto; and the Companions suspend the badge of the Order to their arms.

HABIT AND INSIGNIA.

THE STAR of a Knight Grand Cross is composed of seven rays of silver, having a small ray of gold between each of them, and over all the cross of St. George, gules. In the centre is a representation of the Archangel St. Michael encountering Satan, within a blue circle, inscribed with the motto AUSPICIUM MELIORIS EVI.

THE COLLAR is formed alternately of lions of England, of Maltese crosses, and of the ciphers SM and SG, having in the centre the imperial crown, over two winged lions, passant, guardant, each holding a book, and seven arrows. At the opposite end of the collar are two similar lions. The whole is of gold, except the crosses, which are of white enamel, and it is linked together by small gold chains.

THE BADGE is a gold cross of fourteen points of white enamel, edged with gold, having in the centre, on one side, the Archangel St. Michael encountering Satan, and on the other, St. George, on horseback, encountering a dragon, within a blue circle, on which the motto of the Order is inscribed. The Cross is surmounted by the imperial crown, and is worn by the Knights Grand Cross to the Collar, or to a wide Saxon-blue ribbon with a scarlet stripe from the right shoulder to the left side.

THE MANTLE is of Saxon-blue satin, lined with scarlet silk, tied with cordons of blue and scarlet silk and gold, and has on the left side the star of a Knight Grand Cross.

THE CHAPEAU is of blue satin, lined with scarlet, and surmounted with white and black ostrich feathers.

THE KNIGHTS COMMANDERS wear the badge suspended to a narrower ribbon from the neck, and have on their left side a star composed of four rays, with a small cross of eight points in saltire, of silver, surmounted by the cross of St. George, gules, and having the same centre as the star of the grand crosses.

THE CAVALIERI and COMPANIONS wear the small cross of the Order from a still narrower ribbon, at the button-hole of their coats.

MOTTO—AUSPICIUM MELIORIS EVI.

 ICH DIEN. I serve. PRINCE OF WALES. The King of Bohemia, who fell at the battle of Crecy, had three ostrich feathers for crest, and this ICH DIEN for motto. The ensign and legend were adopted by the Black Prince of Wales,—the words, probably, on account of their apt allusion to the good service he did the day of that victory to his royal father and his country; and they have been continued by his successors, as a lasting memorial of his triumph.
 Illeas lumine solem. To gaze on the sun with unblinking eye: in reference to the crest, an eagle's head erased, which the Earl of Rosalyn bears in right of his descent from the family of Wedderburn. Rosalyn, E.

 In calligine luces. He shines in obscurity. Baillie, Bt.
 In Canopo ut ad Canopum. Louis, Bt. The sense of this legend is the most obscure in the whole list of mottoes. The following explanation has been offered by a learned correspondent. "Canopus is the name of a city in Egypt (Gens fortunata Canopo, Virg. Georg. iv. v. 237), now Aboukir, a place celebrated during the Crusades. The word also signifies a star (fixed) of the first magnitude, in the constellation Argos, and southern hemisphere, (Sidus ingens et elarum, Plin. Hist. Nat. vi. 22.) The motto may therefore have been assumed by a crusader, importing that to have fought for the king in Egypt (in Canopo), was the road to heaven, (ad canopum, a star, equivalent to ad astra.)" Admiral Louis, however, having died on board the ship Canopus, another meaning, though perhaps somewhat similar, is intended.

 In hoc signo spes mea. In this sign is my hope. Taffe, V.
 In hoc signo vinces. Under this sign thou shalt conquer. Arran, E. Burke, Bt. O'Donnell, Bt. Stanhope, Bt.
 It is to be observed that crosses form charges on the bearings of the families who use this motto. The legend therefore has in all probability been adopted from the account which Eusebius gives of Constantine, when about to engage the enemy, having seen in the heavens a cross with this inscription; a miracle which led to the victorious emperor's conversion to Christianity, and to his placing the sign and words on the imperial standard.

In the life of Sir Humphry Davy this is further illustrated. Sir Humphry there relates the powerful impression made upon him on inhaling a certain quantity of nitrous acid. When he tried the dangerous experiment of its effects on respiration, "Nothing exists but thought" was his exclamation.

 Lamh iadhr an nachtar. The strongest hand is on high. O'Brien, Bt. The literal translation of this motto is, "The strongest hand uppermost," but by an alteration of one letter in the last word it will mean, "The strongest hand is on high," or "in heaven;" and it has been so translated by the Marquess of Thomond, whose motto is in French, "Vigneur de dessus."
 Lamh derg Eirinn. The red hand of Ireland. O'Neill, V. In an ancient expedition of some adventurers to Ireland, their leader declared that whoever first touched the shore should possess the territory which he reached. O'Neill, from whom descend the princes of Ulster, bent upon obtaining the reward, and seeing another boat likely to land, cut his hand off and threw it on the coast. Hence the traditional origin of the motto. The RED HAND was adopted by JAMES I., as the badge on instituting the order of Baronet. The design of the institution being the colonisation of the province of Ulster, in Ireland, the arms of the province were deemed the most appropriate insignia.

 "They err indeed who think if single sway
 Should rule the land, 'tis slavery to obey:
 A good king's subjects cherish liberty,

The sentence is, "Manus hec inimica tyrannii, ense petit quietem sub libertate quietem," written in the album of the University of Copenhagen, by Algernon Sidney, when ambassador from the English commonwealth at the court of Denmark. Sidney also repeated them in the book of mottoes, in the royal library in the same city. Murus æneus conscientia sana. A sound conscience is a wall of brass. Scarborough, E.
Mutas inglorias artes. To exercise unambitious of glory the silent arts. Halford, Bt. This motto is an elegant quotation from the description of the physician Iæpis, in the twelfth book of Virgil's Æneid, which has thus been rendered by Dryden :
 “ Iæpis was at hand to prove his art,
 Whose blooming youth so fired Apollo's heart,
 That, for his love, he proffer'd to bestow
 His tuneful harp, and his unerring bow :
 The pious youth, more studious how to save
 His aged sire, now sinking to the grave,
 Preferr'd the power of plants, and silent praise
 Of healing arts, before Phœbean bays.”

The medical profession was by no means in honour at Rome. Every senator and rich Roman had his family physician among his own bondmen, and none but slaves practised the art until Augustus made Antonius Musa a freed man : in Greece it was different. Tasso, speaking of Erotimus, when attending on the wounded Tancred, closely imitates the lines of Virgil :

“ E già l'antico Erotimo, che nacque
 In riva al Pd, s'adopra in sua salute,
 Il qual de l'herbe, de e le nobil'acque
 Ben conosceva ogni uso, ogni virtute.
 Carò a le Muse ancor ; ma si compiacque
 Ne la gloria minor de l'arti mute
 Sol curò torre à morte i corpi frall,
 E potea far' i nomi ancor immortall.”
Tasso, Gier. Lib. canto xi. st. 70.

“ Gray Erotimus, born beside the Po,
 Came to his aid ; a sage who knew the use
 And secret virtues of all springs that flow—
 Of all green herbs the hills and woods produce :
 He, too, was smil'd on by the partial muse,
 But valued sweet Castalia's warbling wave
 Less than the mute fall of Pœnician dews ;

His science wounded men from death could save,
 And cancelled names in verse immortally engrave.”
J. H. Waiffen.

To Sir Henry Halford, the late baronet, both poet and physician, this passage from Tasso was particularly applicable.

 Yon sheaf of spears his crest has borne;
 Hence his high motto shines revealed,

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS
ON
BURKE'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE.

"'Burke's Peerage and Baronetage' is universally acknowledged to be one of the most splendid volumes that ever issued from the press. For the amazing quantity of personal and family history, admirable arrangement of details, and accuracy of information, this genealogical and heraldic dictionary is without a rival. The stamp of public approbation has been fixed upon it, and it is now the standard and acknowledged book of reference upon all questions touching pedigrees, and direct or collateral affinity with the titled aristocracy of the land. The extent of its information is, indeed, surprising. The lineage of each distinguished house it records is deduced through all the various ramifications. Every collateral branch, however remotely connected, is introduced; and the alliances are so carefully inserted as to show in all instances the connexion which so intimately exists between the titled and untitled aristocracy. We have also much most entertaining historical matter, and many very curious and interesting family traditions. The work is, in fact, a complete cyclopaedia of the whole titled classes of the empire, supplying all the information that can possibly be desired on the subject."—POST.

"This work has long maintained its ground as the best Genealogical and Heraldic Dictionary of the Peerage and Baronetage of the British Empire, and as the first authority on all questions affecting the aristocracy. It is certainly the most perfect and comprehensive encyclopaedia of personal and national history ever given to the public; combining surprising accuracy and important information with the greatest brevity and clearness, and exhibiting in a condensed and lucid form, the lives and achievements of the many eminent men who have shed lustre on the rolls of our nobility, from the steel-clad barons of Cressy and Agincourt to the heroes of Blenheim and Waterloo. The great amount of interesting matter relative to the collateral branches renders the work particularly valuable. Indeed, there is hardly a name connected with a Peer or Baronet that is not to be found in its pages."—GLEAN.

"'Burke's Peerage and Baronetage' is the most complete, the most convenient, and the cheapest work of the kind ever offered to the public. It forms one complete history of the whole titled aristocracy, with their wide-spreading connexions, from the earliest records in the public archives, generation after generation. Independently of the history of all the Peers and Baronets of the United Kingdom, it comprises the Peerages claimed, and before the house of Lords—all the orders of Knighthood, including those invested with Equestrian rank—the Garter's Official Roll, &c.; and other important genealogical documents."—SUN.

"This popular work justly deserves to be considered as a History of the British Nobility. It is enriched by a variety of personal anecdotes, never before published, relative to many illustrious houses, in addition to numerous authentic details connected with their lineage, and communicated to the author by the noble inheritors of the titles. The volume is, moreover, illustrated with upwards of 1500 heraldic plates, and is printed in double columns, with so remarkably clear and beautiful a type, as to comprise a quantity of matter equal to twenty octavo volumes."—JOHN BULL.

"Every edition of this work is essentially a new book, not alone from the peculiar nature of the subject-matter itself, changeable and progressive though it be beyond almost any other, but from the persevering research and industry of the author, who brings to every revision such a fresh store of information as enables him, while correcting erroneous and clearing up disputed statements, to add greatly to the extent and importance of his labours."—LITERARY GAZETTE.

BURKE'S DICTIONARY OF THE
EXTINCT, DORMANT, & ABEYANT PEERAGES
Of England, Scotland, and Ireland.

THIS work, formed on a plan precisely similar to that of Mr. Burke's popular Dictionary of the present Peerage and Baronetage, comprises those peerages which have been suspended or extinguished since the Conquest, particularizing the members of each family in each generation, and bringing the lineage, in all possible cases, through either collaterals or females, down to existing houses. It connects, in many instances, the new with the old nobility, and it will in all cases show the cause which has influenced the revival of an extinct dignity in a new creation. It should be particularly noticed, that this new work appertains nearly as much to extant as to extinct persons of distinction; for though dignities pass away, it rarely occurs that whole families do.

LORD GEORGE BENTINCK,
A POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY.
BY B. DISRAELI, M.P.

FROM BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE.—“This biography cannot fail to attract the deep attention of the public. We are bound to say, that as a political biography we have rarely, if ever, met with a work more dexterously handled, or more replete with interest. The exertions of Lord George Bentinck in behalf of every assailed or depressed branch of British and Colonial industry—the vast pains which he took in procuring authentic information—and the enormous amount of private labour he underwent in the preparation of those materials which have thrown a novel light upon disputed doctrines of economy—are faithfully chronicled in this most interesting volume. The history of the famous session of 1846, as written by Disraeli in that brilliant and pointed style of which he is so consummate a master, is deeply interesting. He has traced this memorable struggle with a vivacity and power unequalled as yet in any narrative of Parliamentary proceedings.”

FROM THE DUBLIN UNIVERSITY MAGAZINE.—“A political biography of Lord George Bentinck by Mr. Disraeli must needs be a work of interest and importance. Either the subject or the writer would be sufficient to invest it with both—the combination surrounds it with peculiar attractions. In this most interesting volume Mr. Disraeli has produced a memoir of his friend in which he has combined the warmest enthusiasm of affectionate attachment with the calmness of the critic, and in which he has not only added to his reputation, but we verily believe must increase his influence even as a politician.”

FROM THE MORNING HERALD.—“Mr. Disraeli's tribute to the memory of his departed friend is as graceful and as touching as it is accurate and impartial. No one of Lord George Bentinck's colleagues could have been selected, who, from his high literary attainments, his personal intimacy, and party associations, would have done such complete justice to the memory of a friend and Parliamentary associate. Mr. Disraeli has here presented us with the very type and embodiment of what history should be. His sketch of the condition of parties is seasoned with some of those piquant personal episodes of party manœuvres and private intrigues, in the author's happiest and most captivating vein, which convert the dry details of politics into a sparkling and agreeable narrative. But the portrait which will stamp the book as one of the most extraordinary productions of the time is that of Sir Robert Peel. It is written with wonderful force and extraordinary impartiality.”

Second Edition, in Two Vols., with Illustrations, 21s. bound.

EIGHT YEARS IN PALESTINE, SYRIA, AND ASIA MINOR,
FROM 1842 TO 1850.

BY F. A. NEALE, ESQ.,

LATE ATTACHED TO THE CONSULAR SERVICE IN SYRIA.

Opinions of the Press.

"One of the best accounts of the country and people that has been published of late years."—Spectator.

"A highly entertaining book, presenting a lively picture of Levantine life in all its varied aspects."—John Bull.

"A very agreeable book. Mr. Neale is evidently quite familiar with the East, and writes in a lively, shrewd, and good-humoured manner. A great deal of information is to be found in his pages."—Athenæum.

"Deeply interesting volumes. We have rarely met with a work from which we have derived so much pleasure and profit."—Messenger.

"We have derived unmingled pleasure from the perusal of these interesting volumes. Very rarely have we found a narrative of Eastern travel so truthful and just. There is no guide-book we would so strongly recommend to the traveller about to enter on a Turkish or Syrian tour as this before us. The information it affords is especially valuable, since it is brought up almost to the last moment. The narrative, too, is full of incident, and abounds in vivid pictures of Turkish and Levantine life interspersed with well-told tales. The author commences his narrative at Gaza; visits Askalon, Jaffa and Jerusalem, Caïpha and Mount Carmel, Acre, Sidon and Tyre, Beyrout, Tripoli, Antioch, Aleppo, Alexandretta, Adana, and Cyprus. Of several of these famous localities we know no more compact and clearer account than that given in these volumes. We have to thank Mr. Neale for one of the best books of travels that we have met with for a very long time."—Literary Gazette.

"Mr. Neale's book will claim the highest rank among works of this class. His long wanderings of eight years in the regions he describes have made him thoroughly familiar with localities, and with the domestic life of the population. Nothing can be more graphic than his picturesque descriptions; nothing more amusing than his sketches of native society; more piquant or more diverting than his stories, anecdotes, and adventures. He takes us out of the beaten tract of tourists into the nooks and corners, as well as into the cities and towns. He tells us everything of such places as Jerusalem, Antioch, Aleppo, Beyrout; but we now go for the first time to Beilan, Nargheslik, Alexandretta, Daphne's Cataracts, &c., &c. As might be expected in the narrative of one so familiar with what he treats of, the book is replete with new and valuable information."—United Service Magazine.

CAPTAIN SPENCER'S NEW WORK.

In 2 vols. 8vo. with Illustrations, and a valuable Map of European Turkey, from the most recent Charts in the possession of the Austrian and Turkish Governments, revised by the Author, 28s. bound.

TRAVELS IN EUROPEAN TURKEY IN 1850:

THROUGH BOSNIA, SERVIA, BULGARIA, MACEDONIA, ROUMELIA, ALBANIA, AND EPIRUS; WITH A VISIT TO GREECE AND THE IONIAN ISLES, AND A HOMEWARD TOUR THROUGH HUNGARY AND THE SCLAVONIAN PROVINCES OF AUSTRIA ON THE LOWER DANUBE.

By EDMUND SPENCER, ESQ.

Author of "TRAVELS IN CIRCASSIA," &c.

"These important volumes appear at an opportune moment, as they describe some of those countries to which public attention is now more particularly directed: Turkey, Greece, Hungary, and Austria. The author has given us a most interesting picture of the Turkish Empire, its weaknesses, and the embarrassments from which it is now suffering, its financial difficulties, the discontent of its Christian, and the turbulence of a great portion of its Mahomedan subjects. We are also introduced for the first time to the warlike mountaineers of Bosnia, Albania, Upper Moesia, and the almost inaccessible districts of the Pindus and the Balkan. The different nationalities of that Babel-like country, Turkey in Europe, inhabited by Slavonians, Greeks, Albanians, Macedonians, the Romani and Osmanli—their various characteristics, religions, superstitions, together with their singular customs and manners, their ancient and contemporary history are vividly described. The Ionian Islands, Greece, Hungary, and the Slavonian Provinces of Austria on the Lower Danube, are all delineated in the author's happiest manner.

"We cordially recommend Mr. Spencer's valuable and interesting volumes to the attention of the reader. They are replete with information upon countries of which we know but little; they will be interesting to the military man for the details they give of the strength and defensive positions of the various countries through which the author travelled; to the merchant for the insight given into the state of trade; and to the man of the world as they place before his view the present political and social state of an empire, whose welfare it is the interest of England to promote. The work must be considered a standard production, enriched, as it is, by an excellent map derived from the most authentic modern charts, added to, and improved by the observations of the author during his travels."—United Service Magazine.

"A work of great merit, and of paramount present interest."—Standard.

"This interesting work contains by far the most complete, the most enlightened, and the most reliable amount of what has been hitherto almost the terra incognita of European Turkey, and supplies the reader with abundance of entertainment as well as instruction."—John Bull.

"An excellent and admirable work. Mr. Spencer is a very able writer, a shrewd, experienced, and philosophical observer, an eminently thinking and yet practical man. His work forms the most valuable addition that our literature has lately received. He sets forth to inquire and learn; he returns to inform and suggest; and information most valuable and interesting has he here bestowed upon us."—Tait's Magazine.

ARCTIC MISCELLANIES,

A SOUVENIR OF THE LATE POLAR SEARCH.

BY THE OFFICERS AND SEAMEN OF THE EXPEDITION.

DEDICATED BY PERMISSION TO THE LORDS OF THE ADMIRALTY.

SECOND EDITION, WITH A NEW PREFACE AND INTRODUCTION.

Amongst the Contributors to the "Arctic Miscellanies" are Admiral Sir John Ross, Captain Ommaney, Commanders McClintock and Cator, Lieutenants Osburn, Meecham, Browne, and Markham, Dr. Donnett, and Dr. Ede.

FROM THE "TIMES."—This volume is not the least interesting or instructive among the records of the late expedition in search of Sir John Franklin, commanded by Captain Austin. The most valuable portions of the book are those which relate to the scientific and practical observations made in the course of the expedition, and the descriptions of scenery and incidents of arctic travel. Many of the latter possess considerable literary merit, and all are impressed with the vividness of fresh observation. From the variety of the materials, and the novelty of the scenes and incidents to which they refer, no less than the interest which attaches to all that relates to the probable safety of Sir John Franklin and his companions, the Arctic Miscellanies forms a very readable book, and one that redounds to the honour of the national character.

FROM THE "GLOBE."—Captain Austin's little squadron, which sailed in May, 1850, in search of Sir John Franklin, consisted of the Resolute, commanded by Captain Austin; the Assistance, commanded by Captain Ommaney; and two steamers under the command of Lieutenants Osburn and Cator. To assist in whiling away the dreary time in the arctic regions, the officers and sailors of the expedition contributed to a journal which was circulated amongst them in manuscript, and once a month the weather-beaten tars enjoyed the luxury of their own newspaper. That journal has now been brought before the general public under the title of "Arctic Miscellanies," in a shape more worthy of its intrinsic merits, beautifully printed, and carefully illustrated. All the varied incidents, pleasant and painful, of life in the frozen zone, are vividly and good-humouredly chronicled in the "Arctic Miscellanies," which contains besides some capital seamen's stories, superstitious "yarns" and drolleries. As a record of the pastimes, adventures, fancies, and feelings of our true-hearted gallant sailors, while undergoing the most appalling hardships in the frozen seas, the volume is invaluable; and it is unusually interesting as demonstrating the high intellectual capacities, the mental vigour, and the refined tastes of our rough-looking blue-jackets.

FROM THE "UNITED SERVICE MAGAZINE."—Beautifully got up, and profusely illustrated, this most pleasant book really charms as much by its appearance and its matter, as its novelty. We cannot take leave of this Arctic Souvenir without expressing our admiration of it in every point of view. Such productions should be encouraged by those in authority, and a copy of this work ought to be found on board every ship in commission.

D A R I E N ; OR,

THE MERCHANT PRINCE.

BY ELIOT WARBURTON, Esq.

Author of "THE CRESCENT AND THE CROSS," &c., 3 v.

"The present production, from the pen of the author of 'The Crescent and the Cross,' has the same elements of a very wide popularity. It will please its thousands. It is a tale of substantial interest."—Globe.

"The best work of fiction which has proceeded from Mr. Warburton's pen. It is full of absorbing interest."—Messenger.

"The theme of this book is a fine one. It is full of eloquent writing."—Examiner.

"'Darien,' like all Mr. Warburton's previous productions, has many passages of rich imaginative beauty. This eloquent narrative will be extensively read, and deserves to be so."—Daily News.

"A most interesting narrative, and one in which the versatile talents of its author are conspicuously and agreeably apparent. The characters are delineated with delicacy and skill, and there is a vigorous vitality in the dialogue which carries the reader along with a movement at once easy and rapid. The descriptions are remarkable for splendour of illustration and brilliancy of language, and the incidents are involved with such ingenuity as to preserve the interest to the last."—Morning Post.

"Few writers have so many admirers as Mr. Warburton. His 'Crescent and the Cross' is one of the standard works of the English language, and we shall be disappointed if the charming story of 'Darien' does not obtain an equal degree of success. The vicissitudes and stirring adventures of the hero, forming such a marvellous episode of real life—the beauty and striking characteristics of the heroine—and the vein of pathos and romance that pervades the whole tale, give the book a peculiar and irresistible charm. By those who love excitement it will be read with breathless interest. Mr. Warburton excels in the delineation of those incidents which call up the first powers of the novelist, and enchain the sympathies of the reader. His situations are admirably conceived, and wrought out with singular skill. His characters are strongly marked, and show the felicitous touch of a master."—United Service Magazine.

"The scheme for the colonization of Darien by Scotchmen, and the opening of a communication between the East and West across the Isthmus of Panama, furnishes the foundation of this story, which is in all respects worthy of the high reputation which the author of the 'Crescent and the Cross' had already made for himself. The early history of the Merchant Prince introduces the reader to the condition of Spain under the Inquisition; the portraits of Scottish life which occupy a prominent place in the narrative, are full of spirit; the scenes in America exhibit the state of the natives of the new world at that period; the daring deeds of the Buccaneers supply a most romantic element in the story; and an additional interest is infused into it by the introduction of various celebrated characters of the period, such as Law, the French financier, and Paterson, the founder of the Bank of England. All these varied ingredients are treated with that brilliancy of style and powerful descriptive talent, by which the pen of Eliot Warburton was so eminently distinguished."—John Bull.

JUDGE HALIBURTON'S NEW HISTORICAL WORK.

RULE AND MISRULE OF
THE ENGLISH IN AMERICA.

By the Author of

"SAM SLICK," "THE OLD JUDGE," &amp;c.

"A most attractive work."—Standard.

"The cleverest volumes Judge Haliburton has ever produced."—Messenger.

"We conceive this work to be by far the most valuable and important Judge Haliburton has ever written. The exhaustless fund of humour—quiet, yet rich and racy, and at the same time overflowing with the milk of human kindness—which his writings display on one hand, and the wonderful knowledge of man's character, in all its countless varieties, which they exhibit on the other, have insured for them a high, and honourable, and enduring station in English literature. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to arise from the perusal of any of Mr. Haliburton's performances without having become both wiser and better. His 'English in America' is, however, a production of a yet more exalted order. While teeming with interest, moral and historical, to the general reader, it may be regarded as equally constituting a philosophical study for the politician and the statesman. It will be found to dissipate many popular errors, and to let in a flood of light upon the actual origin, formation, and progress of the republic of the United States."—Naval and Military Gazette.

"Those who wish for an accurate history of the rise of republicanism in America to its grand development in the United States revolution, will here find a narrative that is invaluable for its accuracy, its impartiality, its admirable order in arrangement, and that true philosophy of statesmanship which can attach to each incident a fitting moral, from which every honest politician can derive instruction. The work is one equally useful in the double aspect in which it may be regarded—first, an insight into the causes of past transactions; second, as a warning to guide mankind amid the many perplexing political questions of the day. The spirit of impartiality animates every page of this work. It is deserving of a place in every historical library."—Morning Herald.

"We believed the author of this work to possess a power of humour and sarcasm second only to that of Rabelais and Sydney Smith, and a genuine pathos worthy of Henry Fielding, or Charles Dickens. In his particular line of literature we believed him to be unrivalled. In the volumes before us he breaks upon a new, and, according to his method of breaking the subject—untrodden ground. We hail this book with pleasure; we consider it an honour to Judge Haliburton, as by it he has proved himself to be a Christian, a scholar, a gentleman, and, in the true sense of a mis-used word, a patriot. Mr. Haliburton places before us, fairly and impartially, the history of English rule in America. The book is not only a boon to the historic student, it is also filled with reflections such as may well engage the attention of the legislating statesman. Mr. Haliburton also shows us the true position of the Canadas, explains the evils of our colonial system, points out the remedies by which these evils may be counteracted, that thus the rule of the 'English in America' may be something better than a history of the blunders, the follies, and the ignorant temerity of colonial secretaries."—Irish Quarterly Review.

SAM SLICK'S NEW COMIC WORK.

In 3 vols. post 8vo. 31s. 6d. bound.

TRAITS OF AMERICAN HUMOUR.

Edited

BY THE AUTHOR OF "SAM SLICK," &amp;c.

"We have seldom met with a work more rich in fun or more generally delightful."—Standard.

"Those who have relished the racy humour of the 'Clockmaker,' will find a dish of equally ludicrous and amusing Transatlantic wit in the volumes before us."—Herald.

"A new book by the author of 'Sam Slick' causes some stir among the laughter-loving portion of the community; and its appearance at the present festive season is appropriate. We hold that it would be quite contrary to the fitness of things for any other hand than that of our old acquaintance, the facetious Judge Haliburton, to present to us a Christmas dish, and call it 'Traits of American Humour.' But even without the recollection of 'Sam Slick' to evoke the spirit of fun within us, we should have been forced to yield to the racy humour of these American 'Traits.' Dip where you will into this lottery of fun, you are sure to draw out a prize."—Morning Post.

"The untravelled European who has not made the acquaintance of Sam Slick, can have but little knowledge of the manners, customs, humours, eccentricities, and lingos of the countless varieties of inhabitants of North America who we are accustomed to conglomerate under the general name of Yankees. Assisted, however, by Sam Slick's graphic descriptions, literal reports, and racy pen-and-ink sketches, gentlemen who sit at home at ease, are able to realize with tolerable accuracy the more remarkable species of this lively family, to comprehend their amusing jargon, to take an interest in their peculiarities of person and speech, and to enter into the spirit of their very characteristic humours. No man has done more than the facetious Judge Haliburton, through the mouth of the inimitable 'Sam,' to make the old parent country recognise and appreciate her queer transatlantic progeny; and in the volumes before us he seeks to render the acquaintance more minute and complete. His present collection of comic stories and laughable traits is a budget of fun full of rich specimens of American humour."—Globe.

"The reader will find this work deeply interesting. Yankeeism pourtrayed, in its raciest aspect, constitutes the contents of these superlatively entertaining volumes, for which we are indebted to our facetious old friend 'Sam Slick.' The work embraces the most varied topics,—political parties, religious eccentricities, the flights of literature, and the absurdities of pretenders to learning, all come in for their share of satire; while in other papers we have specimens of genuine American exaggerations, or graphic pictures of social and domestic life as it is, more especially in the ruder districts and in the back settlements, or again sallies of broad humour, exhibiting those characteristics which form in the country itself the subject of mutual persiflage between the citizens of different States. The work will have a wide circulation."—John Bull.

KHARTOUM, AND THE BLUE AND WHITE NILES.

BY GEORGE MELLY, ESQ.

SECOND EDITION, REVISED.

2 v. post. 8vo., with Map and Illustrations, 21s. bound.

"Mr. Melly is an animated writer, and a quick observer—his style is buoyant, lively, and agreeable, and his book is from first to last instructive and entertaining."—Morning Post.

"Independently of the amusement and information which may be derived from Mr. Melly's interesting work, the references to the relations which exist at this time between the Sublime Porte and Egypt are worthy of every consideration which statesmen and public men can bestow upon them."—Messenger.

"We cannot feel otherwise than grateful to the author of these valuable and useful volumes for having kept so faithful a journal, and for giving the public the benefit of his adventures and experience. The manners and customs of the natives, as well as the natural curiosities, and the relics of antiquity which the travellers visited, in turns engage the reader's attention; and, altogether, the book is a most entertaining and instructive vade-mecum to the interesting portion of the East of which it treats."—John Bull.

"Eminent in every mode of literature, Dr. Croly stands, in our judgment, first among the living poets of Great Britain—the only man of our day entitled by his power to venture within the sacred circle of religious poets."—Standard.

"The appearance of a volume of poems from a writer of such high repute as the author of 'Salathiel,' is an event in the history of modern literature. With a vigour of language in harmony with the subjects he has chosen, Dr. Croly has presented to us, in a poetic form, some of the most striking and instructive incidents in the sacred volume."—Messenger.

"This volume will be extensively read and admired. It is one of great interest, variety, and merit."—Post.

CLARA HARRINGTON;

A DOMESTIC TALE. 3 v.

"The writer of 'Clara Harrington' possesses thought, fancy, and originality, in no common degree."—Athenæum.

FALKENBURG.

By the Author of "MILDRED VERNON." 3 v.

"A tale of singular and fascinating beauty."—Britannia.
 "All discriminating readers will be of one accord as to the excellence of 'Falkenburg.' Be it truth or romance, it is a capital story. The characters are well delineated and cleverly contrasted—the descriptive passages are full of grace and elegance—the reflective full of strength and earnestness."—Morning Post.

MRS. MATHEWS; OR, FAMILY MYSTERIES.

By MRS. TROLLOPE.

Author of "FATHER EUSTACE," "THE BARNABYS," &c. 3 v.

"A production unique in character, and of singular merit. This interesting story displays remarkable knowledge of life and motive, and unites with great variety and fertility in the conception of character, greater freedom, energy, and minuteness of delineation, than any other of Mrs. Trollope's novels."—Morning Post.

"Those who open the present volumes with the expectation of enjoying another of those rich treats which Mrs. Trollope's clever pen periodically provides for the novel-reading public, will not be disappointed. The author proves the undiminished vigour of her inventive and descriptive powers."—John Bull.

CLARE ABBEY.

By the Author of "THE DISCIPLINE OF LIFE," &c. 2 v.

"Lady Ponsonby's 'Clare Abbey' is a delightful book, full of powerful and graceful writing."—Standard.

"In this story the talented author of 'The Discipline of Life,' has displayed all that power of painting the passions of the human heart, and the hard struggles between inclination and duty, of which her former work gave such ample proof. The tale has a fascinating interest, while its lofty moral tendency raises it above the ordinary level of works of fiction."—John Bull.

CALEB FIELD.

A TALE OF THE PURITANS.

By the Author of "PASSAGES IN THE LIFE OF MRS. MARGARET MAITLAND," "MERKLAND," &c. 1 v.

"This beautiful production is every way worthy of its author's reputation in the very first rank of contemporary writers."—Standard.

"As a delineator of manners and character, this author has scarcely an equal among living writers; while for the nobility of her sentiments, she stands all but alone above them all. 'Caleb Field' is a vindication of the Puritans—a sketch of their character and illustration of their deeds; in a story of moving interest, deeply exciting, full of novelty, and abounding in scenes of graphic beauty."—Sunday Times.

RAVENSCLIFFE.

"EMILIA WYNDHAM," "TWO OLD MEN'S TALES," &c. 3 v.

" 'Ravenscliffe contains scenes not surpassed in power and beauty by those in 'The Admiral's Daughter,' which announced an addition to the phalanx of English authoresses so remarkable as that of 'The Two Old Men.' No reader can bear the heroine company without feeling in some degree the same sense of powerlessness to cope with the fascinations of a dark destiny which is conveyed by the stories of Richardson's 'Clarissa,' and Scott's 'Lucy Ashton.' This is praise enough—yet not too much."—Athenæum.

" A story of remarkable power and beauty."—Post.

" A picture of an ill-starred marriage, such as Scott has not surpassed in the noble 'Bride of Lammermoor.' "—Examiner.

" 'Ravenscliffe' is beyond all question a work of genius, and full of power and originality. Its strength and vigour are extraordinary—the force with which scene after scene is unfolded, each rising above the other in power and interest, carries us breathless through the volumes."—Guardian.

JACOB BENDIXEN, THE JEW.

BY MARY HOWITT.

From the Danish. 3 v.

" This tale has the fascination and the value of a glimpse into a most strange world. We heartily commend the novel."—Athenæum.

" A very remarkable and delightful book, full of delicate beauty, elegant playfulness, and deep wisdom. It is a most fascinating tale, fraught with an important and touching lesson of mutual tolerance."—Daily News.

" As interesting as anything of Fredrika Bremer's."—Spectator.

" This new work, by Mary Howitt, will be found peculiarly attractive, no less from the interest of the story itself than from the entire novelty of its characters, scenes, and incidents. Mrs. Howitt says, in her preface: 'At the moment when we are searching into the social and moral condition of all classes, a faithful transcript of the life and feelings of the Jews cannot fail of being welcome. These pages unlock, as it were, that mysterious and sealed book, the heart of the Jew, and enable us to peruse the history of a human soul, which is as interesting as it is new—at the same time it makes us familiarly acquainted with the domestic life, manners, and feelings of a portion of the community which is, in general, as little known as if it belonged to another hemisphere.' "—Globe.

POPULAR WORKS OF FICTION.

MARIAN WITHERS.By GERALDINE E. JEWSBURY,

The personal sketches remind one of Douglas Jerrold. The style is admirable for its caustic and compressed vigour. Marian Withers will take a high rank among contemporary fictions."—*Weekly News.CECILE;*OR, THE PERVERT.

By the Author of "Rockingham." 1 v.

"We cannot too highly recommend this remarkable work. It is earnest and eloquent, charitable and kindly. The story is full of strong and genuine interest. The charm of the book is that it is so life-like, so full of home-truth and reality."—Morning Chronicle."The author of 'Cécile' is a writer to whom the scenes of high life in which he finds the matter of his stories are not mere guess-work—who puts his own experiences into the form of fiction."—*Examiner.THE LIVINGSTONES.

A STORY OF REAL LIFE. 3 v.

"This work has a real interest. The pictures of the Scottish homes, in which the heroine's youth is past, are excellent."—Examiner."Great freshness of matter is the characteristic of this novel. The writer possesses a knowledge of society, especially in Scotland, dramatic power in depicting character, and exhibiting scenes with moral purpose and soundly elegant reflection."—*Spectator.RALPH RUTHERFORD.

By the Author of "The Petrel." 3 v.

"Admiral Fisher's interesting nautical tale of 'Ralph Rutherford' is a worthy member of the Marryat class, full of animated scenes, serious and droll, with the halo of a love story thrown around it. There are passages and incidents which Tom Cringle might have been proud to have described."—*United Service Gazette.The LADY and the PRIEST.By MRS. MABERLY. 3 v."The sustained, the ever heightening interest, with which the story progresses to the end, and the power with which the characters are delineated, together with the allusions and illustrations applicable to the mighty conflict of the day between Rome and England, combine to make the fiction of 'The Lady and the Priest' one of the most exquisite romances, which, we doubt not, will, in addition to the keen enjoyment of the perusal, do more than hundreds of dry discussions and platform orations to impress the popular mind with the dangerous character of the Popish creed and system."—*John Bull.THE TUTOR'S WARD.

By the Author of

"Wayfaring Sketches," "Use and Abuse," &amp;c. 2 v.

"The 'Tutor's Ward' is a masterpiece of fiction. The plot of the story is charged to the full with extraordinary incidents and adventures. The characters are delineated with graphic power, the scenes finished with dramatic effect, and the tale conducted to its close with sustained interest. Rarely has the power of love over the female heart been more beautifully portrayed than in this splendid tale."—*John Bull.ARTHUR CONWAY;*OR, SCENES IN THE TROPICS.By CAPTAIN MILMAN,

Late 33rd Regiment. 3 v.

"A book of very rare merit. As a romance, replete with striking and affecting incidents; as a picture of life in the West Indies, as a delineation of tropical scenery, and of the grand and mysterious visitations of nature, 'Arthur Conway' stands unapproached by any modern work."—United Service Gazette."This work is not only interesting as a well-written, lively, exciting work of fiction, but valuable as a series of sketches of the civilisation and progress of the West Indies, embodying the reminiscences of scenery and character preserved by the author during a residence in the Caribbee Islands. The scenes where the Caribs are introduced are quite original in romance."—*Sunday Times.ALBAN;*A TALE.

By the Author of "Lady Alice." 3 v.

LIVES OF THE QUEENS OF ENGLAND.

BY AGNES STRICKLAND.

A New, Revised, and Cheaper Edition,

EMBELLISHED WITH PORTRAITS OF EVERY QUEEN.

In announcing the new, revised, and greatly augmented Edition of this important and interesting work, which has been considered unique in biographical literature, the publishers beg to direct attention to the following extract from the preface:—"A revised edition of the 'Lives of the Queens of England,' embodying the important collections which have been brought to light since the appearance of earlier impressions, is now offered to the world, embellished with Portraits of every Queen, from authentic and properly verified sources. The series, commencing with the consort of William the Conqueror, occupies that most interesting and important period of our national chronology, from the death of the last monarch of the Anglo-Saxon line, Edward the Confessor, to the demise of the last sovereign of the royal house of Stuart, Queen Anne, and comprises therein thirty queens who have worn the crown-matrimonial, and four the regal diadem of this realm. We have related the parentage of every queen, described her education, traced the influence of family connexions and national habits on her conduct, both public and private, and given a concise outline of the domestic, as well as the general history of her times, and its effects on her character, and we have done so with singleness of heart, unbiassed by selfish interests or narrow views. Such as they were in life we have endeavoured to portray them, both in good and ill, without regard to any other considerations than the development of the facts. Their sayings, their doings, their manners, their costume, will be found faithfully chronicled in this work, which also includes the most interesting of their letters. The hope that the 'Lives of the Queens of England' might be regarded as a national work, honourable to the female character, and generally useful to society, has encouraged us to the completion of the task."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"These volumes have the fascination of romance united to the integrity of history. The work is written by a lady of considerable learning, indefatigable industry, and careful judgment. All these qualifications for a biographer and an historian she has brought to bear upon the subject of her volumes, and from them has resulted a narrative interesting to all, and more particularly interesting to that portion of the community to whom the more refined researches of literature afford pleasure and instruction. The whole work should be read, and no doubt will be read, by all who are anxious for information. It is a lucid arrangement of facts, derived from authentic sources, exhibiting a combination of industry, learning, judgment, and impartiality, not often met with in biographers of crowned heads."—Times.

"A remarkable and truly great historical work. In this series of biographies, in which the severe truth of history takes almost the wildness of romance, it is the singular merit of Miss Strickland that her research has enabled her to throw new light on many doubtful passages, to bring forth fresh facts, and to render every portion of our annals which she has described an interesting and valuable study. She has given a most valuable contribution to the history of England, and we have no hesitation in affirming that no one can be said to possess an accurate knowledge of the history of the country who has not studied her 'Lives of the Queens of England.'"—Morning Herald.

"A most valuable and entertaining work. There is certainly no lady of our day who has devoted her pen to so beneficial a purpose as Miss Strickland. Nor is there any other whose works possess a deeper or more enduring interest. Miss Strickland is to our mind the first literary lady of the age."—Morning Chronicle.

"We must pronounce Miss Strickland beyond all comparison the most entertaining historian in the English language. She is certainly a woman of powerful and active mind, as well as of scrupulous justice and honesty of purpose."—Morning Post.

"Miss Strickland has made a very judicious use of many authentic MS. authorities not previously collected, and the result is a most interesting addition to our biographical library."—Quarterly Review.

"A valuable contribution to historical knowledge. It contains a mass of every kind of historical matter of interest, which industry and research could collect. We have derived much entertainment and instruction from the work."—Athenaeum.

MEMOIRS OF HORACE WALPOLE

AND HIS CONTEMPORARIES,

INCLUDING NUMEROUS ORIGINAL LETTERS, CHIEFLY FROM STRAWBERRY HILL.

EDITED BY

ELIOT WARBURTON, ESQ.

AUTHOR OF "THE CRESCENT AND THE CROSS," ETC.

2 vols. 8vo, with Portraits, 28s. bound.

Perhaps no name of modern times is productive of so many pleasant associations as that of "Horace Walpole," and certainly no name was ever more intimately connected with so many different subjects of importance in connexion with Literature, Art, Fashion, and Politics. The position of various members of his family connecting Horace Walpole with the Cabinet, the Court, and the Legislature—his own intercourse with those characters who became remarkable for brilliant social and intellectual qualities—and his reputation as a Wit, a Scholar, and a Virtuoso, cannot fail, it is hoped, to render his Memoirs equally amusing and instructive.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The biography before us is in all respects eminently satisfactory."—Morning Chronicle.

"These Memoirs offer a good subject, well treated, and indeed a necessary addition to the library of every English gentleman. The 'Memoirs of Horace Walpole and his Contemporaries' nearly completes the chain of mixed personal, political, and literary history, commencing with 'Evelyn' and 'Pepys,' carried forward by 'Swift's Journal and Correspondence,' and ending almost in our own day with the histories of Mr. Macaulay and Lord Mahon. Besides its historical value, which is very considerable, it cannot be estimated too highly as a book of mere amusement."—Standard.

"Two more interesting or entertaining volumes than these 'Memoirs of Horace Walpole' may be searched for for a long time before they will be found. The writer has woven into his narrative a rich fund of contemporary anecdote and illustration. Most of the nobles, wits, and litterati of the period are judiciously introduced."—Morning Post.

"Horace Walpole was the most remarkable man of his time; and posterity will do him the justice, now that his career is fully elaborated, to place him in the niche which belongs to him, as one whose influence in the affairs of his country has been far beyond the average of other men."—Messenger.

"This life of Horace Walpole is a very valuable and interesting addition to the historical library. We should be glad to see every part of our later history illustrated with equal clearness and impartiality."—Weekly Chronicle.

"Few works of the present day contain more matter fitted for entertainment and instruction."—Morning Herald.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The most complete, the most convenient, and the cheapest work of the kind ever given to the public."—Sun.

"The best genealogical and heraldic dictionary of the Peerage and Baronetage, and the first authority on all questions affecting the aristocracy."—Globe.

"For the amazing quantity of personal and family history, admirable arrangement of details, and accuracy of information, this genealogical and heraldic dictionary is without a rival. It is now the standard and acknowledged book of reference upon all questions touching pedigree, and direct or collateral affinity with the titled aristocracy. The lineage of each distinguished house is deduced through all the various ramifications. Every collateral branch, however remotely connected, is introduced; and the alliances are so carefully inserted, as to show, in all instances, the connexion which so intimately exists between the titled and untitled aristocracy. We have also much most entertaining historical matter, and many very curious and interesting family traditions. The work is, in fact, a complete cyclopædia of the whole titled classes of the empire, supplying all the information that can possibly be desired on the subject."—Morning Post.

The Landed Gentry of England are so closely connected with the stirring records of its eventful history, that some acquaintance with them is a matter of necessity with the legislator, the lawyer, the historical student, the speculator in politics, and the curious in topographical and antiquarian lore; and even the very spirit of ordinary curiosity will prompt to a desire to trace the origin and progress of those families whose influence pervades the towns and villages of our land. This work furnishes such a mass of authentic information in regard to all the principal families in the kingdom as has never before been attempted to be brought together. It relates to the untitled families of rank, as the "Peerage and Baronetage" does to the titled, and forms, in fact, a peerage of the untitled aristocracy. It embraces the whole of the landed interest, and is indispensable to the library of every gentleman. The great cost attending the production of this National Work, the first of its kind, induces the publisher to hope that the heads of all families recorded in its pages will supply themselves with copies.

"A work of this kind is of a national value. Its utility is not merely temporary, but it will exist and be acknowledged as long as the families whose names and genealogies are recorded in it continue to form an integral portion of the English constitution. As a correct record of descent, no family should be without it. The untitled aristocracy have in this great work as perfect a dictionary of their genealogical history, family connexions, and heraldic rights, as the peerage and baronetage. It will be an enduring and trustworthy record."—Morning Post.

"A work in which every gentleman will find a domestic interest, as it contains the fullest account of every known family in the United Kingdom. It is a dictionary of all names, families, and their origin,—of every man's neighbour and friend, if not of his own relatives and immediate connexions. It cannot fail to be of the greatest utility to professional men in their researches respecting the members of different families, heirs to property, &c. Indeed, it will become as necessary as a Directory in every office."—Bell's Messenger.

GERMANY; ITS COURTS AND PEOPLE.

BY THE BARONESS BLAZE DE BURY.

Second and Cheaper Edition. 2 vols. 8vo, 21s. bound.

This work comprises a complete picture of the various courts and people of the Continent, as they appear amidst the wreck of the recent revolutions. The author possessed, through her influential connexions, peculiar facilities for acquiring exclusive information on the topics treated of. She succeeded in penetrating into provinces and localities rarely visited by tourists, and still glowing with the embers of civil war, and followed the army of Prussia in Germany, of Russia in Hungary, and of Radetzky in Italy. Her pages teem with the sayings and doings of almost all the illustrious characters, male and female, whom the events of the last two years have brought into European celebrity, combined with graphic views of the insurrectionary struggles, sketches of the various aspects of society, and incidents of personal adventure. To give an idea of the scope and variety of the contents of the work, it need only be mentioned that among the countries visited will be found Prussia, Austria, Hungary, Bavaria, Saxony, Servia, Styria, the Tyrol, Hanover, Brunswick, Italy, &c. To enumerate all the distinguished personages with whom the writer had intercourse, and of whom anecdotes are related, would be impossible; but they include such names as the Emperors of Austria and Russia, the Kings of Prussia, Hanover, Bavaria, and Wurtemberg, the Count de Chambord (Henry V.), the Queens of Bavaria and Prussia, the ex-Empress of Austria, the Grand Duke of Baden, the Archdukes John, Francis, and Stephen of Austria, Duke Wilhelm of Brunswick, the Prince of Prussia, Prince John of Saxony, the Countess Batthyanyi, Madame Kossuth, &c. Among the statesmen, generals, and leading actors in the revolutionary movements, we meet with Radowitz, Von Gagern, Schwarzenberg, Bekk, Esterhazy, the Ban Jellacic, Windischgratz, Radetzky, Welden, Haynau, Wrangel, Pillersdorf, Kossuth, Blum, Gorgey, Batthyanyi, Pulszky, Klapka, Bem, Dembinski, Hecker, Struve, &c.

“An important, yet most amusing work, throwing much and richly-coloured light on matters with which every one desires to be informed. All the courts and people of Germany are passed in vivid review before us. The account of the Austrians, Magyars, and Croats, will be found especially interesting. In many of its lighter passages the work may bear a comparison with Lady Mary Wortley Montagu's Letters.”—Morning Chronicle.

CRITICAL OPINIONS.

EDINBURGH REVIEW.

"We unhesitatingly characterise this journal as the most remarkable production of its kind which has ever been given to the world. Pepys paints the Court, the Monarchs, and the times, in more vivid colours than any one else. His Diary makes us comprehend the great historical events of the age, and the people who bore a part in them, and gives us more clear glimpses into the true English life of the times than all the other memorials of them that have come down to our own."

ATHENÆUM.

"The best book of its kind in the English language. The new matter is extremely curious, and occasionally far more characteristic and entertaining than the old. The writer is seen in a clearer light, and the reader is taken into his inmost soul. 'Pepys' Diary' is the ablest picture of the age in which the writer lived, and a work of standard importance in English literature."

QUARTERLY REVIEW.

"'Pepys' Diary' throws a distinct and vivid light over the picture of England and its government during the period succeeding the Restoration. If, quitting the broad path of history, we look for minute information concerning ancient manners and customs, the progress of arts and sciences, and the various branches of antiquity, we have never seen a mine so rich as these volumes. The variety of Pepys' tastes and pursuits led him into almost every department of life. He was a man of business, a man of information, a man of whim, and, to a certain degree, a man of pleasure. He was a statesman, a bel-esprit, a virtuoso, and a connoisseur. His curiosity made him an unwearied, as well as an universal, learner, and whatever he saw found its way into his tables."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"By far the most important work on the important age of Charles I. that modern times have produced."—Quarterly Review.

"Mr. Disraeli has conceived that the republication of his father's 'Commentaries on the Life and Reign of Charles I.' is peculiarly well timed at the present moment; and he indicates the well-known chapters on the Genius of the Papacy, and the critical relations of Protestant sovereigns with Roman Catholic subjects, as reflecting, mirror-like, 'the events, thoughts, passions, and perplexities of the present agitated epoch.' In particular, he observes, that the stories of conversions to the Romish faith, then rife, seem like narratives of the present hour, and that the reader is almost tempted to substitute the names of his personal acquaintances for those of the courtiers of Charles. No apology was needed for reintroducing to the world so instructive and original a work as that of Isaac Disraeli."—Times.

"At the end of 250 years, Rome and England are engaged in a controversy having the same object as that in which they were committed at the commencement of the seventeenth century; and no where will the reader find the circumstances of that controversy, its aims, the passions which it evoked, the instruments which it employed, and its results, better described than in this excellent book."—Standard.

"The position attained by the late Mr. Disraeli's admirable and learned commentaries on the great events of the Revolution, and the times that led to it, would at any period have warranted its republication. To those, however, to whom the bearing of its remarks, and the effect of the author's researches are known on the religious question of that day, their apt and effective bearing on the most vital topic of our present religio-political existence, will give the reappearance of the work an additional value."—Britannia.

"The history of Charles I. required a Tacitus, and, in our opinion, this work ought to have that standard character."—Gentleman's Magazine.

LIVES OF THE PRINCESSES OF ENGLAND.

By MRS EVERETT GREEN,

EDITOR OF THE "LETTERS OF ROYAL AND ILLUSTRIOUS LADIES."

3 vols., post 8vo, with Illustrations, 10s. 6d. each, bound.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"A most agreeable book, forming a meet companion for the work of Miss Strickland, to which, indeed, it is an indispensable addition. The authoress, already favourably known to the learned world by her excellent collection of 'Letters of Royal and Illustrious Ladies, has executed her task with great skill and fidelity. Every page displays careful research and accuracy. There is a graceful combination of sound, historical erudition, with an air of romance and adventure that is highly pleasing, and renders the work at once an agreeable companion of the boudoir, and a valuable addition to the historical library. Mrs. Green has entered upon an untrodden path, and gives to her biographies an air of freshness and novelty very alluring. The first two volumes (including the Lives of twenty-five Princesses) carry us from the daughters of the Conqueror to the family of Edward I.—a highly interesting period, replete with curious illustrations of the genius and manners of the Middle Ages. Such works, from the truthfulness of their spirit, furnish a more lively picture of the times than even the graphic, though delusive, pencil of Scott and James."—Britannia.

"The vast utility of the task undertaken by the gifted author of this interesting book can only be equalled by the skill, ingenuity, and research displayed in its accomplishment. The field Mrs. Green has selected is an untrodden one. Mrs. Green, on giving to the world a work which will enable us to arrive at a correct idea of the private histories and personal characters of the royal ladies of England, has done sufficient to entitle her to the respect and gratitude of the country. The labour of her task was exceedingly great, involving researches, not only into English records and chronicles, but into those of almost every civilised country in Europe. The style of Mrs. Green is admirable. She has a fine perception of character and manners, a penetrating spirit of observation, and singular exactness of judgment. The memoirs are richly fraught with the spirit of romantic adventure."—Morning Post.

"This work is a worthy companion to Miss Strickland's admirable 'Queens of England.' In one respect the subject-matter of these volumes is more interesting, because it is more diversified than that of the 'Queens of England.' That celebrated work, although its heroines were, for the most part, foreign Princesses, related almost entirely to the history of this country. The Princesses of England, on the contrary, are themselves English, but their lives are nearly all connected with foreign nations. Their biographies, consequently, afford us a glimpse of the manners and customs of the chief European kingdoms, a circumstance which not only gives to the work the charm of variety, but which is likely to render it peculiarly useful to the general reader, as it links together by association the contemporaneous history of various nations. The histories are related with an earnest simplicity and copious explicitness. The reader is informed without being wearied, and alternately enlivened by some spirited description, or touched by some pathetic or tender episode. We cordially commend Mrs. Everett Green's production to general attention; it is (necessarily) as useful as history, and fully as entertaining as romance."—Sun.

MADAME PULSZKY'S MEMOIRS.

Comprising Full and Interesting Details of THE LATE EVENTS IN HUNGARY.

With an Historical Introduction by FRANCIS PULSZKY, Late Under-Secretary of State to Ferdinand, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary.

Dedicated to the Marchioness of Lansdowne. 2 vols., post 8vo, 21s. bound.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The nationality of the people, their martial prowess, and present unhappy fate, have invested Hungary with the interest of a second Poland, and Western Europe must be naturally desirous to learn something of their civil and social life. These volumes are the joint production of M. and Madame Pulszky. While the latter records her impressions and recollections of Hungarian life, we have to thank M. Pulszky for a very able summary of the history of Hungary, from the days of Arpad to the reign of Ferdinand the First, and the reform movement—a history which abounds in interesting incidents and useful lessons for the statesman and the philosophic historian. Madame Pulszky's narrative of her wanderings and dangers is agreeably diversified with sketches and anecdotes from Magyar life, as well as with ancient legends from Hungarian history and modern passages in the late war of independence. It cannot fail to excite an interest in all classes of readers—in those who open a book only for amusement, as well as in those who look for something more enduring."—Edinburgh Review.

"We need hardly inform our readers that the authoress of this work is the accomplished wife of the gentleman who was originally accredited to the English cabinet by the provisional government of Hungary. The private interest attaching to the recital of events which have become so famous would insure a wide popularity for Madame Pulszky's book. But we should very much under-estimate its value if we so limited our praise. The memoirs, indeed, contain sketches of social life which are worthy of a place by the side of Madame de Staël de Launay and Madame Campan. But they are also rich in political and topographical information of the first character. Madame Pulszky was in the habit of direct intercourse with the foremost and most distinguished of the Hungarian generals and statesmen, and has given a complete summary of the political events in Hungary, from the arrival of the Hungarian deputation in 1848, to the treason of General Gorgey on the 13th of August, 1849. M. Pulszky has also prefixed a valuable introduction, which gives the most complete history of Hungary that has ever issued from the English press."—Globe.

"With all the charms of romance, these volumes possess the graver interest of history. Full of personal anecdotes, historical reminiscences, and legendary associations; teeming with interesting adventures, rich in social illustration and topographical description, the memoirs present to all classes of readers an attraction quite independent of the recent important events, of which they give so clear and connected a narrative."—Morning Post.

"In this most interesting book we have revealed in the characteristic memoirs of an eye-witness the whole story of Hungary and its revolution. The intrigues of Latour with Jellachich, the treachery of the court, the part taken by Kossuth and other eminent characters, the Hungarian deputation to the Emperor, and the final breach between Hungary and Austria, are told as forcibly as simply."—Daily News.

"It is impossible that the great Hungarian struggle for freedom can ever find a historian more honest in point of narrative, more sincere in conviction, or more anxious to do full justice to the truth than Madame Pulszky."—Observer.

DIARY AND CORRESPONDENCE

JOHN EVELYN, F.R.S.,

Author of "Sylva," &amp;c.

A NEW EDITION, REVISED AND ENLARGED, WITH NUMEROUS ADDITIONAL NOTES.

UNIFORM WITH THE NEW EDITION OF PEYPS' DIARY.

In 4 vols., post 8vo, price 10s. 6d. each, with Illustrations.

N.B.—The First Two Volumes, comprising "The Diary," are now ready.

The Diary and Correspondence of John Evelyn has long been regarded as an invaluable record of opinions and events, as well as the most interesting exposition we possess of the manners, taste, learning, and religion of this country, during the latter half of the seventeenth century. The Diary comprises observations on the politics, literature, and science of his age, during his travels in France and Italy; his residence in England towards the latter part of the Protectorate, and his connexion with the Courts of Charles II. and the two subsequent reigns, interspersed with a vast number of original anecdotes of the most celebrated persons of that period. To the Diary is subjoined the Correspondence of Evelyn with many of his distinguished contemporaries; also Original Letters from Sir Edward Nicholas, private secretary to King Charles I., during some important periods of that reign, with the King's answers; and numerous letters from Sir Edward Hyde (Lord Clarendon) to Sir Edward Nicholas, and to Sir Richard Brown, Ambassador to France, during the exile of the British Court.

A New Edition of this interesting work having been long demanded, the greatest pains have been taken to render it as complete as possible, by a careful re-examination of the original Manuscript, and by illustrating it with such annotations as will make the reader more conversant with the numerous subjects referred to by the Diarist.

"It has been justly observed that as long as Virtue and Science hold their abode in this island, the memory of Evelyn will be held in the utmost veneration. Indeed, no change of fashion, no alteration of taste, no revolution of science, have impaired, or can impair, his celebrity. The youth who looks forward to an inheritance which he is under no temptation to increase, will do well to bear the example of Evelyn in his mind, as containing nothing but what is imitable, and nothing but what is good. All persons, indeed, may find in his character something for imitation, but for an English gentleman he is the perfect model."—Quarterly Review.

BURKE'S DICTIONARY OF THE
OF ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, AND IRELAND.

Beautifully printed, in 1 vol. 8vo, containing 800 double-column pages, 21s. bound.

This work, formed on a plan precisely similar to that of Mr. Burke's popular Dictionary of the present Peerage and Baronetage, comprises those peerages which have been suspended or extinguished since the Conquest, particularising the members of each family in each generation, and bringing the lineage, in all possible cases, through either collaterals or females, down to existing houses. It, connects, in many instances, the new with the old nobility, and it will in all cases show the cause which has influenced the revival of an extinct dignity in a new creation. It should be particularly noticed, that this new work appertains nearly as much to extant as to extinct persons of distinction; for though dignities pass away, it rarely occurs that whole families do.

ANECDOTES OF THE ARISTOCRACY,
AND EPISODES IN ANCESTRAL STORY.

By J. BERNARD BURKE, Esq.,

Author of "The History of the Landed Gentry," "The Peerage and Baronetage," &c.

SECOND AND CHEAPER EDITION, 2 vols., post 8vo, 21s. bound.

The memoirs of our great families are replete with details of the most striking and romantic interest, throwing light on the occurrences of public as well as domestic life, and elucidating the causes of many important national events. How little of the personal history of the Aristocracy is generally known, and yet how full of amusement is the subject! Almost every eminent family has some event connected with its rise or greatness, some curious tradition interwoven with its annals, or some calamity casting a gloom over the brilliancy of its achievements, which cannot fail to attract the attention of that sphere of society to which this work more particularly refers, and must equally interest the general reader, with whom, in this country, the records of the higher classes have always possessed a peculiar attraction. The anecdotes of the Aristocracy here recorded go far to show that there are more marvels in real life than in the creations of fiction. Let the reader seek romance in whatever book, and at whatever period he may, yet nought will he find to surpass the unexaggerated reality here unfolded.

"Mr. Burke has here given us the most curious incidents, the most stirring tales, and the most remarkable circumstances connected with the histories, public and private, of our noble houses and aristocratic families, and has put them into a shape which will preserve them in the library, and render them the favourite study of those who are interested in the romance of real life. These stories, with all the reality of established fact, read with as much spirit as the tales of Boccacio, and are as full of strange matter for reflection and amazement."—Britannia.

"We cannot estimate too highly the interest of Mr. Burke's entertaining and instructive work. For the curious nature of the details, the extraordinary anecdotes related, the strange scenes described, it would be difficult to find a parallel for it. It will be read by every one."—Sunday Times.

"The grand features of the recent Italian movement in favour of a national existence have had no other such authentic portraiture as these volumes convey. The State documents and letters which the work contains make it indispensable to the historian of these times. The whole panorama of the Revolution is here gone over—the reform movement beginning at Rome—the agitation caused thereby in Florence and Naples, thence spreading to Sicily, Piedmont, and Austrian Italy—the threats and hostile attitude of the Court of Vienna—the spirited revolt of the Sicilians—the increased tyranny of German generals in Lombardy—the crash of the Parisian Revolution—the rise of the populace of Milan against Radetzky, the declaration of Charles Albert, and advance of the Sardinian troops—the battle of Goito—the exultation of feeling in Rome and Florence—the flight of the Grand Duke of Tuscany—the revolution in Naples—the treachery of Pope and King—the dreadful massacre in Naples—the disasters of Charles Albert—the bombardment of Brescia—the glorious defence of Venice—the flight of the Pope from Rome—the arrival of Mazzini—the proclamation of the Republic from the Capitol—the invasion of the Roman States by the armies of Spain, Austria, France, and Naples—the fall of Venice and of Rome—and the whole chain of events down to the Pontiff's return."—Athenaeum.

MEMOIRS AND CORRESPONDENCE OF
SIR ROBERT MURRAY KEITH, K.B.,
Minister Plenipotentiary at the Courts of Dresden, Copenhagen, and Vienna, from 1769 to 1793; with Biographical Memoirs of
QUEEN CAROLINE MATILDA, SISTER OF GEORGE III.
EDITED BY MRS. GILLESPIE SMYTH.

2 vols., post 8vo, with Portraits, 25s. bound.

Sir Robert Murray Keith, it will be recollected, was one of the ablest diplomatists of the last century, and held the post of Ambassador at the Court of Copenhagen, when Caroline Matilda, Queen of Denmark, the unfortunate sister of George III., was involved in the conspiracy of Struensee, and was only saved from the severest punishment her vindictive enemy the Queen-Mother could inflict, by the spirited interposition of the British Ambassador. Sir Robert Keith also for a long period represented his Sovereign at the Courts of Dresden and Vienna; and his papers, edited by a member of his family, throw considerable light on the diplomatic history of the reign of George III., besides conveying many curious particulars of the great men and events of the period. Among the variety of interesting documents comprised in these volumes, will be found—Letters from Frederick, King of Prussia; Caroline Matilda, Queen of Denmark; Princes Ferdinand of Brunswick, Kaunitz, and Czartoriski; the Dukes of Cumberland, York, Queensbury, Montagu, and Newcastle; Lords Stormont, St. Asaph, Heathfield, Hardwicke, Darlington, Anckland, Apsley, Barrington, Stair; Counts Bentinck and Rosenberg; Baron Trenck; Field-Marsbals Conway and Keith; Sirs Walter Scott, Joseph Yorke, Nathaniel Wraxall, John Sebright; Dr. Robertson, Mr. Pitt, Howard, Mrs. Piozzi, Mrs. Montagu, &c., &c.

"A large portion of this important and highly interesting work consists of letters, that we venture to say will bear a comparison for sterling wit, lively humour, entertaining gossip, piquant personal anecdotes, and brilliant pictures of social life, in its highest phases, both at home and abroad, with those of Horace Walpole himself."—Court Journal.

M. A. THIERS' HISTORY OF FRANCE, FROM THE PERIOD OF THE CONSULATE IN 1800, TO THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO.

A SEQUEL TO HIS HISTORY OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

Having filled at different times the high offices of Minister of the Interior, of Finance, of Foreign Affairs, and President of the Council, M. Thiers has enjoyed facilities beyond the reach of every other biographer of Napoleon for procuring, from exclusive and authentic sources, the choicest materials for his present work. As guardian to the archives of the state, he had access to diplomatic papers and other documents of the highest importance, hitherto known only to a privileged few, and the publication of which cannot fail to produce a great sensation. From private sources, M. Thiers, it appears, has also derived much valuable information. Many interesting memoirs, diaries, and letters, all hitherto unpublished, and most of them destined for political reasons to remain so, have been placed at his disposal; while all the leading characters of the empire, who were alive when the author undertook the present history, have supplied him with a mass of incidents and anecdotes which have never before appeared in print, and the accuracy and value of which may be inferred from the fact of these parties having been themselves eye-witnesses of, or actors in, the great events of the period.

NARRATIVE OF A TWO YEARS'
RESIDENCE AT NINEVEH;
 AND
 TRAVELS IN MESOPOTAMIA, ASSYRIA, AND SYRIA, WITH REMARKS ON THE CHALDEANS, NESTORIANS, YEZIDEES, &c.
 By the Rev. J. P. FLETCHER. Two vols., post 8vo, 21s. bound.

These Travels embrace not only Nineveh and its antiquities, but various new and interesting particulars respecting the Yezidees, the Nestorians, and Oriental Christians, as well as notices of the country between Mosul and Aleppo, which has been explored by few European travellers. The intimate relations with the natives of the country entered into by Mr. Fletcher, who resided some years at Mosul, during his inquiries into the condition of the Oriental Churches, have furnished him with a vast fund of anecdote and illustration. The work also comprises disquisitions on the ancient cities of Mesopotamia, and on the successive empires established between the Tigris and Euphrates, with remarks on the hypothesis advocated by Major Rawlinson as regards the early Assyrian kings.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"A work of great merit—the remarks of a highly intelligent and acute observer. The work is not less acceptable as a book of travel than it is valuable as an auxiliary to the archaeology of the Holy Scriptures."—Standard.

"At a time when the startling discoveries of Mr. Layard have called public attention to the cradle of Asiatic civilisation, the notes of a two years' residence on the mighty plain of Nineveh, and of excursions into the remotest parts of Assyria, from the pen of another traveller, cannot fail to excite more than ordinary interest. Mr. Fletcher, well versed in the questions connected with the geography of Scripture, and with the history and position of the different Churches of the East, made his observations on the countries which he visited, not as an ordinary traveller who picks up his knowledge casually, here and there, but as an experienced student, who knows beforehand upon what points he is to direct his inquiries. His volumes form an instructive and agreeable pendant to Mr. Layard's more exclusively antiquarian researches. The reader will meet with much valuable information which he would look for in vain elsewhere."—John Bull.

"A book which lets us more into the secret of the habits and ideas of the natives of Eastern Asia, more especially of the Christian population, than any work we could point out. Mr. Fletcher brings fresh and valuable information from that new centre of antiquarian research. He had the rare good fortune to be present at the first discoveries of M. Botta; and he is not without claims to be ranked as a discoverer himself. But his disposition and his opportunities make him a better describer of the living than of the dead. The circle of his inquiries was by no means confined to Nineveh, but extended to the whole Christian population of Asiatic Turkey, of whose habits, ideas, observances, and general condition he gives a minute, interesting, and, we are convinced, authentic account. The condition of the Eastern Churches is exciting much curiosity at present, and his detailed description of them will be most interesting to the religious world. Our extracts will sufficiently show what varied, interesting, and useful matter these volumes contain."—Daily News.

"Two volumes abounding in lively and graphic sketches of scenes visited and of characters encountered."—Athenæum.

"There is a great deal of original hypothesis and much gratifying information in these volumes. Mr. Fletcher is an acute observer, and a well-read historian. His work deserves to be popular, and cannot fail to increase our knowledge of the countries of which it treats."—Evangelical Magazine.

THE YEAR-BOOK OF THE COUNTRY;

OR, THE FIELD, THE FOREST, AND THE FIRESIDE.

By WILLIAM HOWITT,

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The world is always happy to hear from Mr. Howitt concerning 'the seasons and their signs'—the garden, the woodland, and their ever-changing shows of beauty—and the characters and humours which animate and chequer rural life. He treats of these topics with that affluence of poetical imagination and experience which there is no counterfeiting—with that thorough love which, coming from the heart of the writer, goes direct to the heart of the reader. The present volume is as fresh in spirit and as rich in matter as if it were the first of its family. The illustrations by Mr. Foster are excellent. The book is at once welcome to read and goodly to see. It is richly, poetically, picturesquely various. We cannot doubt of its having a welcome as wide as its range of contents, and as cordial as the love of man and of nature, which every line of it breathes."—Athenæum.

"To all lovers of country life we recommend this excellent volume, as abounding in thoughts and suggestions eminently calculated to enlarge the sphere of their enjoyment as well as their usefulness; and to all lovers of the town we recommend it as likely to reform their tastes, and awaken them to pure delights which they have not yet tasted. The work is a complete country companion for the whole year—in the field, in the forest, and at the fireside. It is divided into twelve sections, each of which relates to a particular month of the year, and not only describes all the natural features of the season, but the habits of life and customs appropriate to each."—Morning Post.

"A highly amusing book, supplying, from rural anecdote, description, and observation, something appropriate to each season. The illustrations are very beautiful."—Standard.

"A perfect transcript of rural life in all its phases. In every respect a most attractive book. Mr. Howitt paints nature as it is, and gives descriptions of its endless charms with an elegance of manner that wins its way with readers of every class."—Messenger.

"This very attractive and delightful work is evidently one written con amore. Mr. Howitt's productions have always displayed an intense, and, so to speak, elegant and cultivated love of Old England's rural beauties; and the present book will form an admirable companion to his 'Book of the Seasons.' In the present instance there is an abundant and interestingly applied variety of matter illustrative of human pleasures and pursuits in the country. A country life, indeed, is here seen in all its points of view—in the field, the forest, and by the fireside. It is curious to observe the variety of subjects treated of, either in prose or poetry, in these right pleasant and entertaining pages. The natural characteristics, peculiar customs, and usual avocations incident to each month in the year are described in a striking manner. Anecdotes, sketches of character, &c., are introduced with considerable skill and effect, adding much to the interesting nature of the book. The 'Autumnal Excursions' form some of the most attractive parts of the volume; and the legends scattered throughout are told with peculiar spirit and effect. Indeed, the work is altogether a charming one; and the illustrations, admirably engraved on wood, from exceedingly clever and pretty designs, by Mr. Birket Foster, are quite worthy of the pages in which they appear."—Morning Advertiser.

MR. DISRAELI'S CONINGSBY

CHEAP STANDARD EDITION, WITH A NEW PREFACE.

In 1 vol., with Portrait, 6s. bound.

"We are glad to see that the finest work of Disraeli has been sent out in the same shape as those of Dickens, Bulwer, and other of our best novelists, at such a price as to place them within the reach of the most moderate means. 'Coningsby' has passed from the popularity of a season to an enduring reputation as a standard work. It is a valuable contribution to popular literature."—Weekly Chronicle.

ZOOLOGICAL RECREATIONS.

By W. J. BRODERIP, Esq., F.R.S.

CHEAPER EDITION, 1 vol., post 8vo, 6s. bound.

"We believe we do not exaggerate in saying that, since the publication of White's 'Natural History of Selborne,' and of the 'Introduction to Entomology,' by Kirby and Spence, no work in our language is better calculated than the 'Zoological Recreations' to fulfil the avowed aim of its author—to furnish a hand-book which may cherish or awaken a love for natural history."—Quarterly Review.

TALES OF HUNGARY.

BY FRANCIS and THERESA PULSZKY. Cheaper Edition.

"The authors of the present charming tales have not only produced these most interesting volumes, but have opened a region of fiction which will be eagerly explored by many readers."—Messenger.

THE DREAMER AND THE WORKER.

ADVENTURES OF A GREEK LADY,

THE ADOPTED DAUGHTER OF THE LATE QUEEN CAROLINE.

WRITTEN BY HERSELF. 2 vols., post 8vo, 21s. bound.

"The chief interest of this more than ordinarily interesting book lies in the notices it furnishes of the unfortunate Queen Caroline. From the close of 1814 till her Royal Highness's return to England the author was never absent from her for a single day. All is ingeniously and artlessly told, and the plain truth finds its way at once to the reader's judgment and feelings."—Court Journal.

COLBURN'S UNITED SERVICE MAGAZINE, AND NAVAL AND MILITARY JOURNAL.

The attention of the public, and particularly that of the United Services and the Army and Navy of the East India Company, is respectfully invited to this periodical, which has now been established twenty-five years, and embraces subjects of such extensive variety and of such powerful interest as must render it scarcely less acceptable to readers in general than to the members of those professions for whose use it is more particularly intended.

Independently of a succession of Original Papers on innumerable interesting subjects, Personal Narratives, Historical Incidents, Correspondence, &c., each number comprises Biographical Memoirs of Eminent Officers of all branches of service, Reviews of New Publications, either immediately relating to the Army or Navy, or involving subjects of utility or interest to the members of either, Full Reports of Trials by Courts Martial, Distribution of the Army and Navy, General Orders, Circulars, Promotions, Appointments, Births, Marriages, Obituary, &c., with all the Naval and Military Intelligence of the Month.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"This is confessedly one of the ablest and most attractive periodicals of which the British press can boast, presenting a wide field of entertainment to the general as well as the professional reader. The suggestions for the benefit of the two Services are numerous, and distinguished by vigour of sense, acute and practical observation, an ardent love of discipline, tempered by a high sense of justice, honour, humanity, and a tender regard for the welfare and personal comfort of our soldiers and seamen."—Globe.

"At the head of those periodicals which furnish useful and valuable information to their peculiar classes of readers, as well as amusement to the general body of the public, must be placed the 'United Service Magazine, and Naval and Military Journal.' It numbers among its contributors almost all those gallant spirits who have done no less honour to their country by their swords than by their pens, and abounds with the most interesting discussions on naval and military affairs, and stirring narratives of deeds of arms in all parts of the world. Every information of value and interest to both the Services is culled with the greatest diligence from every available source, and the correspondence of various distinguished officers which enrich its pages is a feature of great attraction. In short, the 'United Service Magazine' can be recommended to every reader who possesses that attachment to his country which should make him look with the deepest interest on its naval and military resources."—Sun.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS ON
COLBURN'S UNITED SERVICE MAGAZINE.

“This truly national periodical is always full of the most valuable matter for professional men. It abounds with excellent articles, the personal memoirs of distinguished officers of both Services, results of valuable military and naval experience, fragments of interesting travels, and light tales of adventure, all of which are well blended, and form a most harmonious ensemble.”—Morning Herald.

“Colburn's United Service Magazine' is always a welcome visitor. Its numbers contain an absolute redundancy of able and important articles, the value of which is not merely confined to any peculiar distinctive interest that military and naval men may attach to them. Independent of its attractions to the two Services, there is a mass of sterling reading which no class of intelligent persons will fail to appreciate.”—Morning Post.

“A magazine which is not only an honour to the Services that patronize it, but also to the literature of the country.”—Standard.

“To military and naval men, and to that class of readers who hover on the skirts of the Services, and take a world of pains to inform themselves of all the goings on, the modes and fashions, the movements and adventures connected with ships and barracks, this periodical is indispensable. It is a repertory of facts and criticisms—narratives of past experience, and fictions that are as good as if they were true—tables and returns—new inventions and new books bearing upon the army and the navy—correspondence crowded with intelligence—and sundry unclaimed matters that lie in close neighbourhood with the professions, and contribute more or less to the stock of general useful information.”—Atlas.

“The 'United Service Magazine' is an invaluable repository of excellent articles on naval and military warfare, with respect to the science, the statistics, and the management of the two branches of the Service. It is, moreover, a most useful chronicler of all current events relating to our mercantile and national marine, and to every branch of our army, whether under Government or in the service of the East India Company. Its attention to colonial affairs and miscellaneous subjects is most useful.”—Weekly Dispatch.

“This is one of the most permanently useful of the magazines, containing matter valuable not only to the naval and military reader, but to the historian and politician. It has, moreover, sketches of manners, scenery, and adventure, from the pens of some of the most popular writers of the day. Its digest of news is admirable, its lists of the posts among which our armies and fleets are divided are of the last utility, while its amusing and able correspondence is another excellent feature.”—Brighton Guardian.

NOTICE.

THE Board of Directors, anxious to afford to the Public all facilities, which, in the present state of Life Insurance can be extended to holders of Policies; and availing themselves of the great advances which of late years have been made in Life Insurance as a science; have carefully revised the system of Assurance on Lives adopted by "THE GLOBE;" and have to announce that, from the 1st January, 1852, all New Policies completed on and after that date, are entitled to the advantages stated in the following outline of the scheme of Life Business, which then came into operation; viz.,

1. Two Scales of moderate Premiums—Participating and Non-Participating—and which will be found on comparison to correspond generally with the Rates of other long-established offices.

2. The apportionment to Participating Insurers, at the end of each Seven Years, of TWO-THIRDS of the Net Profits applicable to that class of the Life Business of the Company.

3. The application of the BONUS then declared, in any one of three modes—namely, By addition to the Policy; By reduction of future Premiums; or, By an equivalent payment in Cash.

4. Permission to the holders of Participating Policies of £500 and upwards, to leave One-Third of their annual Premiums unpaid at interest, as a loan upon the Policy.

5. The concession by the Company to the Assured, in the ordinary course of business, of every advantage and facility which can be safely granted.

It has been the desire of the Directors, in adopting these modifications, to bear constantly in mind the leading principle of the "GLOBE INSURANCE COMPANY" from its formation; namely,—to afford to every holder of its policies Perfect Security for the strict fulfilment of the engagements they contain. The Directors have not attempted to enter upon a race of competition with any Life Office, however high its reputation. Their wish and endeavour have been to act with entire independence; and to present to their supporters and the Public a scheme of Life Business, which, as far as possible, and consistently with the information they possess, shall be Safe, Just, and Liberal.

EVERY CLASS OF FIRE INSURANCE BUSINESS TRANSACTED AS USUAL.

A PROSPECTUS, containing further information and Details; and Tables of Premiums for INSURANCES ON LIVES, according to various plans—and also the Rates of ANNUITY granted by the "GLOBE INSURANCE"—may be had at the Offices of the Company; or of any of their Agents.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

This Corporation has effected Assurances on Lives for a period of One Hundred and Thirty Years.

Two-thirds of the entire gross profits are appropriated to the Assured, the Corporation retaining the remaining one-third, out of which they pay the whole expenses of management, thus affording to the public advantages equivalent to those derived from Mutual Assurance, without liability of partnership, and with all the security afforded by an old and opulent corporation. Policies may be opened under any of the three following plans—viz.,

The Old Series, under which assurers are admitted at very moderate rates of premium, without participation in profits.

The Series 1831, under which assurers are entitled, after the first five years, to an annual abatement of premium: the abatement at the last valuation was equivalent to a return of more than one-fourth of the premium.

The Series 1846, under which assurers are entitled to participate in the ascertained profits at the end of every five years, and to appropriate their share thereof, either as an immediate cash bonus; as an addition to the sum assured; or it may be made a matter of special arrangement, and applied in any manner most convenient to the assured. The first division under this series took place on the 31st December, 1850, and amounted, on an average, to a Reversionary Bonus, equivalent to about 53 per cent. upon the amount of Premiums paid.

POLICIES IN THIS OFFICE ARE INDISPUTABLE, EXCEPT IN CASES OF FRAUD.

Persons who have been seen by a Medical Officer of the Society are not required to appear before the Directors.

"Free Policies" are issued, at a small increased rate of Premium, which remain in force although the Life assured may go to any part of the World.

Policies do not become void by the Life assured going beyond the prescribed limits,—so far as regards the interest of Third Parties—provided they pay the additional Premium, so soon as the fact comes to their knowledge.

Parties Assuring within Six Months of their last Birthday are allowed a diminution of Half-a-year in the Premium.

The Tables are especially favourable to young and middle-aged Lives, and the Limits allowed to the Assured, without extra charge, are unusually extensive.

Eighty per cent. of the Profits are divided at the end of every Five years among the Assured.—At the first Division, to the end of 1849, the addition to the amount Assured averaged above 50 per cent. on the Premiums paid.

Under the Patronage of Her Majesty.
