Dit is een digitale kopie van een boek dat al generaties lang op bibliotheekplanken heeft gestaan, maar nu zorgvuldig is gescand door Google. Dat doen we omdat we alle boeken ter wereld online beschikbaar willen maken.

Dit boek is zo oud dat het auteursrecht erop is verlopen, zodat het boek nu deel uitmaakt van het publieke domein. Een boek dat tot het publieke domein behoort, is een boek dat nooit onder het auteursrecht is gevallen, of waarvan de wettelijke auteursrechttermijn is verlopen. Het kan per land verschillen of een boek tot het publieke domein behoort. Boeken in het publieke domein zijn een stem uit het verleden. Ze vormen een bron van geschiedenis, cultuur en kennis die anders moeilijk te verkrijgen zou zijn.

Aantekeningen, opmerkingen en andere kanttekeningen die in het origineel stonden, worden weergegeven in dit bestand, als herinnering aan de lange reis die het boek heeft gemaakt van uitgever naar bibliotheek, en uiteindelijk naar u.

THIS important national work has been undertaken as a Companion to Mr. Burke's "Dictionary of the Peerage and Baronetage," and upon a similar plan, in order that the two publications may embrace the whole body of the British Peerage, Baronetage, and Gentry, and may furnish such a mass of authentic information in regard to all the principal families in the kingdom as has never before been brought together. It relates to the untitled families of rank, as the "Peerage and Baronetage" does to the titled, and forms, in fact, a peerage of the untitled aristocracy, embracing the whole of the landed interest. The landed gentry of England are so closely connected with the stirring records of its eventful history, that some acquaintance with them is a matter of necessity with the legislator, the lawyer, the historical student, the speculator in politics, and the curious in topographical and antiquarian lore; and even the very spirit of ordinary curiosity will prompt to a desire to trace the origin and progress of those families whose influence pervades the towns and villages of our land. This work, abounding in interesting anecdote, and displaying deep research, must rank among the first class of those publications which elucidate or connect themselves with the annals of our country. It is, therefore, a most necessary companion to the "Peerage and Baronetage," and indispensable to the library of every gentleman.

"This valuable work is at length completed, and after a careful examination, from time to time, of its merits, we have no hesitation in saying that, from its general accuracy, and the vast care bestowed upon its compilation and printing, it will be productive of much and lasting credit, both to editors and publisher. A work of this kind is of a national value. It may be regarded as the Domesday Book of our time. Its utility is not merely temporary, but it will exist and be acknowledged as long as the families whose names and genealogies are recorded in it continue to form an integral portion of the English constitution. As a correct record of descent, no family should be without it, inasmuch as the information it conveys relative to collateral as well as lineal genealogy, may prove absolutely requisite to establish claims to rank or property, which so commonly, in the absence of a link in the historical evidence, fail to be granted. The expense incurred by the enterprising publisher in the production of this edition of 'The Landed Gentry' has amounted to nearly six thousand pounds. This is a large sum to expend upon a single work, but since, from its national character, no library, public or private, can fail to procure it, we think, and hope, it will prove an undertaking as remunerative as it is creditable. The untitled aristocracy have in this great work as perfect a dictionary of their genealogical history, family connexions, and heraldic rights, as the Peerage and Baronetage. It will be an enduring and trustworthy record."—MORNING POST.

"This most useful and valuable national work is one in which every gentleman in the kingdom will find a domestic interest, as it contains the fullest account of nearly every known family in the United Kingdom. It is a dictionary of all names, families, and their origins,—of every man's neighbour and friend, if not of his own relatives and immediate connexions. It comprises the genealogical history of that class in society which holds the next place to the privileged order—the untitled country gentlemen—a class not one degree below the other in antiquity of descent, personal accomplishment, and national usefulness; nay, the very chiefs of the houses from which the nobility sprung are generally to be found in this division of the aristocracy. The work evinces in every page the deep research, indefatigable perseverance, and unremitting labour of its able author; and is evidently compiled from authentic documents supplied by the families enumerated. It cannot fail to be of the greatest utility to professional men in their researches respecting the members of different families, heirs to property, &c. Indeed, it will become as necessary as a Directory in every office."—MESSENGER.

ROMANTIC RECORDS OF
BEING A SECOND SERIES OF ANECDOTES OF THE ARISTOCRACY.

By J. BERNARD BURKE, Esq.,

Author of "The Peerage and Baronetage," "The Landed Gentry," &c.

THIS NEW WORK, on which the Author has been employed for a considerable time, will be found to comprise the most singular episodes and extraordinary incidents in the domestic history of our great and noble families—passages IN REAL LIFE of such curious and exciting interest as go far beyond the fictions of romance.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"It rarely happens that a sequel is equally successful with its predecessor. The work before us, however, presents a remarkable instance of this well-sustained recommendation. It has the agreeable anecdotic spirit of the first series, combined with somewhat more of its ancestral interest. It consists of some sixty narratives, which have the charm of the novel and romance blended with sober biography. The strange vicissitudes and awful fatalities which chequer the fortunes of the personages who figure in these pages are very striking; now we have a family tradition of the reign of Charles I., the very age of omens; then a story of sanguinary fight and fray; then a tragedie of the olden time; next a tale of romantic love, of combat, and duel; of lawsuit and disinheritance; of unexpected accession to wealth and honours, and as unlooked for deprivation of them; of the decadence of families—how a baronet of olden descent became a tapster in the King's Bench prison, and a Plantagenet a sexton! These, however, are but a few of the very attractive characteristics of Mr. Burke's new volumes of 'Anecdotes of the Aristocracy,' which we now commend to our readers."—ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

"'The Anecdotes of Aristocracy' may be commended as pleasant reading, and interesting as contributing information to those who love 'family secrets,'—and to whom the rise, progress, and fall of ancient races is a matter of pursuit."—ATHENÆUM.

"From the copious materials afforded by the history of the English Aristocracy, Mr. Burke has made another, and a most happy selection, adding a second wing to his interesting picture gallery. Some of the most striking incidents on record in the annals of high and noble families are here presented to view. Lawless deeds prompted by wild passions in days when both religion and law exercised less power of restraint than they do at present, sometimes overtaken by terrible vengeance in this world, at other times unpunished and unexpiated on this side of the grave, fill a considerable portion of these pages with records as tragic as any of those which the great dramatists of Greece have immortalized. Alternating with them, and redeeming the character of humanity, we have tales of gentle and happy love, of generous and daring chivalry. The reverses suffered by noble houses in the course of the civil wars, constitute another large ingredient of the vast mass of entertainment provided for the reader of these volumes. Legendary stories of wild romance—some of them reaching into the mysteries of the unseen world—form a singular contrast with the well-attested realities of modern days; for even down to our contemporaries—some of them still in the land of the living—Mr. Burke's indefatigable research extends."—JOHN BULL.

"That 'truth is strange, stranger than fiction,' is a saying so familiarly and so constantly brought before us, that it is tacitly allowed by all, and has passed almost into a proverb. Mr. Burke has contrived by the aid of his intimate knowledge of family history to present a series of narratives remarkable for their curiosity and variety, and no teller of invented tales is more amusing than he. His stories range over early and recent times."—ART JOURNAL.

"This is a most interesting series, full of that species of information which is always valuable to those who aim at the distinction of being pleasing raconteurs. The work of Mr. Burke has, however, more substantive merit than this; he has caught the salient points of character, which it is the highest merit of the biographer to retain, and he has managed to render his anecdotes illustrative of different phases of society without in the least detracting from the interest which a superficial class might only wish to extract from them."—ATLAS.

"Mr. Burke writes with a facile and elegant pen, and tells a story with much grace and vigour. 'The Anecdotes of the Aristocracy,' has a right to rank as a romance of English History, and for interest and excitement it may rival the most popular book of the day. There is much information as well as amusement, conveyed in the pages, and we predict for it, as a remarkably 'readable' work, a long and extensive circulation."—WEEKLY DISPATCH.

THE high reputation this DICTIONARY OF THE PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE has for many years enjoyed, and its continuous progress in public estimation, render any prefatory observations almost unnecessary.

To each successive reprint the most assiduous attention is devoted; each article is separately and distinctly revised, emended where inaccuracy is discovered, and extended by such new information as may be obtained from public records, or private papers regarded as trustworthy. The voluminous collections made by the Author for his "HISTORY OF THE LANDED GENTRY" and other genealogical works, have, in this respect, been found of the utmost value; those papers having, in frequent instances, thrown new light upon the Peerage and Baronetage, by showing that many branches still in the station of country gentlemen only, are nevertheless the chiefs of several ennobled and dignified families; and further, have enabled the Author to enter more at large into collateral lines, and thus to enrich his pages by an accession of names to the respective pedigrees, which had previously been entirely excluded or forgotten.

To insure, however, complete and continuous accuracy, it is earnestly requested that communications relative to any errors that may be discovered, or any additions that may be found necessary, be addressed to the Author, care of Messrs. Colburn & Co., 13, Great Marlborough Street.

INTRODUCTION.

THE PEERAGE.

THE NOBILITY OF ENGLAND,* like the nobles of other countries, are a privileged order ; but, personally, their immunities are very unimportant, and minister much more to the pomp than the power of the possessor. In their legislative capacity, the peers of England form one of the estates of the realm—that immediately between the crown and the people ; in their judicial, they constitute its highest tribunal and court of dernier appeal : their functions—legislative and judicial—are inherent and exercised without responsibility. The nobility of England bear the ensign of dominion in the minor crown ; but it is merely the ensign—they wield no minor sceptre. They are clothed in the purple and ermine of royalty, but they are invested with no regal jurisdiction, and they enjoy no sovereign seigniorship. In no one instance can the proudest peer transgress with impunity the laws of the land ; in no one instance can the haughtiest lord invade the rights of the humblest commoner ; and in no one instance (in matters of moment) can a noble exercise an authority which a commoner dare not assume. Thus, then, the aristocracy of the British Empire, like its other inimitable institutions, exists but as a link in the great chain which connects the community at large,—a link more polished, perhaps, than any of the other—hardly more powerful.

The first order of nobility introduced after the Norman Conquest was that of

Baron by Tenure,†

A dignity attached to the possession of certain lands held, according to the feudal system, directly under the crown, and conditionally upon the performance of some honorary services to the king ; such as attending him in the field and the cabinet, and

* Origin of hereditary nobility.—"We must not," says Francis Hotoman, the celebrated civilian, in his "Franca Gallia," written in 1574, "omit making mention of the cunning device made use of by Hugh Capet for establishing himself in his new dominions, (of King of France, anno 987.) For whereas all the magistracies and honours of the kingdom, such as Dukedoms, Earldoms, &c., had been hitherto, from ancient times, conferred upon select and deserving persons in the general conventions of the people, and were held only during good behaviour, whereof (as the lawyers express it) they were but beneficiaries, Hugh Capet, in order to secure to himself the affections of the great men, was the first that made those honours perpetual which were formerly but temporary, and ordained, that such as obtained them should have an hereditary right in them, and might leave them to their children. Of this, see Franciscus Conanus, the Civilian, Comment. i. chap. 9." When the kings of France conferred a dignity, they erected an estate into a MARQUISATE, a COMTE, or a BARONY, and then granted it to the person whom they meant to ennoble. By the old law of France, the acquisition of a fief de dignité ennobled the possessor of it, and gave him a right to the title of honour annexed to such fief.

† Lord Coke has observed, that in ancient records the Barony included all the nobility of England ; because, regularly, all noblemen were Barons, though they had a higher dignity ; and the great council of the nobility, when there were besides Earls and Barons Dukes and Marquesses, were all comprehended under the name of the "Council de Baronage."

furnishing a stipulated quota of knights, or men-at-arms; which quota was regulated by the territorial possessions of the baron, those possessions being divided into allotments, for each of which he was required to provide a knight, armed cap-a-pie, whenever the sovereign commanded his presence in the field; hence, according to the number of warriors the feudal lord provided, he was said to possess so many knights' fees. But in the reign of King JOHN, an alteration of great importance took place in the rights of the Barons and tenants in capite, for, only the principal Barons, or Barones Majores, were summoned to attend parliament by particular writs from the King; and the rest, who acquired the appellation of Barones Minores, were called by one general summons from the sheriffs of their respective counties; and in the following reign,* some new law is said to have been made, by which it was established that no person, though possessed of a barony, should come to parliament without being expressly summoned by the King's writ. Barons by tenure have long ceased to exist; and more than a century and a half ago (A.D. 1669), in the case of the Fitzwalter peerage, when Benjamin Mildmay was restored to that barony in opposition to Robert Cheeke, the lord of the soil, whence the dignity was alleged to have sprung, the House of Lords declared, "that baronies by tenure having been discontinued for many ages, were not then in being, and so not fit to be revived, or to admit any pretence of right of succession." And recently, in 1805, the house resolved, in the case of the Barony de Ros, claimed by the Duke of Rutland, as feudal lord, from the possession of Belvoir Castle, said to have been the fountain of that dignity, "that his grace was not entitled to the barony;" and it was subsequently confirmed to one of the co-heirs, Lady Henry Fitzgerald.† There is, however, one earldom extant—that of Arundel, which the ducal house of Norfolk enjoys by the feudal tenure of Arundel Castle; but that, like other exceptions, only establishes the rule, as the honour endures solely by special act of parliament, passed in the 3rd year of King CHARLES I. To Barons by Tenure succeeded

Barons by Writ,

Or persons elevated to the rank of nobility by being summoned to attend the king in council, or parliament; which writs were of that description called brevia clausa, from being closed with wax, and impressed with the great seal of England. The first of these summonses upon record appears to have been tested on the 24th of Dec., in the 49th year of HENRY III.; from which period no similar writ seems to have issued until the 22nd year of EDWARD I., when about sixty persons were summoned to attend the king, "wheresoever he might be, to advise on the affairs of the kingdom;" but it has been questioned whether that summons constituted a peer of parliament.

To establish an hereditary Barony by Writ, it was requisite, Sir William Blackstone was of opinion, that two writs of summons should have issued, and a sitting in two parliaments have taken place; but the great law luminary seems upon this occasion to have been under misapprehension; for in the case of the Barony of Clifton, there was but one writ and one sitting, and that barony was allowed. Baronies by Writ are heritable by heirs male or female; but in the event of the decease of the baron without issue male, and with more daughters than one, the barony falls into abeyance‡ amongst them, and so continues until all but one of the

* Matthew Paris states, that there were two hundred and fifty baronies in the time of Henry III.; but there were not so many barons, for several feudal lords held a plurality of baronies. In this reign, the prerogative of the crown regarding barons was settled by an act of parliament, passed in consequence of the quarrel between the king and Simon de Montfort; and thenceforward no nobleman could sit in parliament without a writ of summons. But there was this material difference between the greater and the lesser barons;—these were summoned at the pleasure of the crown; those, as a matter of right.

† Her ladyship was only youngest co-heir of one moiety of the Barony, the entire representation of the elder co-heir being vested in Sir Henry Hunloke, Baronet.

‡ ABEYANCE.—When this inheritance (a barony falling amongst co-heiresses) is in the dormant state, it is said to be in abeyance; not in the ordinary sense of the term in which it is applied to an estate in fee simple, or freehold in suspense, floating, fixing nowhere, and vesting in no one; but it simply denotes that the title to a barony which has descended upon and is vested in co-heirs remains in them in an active and dormant state, incapable of being asserted or being enjoyed. It falls daughters, or the sole heir of one of the daughters, survives. The crown can, however, at any time especially interfere, and terminate the abeyance in favour of any of the co-heirs, but it cannot alienate the barony from the representatives of the first baron: it is imperative that it be conferred upon one of those. The mode of terminating an abeyance in favour of a commoner is, by summoning the individual by the title of the barony which had been in abeyance. The course observed towards a peer of a higher dignity is, the issue of letters patent by the crown in confirmation of the barony; and a similar course, that of patent, is adopted towards heiresses.

The mode of creating peers by writ of summons has been, however, a long time discontinued, and the only writs now issued are those to the* eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls, in their fathers' baronies; but such writs do not create heritable peerages. If, however, a writ of summons issue to the eldest son of a peer, as a baron, under a misapprehension that the barony had been vested in his father, then the writ is deemed a new creation, and the dignity is heritable as a barony by writ. This was established in 1736, by the decision regarding the Barony of Strange, in which James Stanley had been summoned in 1628, under the supposition that the barony had belonged to his father, William, 6th Earl of Derby; and again, in the similar case of the Barony of Clifford. The first writ to an elder son is stated to have issued in the 22nd year of King EDWARD IV., when Thomas Fitz-Alan was summoned to parliament (in his father's, the Earl Arundel's barony) as Baron Maltravers. As Barons by Tenure gave place to Barons by Writ, so the latter have been superseded by Barons by Letters Patent.

The first instance of which occurred in the reign of the second RICHARD, when John Beauchamp, of Holt, was elevated to the peerage as Baron Beauchamp of Kidderminster, by letters patent, dated the 10th of October, 1387. Lord Beauchamp never took his seat, however, in parliament, as he died in the same year, and was succeeded by his son, with whom the dignity expired in 1420. In olden time it was deemed necessary to invest with robes the newly created baron in open parliament; and so lately as the era of King JAMES I., that monarch in person solemnly inducted the barons, created by patent in the 13th year of his reign, by enrobing each peer in scarlet, with a hood furred with minever: but in the same year it was determined to discontinue those ceremonies in future, the legal advisers of the crown having declared that the delivery of the letters patent constituted a sufficient creation; and in the patents of more modern times the ceremony of public investiture is expressly dispensed with.

Viscount.

The next grade in the British Peerage is that of Vice-Comes, or VISCOUNT, which title formerly applied to the sheriff of a county, but was not used as a designation of nobility before the reign of HENRY VI., when that monarch created John, Baron Beaumont, K.G., by letters patent, dated 12 Feb. 1440, Viscount Beaumont, a dignity which expired with his lordship's son and successor in 1507. A viscounty is always created by patent, and it descends according to the specified limitation. The honour was originally conferred as an advancement to barons, but afterwards created frequently with the barony; and in modern times it has been conferred with-into abeyance because, in point of right, no one co-heir can sustain a claim to it, and because all the co-heirs together, though they constitute the complete heir to the ancestor, cannot claim it with effect, and therefore cannot claim it at all.—Cruise upon Dignities.

* There is an instance, in the reign of King CHARLES I., of the son and heir of a baron who possessed two baronies having been summoned to parliament in one of them. The Hon. Conyers Darcy, son of Conyers, Baron of Darcy and Conyers (who was subsequently created Earl of Holderness) was summoned to parliament in his father's Barony of Conyers in 1630.

out a barony, as in the instance of Viscount Leinster, Viscount Sidmouth, Viscount Goderich, &c.

The style of a Viscount is "Right Honourable," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and well-beloved Cousin."

Earl.*

The dignity of Earl, which existed in England before the Conquest, was, according to Mr. Cruise, originally annexed to a particular tract of land; and there were three descriptions of Earldoms.

"The first was where the dignity was annexed to the seisin and possession of an entire county, with jura regalia; in which case the county became palatine, and the person created Earl thereof acquired regal jurisdiction and royal seigniorship. By reason of the royal jurisdiction the Earl Palatine had all the high courts and offices of justice which the king had, with a civil and criminal jurisdiction; and by reason of his royal seigniorship he had all the royal services and all the royal estreats which the king had; so that, in fact, a county palatine was in every respect a feudal kingdom of itself, but held of a superior lord."†

The second description of Earldom was that which derived the title only from a county, but had no territorial possession annexed to it within the county, nor any of the privileges of an Earl Palatine, and whose revenue arose from participating in the profits derivable from the pleas of the county court.

The third kind of Earldom was constituted by the crown's granting a considerable tract of land, to be held "per servitium unius comitatus."

For several centuries, Earldoms have been created by letters patent, and the descent of the honour regulated accordingly. The ancient ceremony of investiture, as in other dignities, has been discontinued; and the custom of deriving the title from some county or town has been extended, in consequence of the number of earls, to villages, private estates, and family surnames.

The style of an Earl is, "Right Honourable," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and well-beloved Cousin."‡

He bears also, upon some occasions, the title of "Most Noble and Puissant Prince."

Marquess.

A Marquess, marchio, is the next degree of nobility. "His office (says Sir William Blackstone) formerly was (for dignity and duty were never separated by our ancestors) to guard the frontiers and limits of the kingdom, which were called the marches, from the Teutonic word marche, a limit; as in particular were the marches of Wales and Scotland, while each continued to be an enemy's country. The persons who had command there were called Lords Marches, or Marquesses, whose authority was abolished by statute, 27th HENRY VIII., though the title had long before been made a mere ensign of honour."

The first English Marquisate was conferred by King RICHARD II., in 1386, upon Robert de Vere, who was created Marquess of Dublin, and in the next year, Duke of Ireland. His grace was, however, banished and attainted in 1388, when his honours became forfeited. And the second creation of the same dignity occurs in the same reign, when John Beaufort, Earl of Somerset, (eldest legitimate natural son of John of Gaunt,) was created, 29th September, 1397, Marquess of Dorset. From that period the dignity of Marquess appears to have remained dormant until the reign of EDWARD VI., but thenceforward it became a regular and common grade of nobility.

A Marquisate is invariably created by letters patent, and the descent regulated accordingly.

* SPELMAN was of opinion that the title of Earl was derived from the Germans; and having been adopted from them by the French, was rendered feudal and hereditary by Hugh Capet.

† Cruise on Dignities.

‡ This mode of address is as ancient as HENRY IV., by whom it was first adopted. That prince being either by his wife, his mother, or his sisters, actually related or allied to every earl in the kingdom, artfully and constantly acknowledged that connexion in all his letters and other public acts; from whence the usage has descended to his successors, though the reason has long ago failed.

—Blackstone.

The style of a Marquess is "Most Honourable," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and entirely beloved Cousin."

He bears also the title, upon some occasions, of "Most Noble and Puissant Prince."

Duke.

The Dukedom,* the most elevated dignity in the English peerage, was first introduced by King EDWARD III., who created his eldest son, Edward the Black Prince, in 1337, (then Earl of Chester,) Duke of Cornwall, and subsequently Prince of Wales, when the Dukedom merged in the principality, and has ever since been vested in the heir apparent to the crown, who, at his birth, becomes Duke of Cornwall. The second Dukedom was conferred, on the 6th March, 1351, upon Henry Plantagenet, (son and heir of the Earl of Derby,) under the title of Duke of Lancaster, which dignity expired at his grace's decease, in 1360, without male issue, but was re-conferred, in 1362, upon John of Gaunt, who had espoused the duke's second daughter, and eventually sole heiress, the Lady Blanch Plantagenet. In the reign of ELIZABETH, anno 1572, the whole order became utterly extinct; but it was revived about fifty years afterwards by her successor, in the person of George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham.

A Duke is styled "His Grace," and the "Most Noble," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and right entirely beloved Cousin and Councillor."

His grace is likewise entitled, upon some occasions, "Most High, Potent, and Noble Prince."

Archbishops.

ARCHBISHOPS have the ducal title of "Grace," and take precedence of all dukes next to those of royal blood. The Archbishop of Canterbury ranks as first peer of the realm, and the Archbishop of York as third, coming immediately after the lord-chancellor. His grace of Canterbury styles himself, "by Divine providence;" while the Archbishop of York and the bishops adopt the term "permission" instead of "providence."

Bishops.

By an act of parliament passed in the thirty-first year of HENRY VIII., it was settled that bishops take precedence of all barons, and immediately after viscounts, the Bishops of London, Durham, and Winchester, preceding their Right Reverend brethren.

Bishops are styled "Lords," and "Right Reverend Fathers in God."

Note.—In the time of the Saxons, the bishops, abbots, and other ecclesiastical persons, held their lands free from all secular services, except the trinoda necessitas,—namely, expeditio, pontium et arcuum constructio, et refectio. But soon after the establishment of the Normans, they were charged with the same obligations of military service as laymen. In consequence of this change, the bishops became tenants in capite per baroniam, and were, of course, bound to attend the curia regis, which at that time was considered as a burthensome office. It is therefore probable that the bishops did not willingly acquiesce in this alteration; and when the immunities of the church were so much

* DUKEDOM.—In France, before the Revolution, the title of Duke was very superior to the other dignities, and the PEERAGE was composed of Dukes only; but the rest of the nobility were properly jealous of this pre-eminence, and opposed with spirit every encroachment of the peers. In a procession of the order of the Holy Ghost several Ducs et Pairs endeavoured to prevent M. de Gamache from walking at the side of the last duke. The master of the ceremonies hastened to inform the king of the dispute, who decided that the dukes were wrong if they pretended that a gentleman should not walk aside of them; so, after the procession, the dukes said they had never formed such a pretension, and that it was a misunderstanding.

"Sir James Lawrence upon the Nobility of the British Gentry." Paris, third edition.

restrained by the constitutions of Clarendon, in 10th HENRY II., it was expressly declared, that the archbishops and bishops should hold their lands as baronies, and attend the king's court.

The bishops were always exempt from doing homage for their baronies, but were bound to take the oath of fealty.

The great abbots were also bound to attend parliament, if summoned, when they held their land per baroniam. Crusa upon Dignities.

PRIVILEGES OF THE PEERAGE.

PEERS are free from all arrest for debt, and cannot be outlawed in any civil action, nor can any attachment lie against their person.

They are exempt from attending courts-leet, or sheriff's turns; or, in case of riot, the posse-comitatus.

When arraigned for any criminal offence, it must be before their peers, who return a verdict, not upon oath, but upon honour.

Peers are tried in courts erected specifically for the purpose, in the centre of Westminster Hall, at the expense of the crown, which courts are pulled down as soon as the investigation terminates.

By the law denominated scandalum magnatum, any man convicted of spreading a scandalous report regarding a peer of the realm, no matter whether true or false, is subject to an arbitrary fine, and to remain in prison until the same be discharged.

Peers have the privilege of sitting covered in courts of justice during their proceedings.

Peers of parliament had, until recently, the privilege of franking letters; but it was as members of parliament, not as peers.

Peers have the privilege of voting in parliament by proxy.

The Barons of Kingsale enjoy, exclusively, the hereditary privilege of being covered in the royal presence.

Peers have the privilege in parliament of wearing parliamentary robes of scarlet cloth, differenced from each other by bars of ermine, Dukes having four, Marquesses four on the right side, and three on the left, Earls three, and Viscounts and Barons two rows of plain white fur only. By the curialitas regni, the eldest sons of each degree of created dignity is as of the degree next to his father; and such eldest sons of Peers as enjoy a plurality of titles take and use the secondary one by courtesy.

All Peers carry supporters to their arms, as incidental to their hereditary dignity, and otherwise adorn them exteriorly with their respective coronets and mantles. Selden states that a coronet is first mentioned in the investiture of Earls in the time of EDWARD VI.; but that they were much more ancient appears from the will of Richard, Earl of Arundel, dated 5 Dec. 1375, in which he bequeathes his three coronets to his son and his two eldest daughters, a circumstance which proves that coronets were carried as ensigns of high nobility in the fourteenth century, but not according to any rule or restriction as to their descent.

Note.—Some peers of Ireland, created since the Union, have taken their titles from places in England; but by a sort of fiction, the name of an English county is never introduced into the patent. Lord Rendlesham is of Rendlesham, without any county. Lord Macdonald is of Slate, in the county of Antrim, whereas Slate is in the Hebrides. Lord Newborough is "of Ireland."

THE BARONETAGE.

THE hereditary dignity of Baronet was erected by patent in England by King JAMES I. in 1611, and extended to Ireland in 1619. The order was first conferred in Scotland by King CHARLES I. in 1625.*

Baronets are styled "Most Noble and Honourable Sir," and are addressed by the Sovereign, "Our trusty and well-beloved Cousin."

Note.—The original Baronets of England and Ireland are nearly all heads of families who anciently were tenants of the crown in capite, and as such, had seat and voice in their national diets. The Baronets of Scotland, with a few exceptions, are all Barons of parliament of that kingdom, (Liberi Barones, et Proceres Regni Scotiae.) and Lords of Regality in Nova Scotia, with hereditary seat and voice in the legislative assembly of that royal province.

PRIVILEGES OF THE BARONETAGE.

By the constitution of the baronetage, it is declared and provided, that Baronets and their heirs male, their wives, sons, daughters, and sons' wives, respectively, or any of them, at whatsoever time to come, in all questions concerning any place, precedence, privilege, or other matter concerning them, shall be regulated by the use and practice of custom and law as other hereditary degrees of dignity are ordained and directed, concerning place, prerogative, and precedence.

The wives of Baronets are ladies, and enjoy the title of Baronetess, with place and precedence, both during the lives, and after the decease of their husbands, according to the manner and usage of other hereditary degrees.

The daughters of Baronets have the rank and precedence of their eldest brother.

The Baronets of the several creations have assigned to them by the grant of the royal founder, as a perpetual military post of honour, place in the royal armies of the sovereign, near and about the royal standard for its defence.

The Baronets of England and Ireland bear, as an honourable augmentation in their armorial ensigns, the royal arms of Ulster, these senior branches of the baronetage having been erected to promote the plantation of that province.

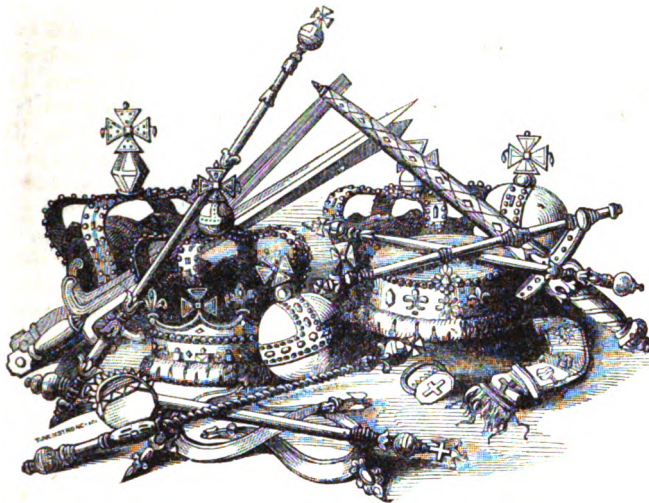

The Baronets of Scotland are also privileged to charge their coat armour with a similar augmentation,—viz., the arms of Nova Scotia,—having been founded to promote the plantation of that province. By a royal warrant of CHARLES I. in 1629, they are also allowed to wear as a personal decoration, an orange riband and badge,—viz., in a scutcheon, argent, a Saint Andrew's cross, azure, thereon an inescutcheon of the royal arms of Scotland, with an imperial crown above the scutcheon, and encircled with the motto, "Fax mentis honestæ gloria," being the motto of Henry, Prince of Wales, the eldest son of the royal founder of the order.

From the troubles which arose in the kingdom so immediately following the erection of this class of the hereditary orders, many of the privileges, pre-eminences, and ornaments belonging to it have never been enjoyed, or have fallen into disuse. However, a permanent COMMITTEE OF THE BARONETAGE FOR PRIVILEGES has lately been established, for the purpose of placing the order upon the original excellence of its foundation. Great misapprehension exists with reference to the lawful dignity and position of a Baronet, from the circumstance of most writers on titles of honour having construed its worth from the etymology of the name, and not from the patents of the royal founder of the order. By the charters of erection, King JAMES I. promises and grants to the Baronets, "That neither his Majesty, nor his heirs, nor successors, shall or will at any time hereafter, erect, ordain, constitute, or create any other degree, order, name, title, style, dignity, or state, nor will give place, precedence, or pre-eminence to any person or persons whatsoever, under or beneath the degree, dignity, or state of LORDS OF PARLIAMENT of his realm, which shall or may be, or be taken, used, or accounted to be higher, before or equal to the dignity, degree, or place of the Baronets, or any of them. From the title Lord of Parliament and Baron being now universally confounded, the dignity of Baronet is considered inferior to that of Baron; whereas, the persons raised to the baronetage in the seventeenth century, were almost, without exception, the heads of ancient families holding lands of the crown, in chief per liberam baroniam. This was especially the case in Scotland, where the feudal system prevailed until, comparatively speaking, a recent period. Prior to the reign of JAMES VI. (I. of England), the Scottish parliament was composed of three estates—clergy, nobility, and burgesses. The second estate comprehended earls, lords, and barons; which latter class, on the introduction of the baronetage into Scotland, were almost all raised to this new and higher hereditary dignity.

Note.—Since the Legislative Unions between England and Scotland, and Great Britain and Ireland, the separate Orders of Baronets have been superseded by one general Institution of BARONETS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM.

THE ROYAL FAMILY OF SCOTLAND.

KINGS OF SCOTLAND.

THE remote History of Scotland, like that of other countries boasting antiquity, is enveloped in darkness. Whatever light may be thrown upon its early transactions, from the absence of anything like familiar or interesting detail, affords but little information to the general reader, and is only of value to the microscopic eye of the laborious antiquary. We shall therefore commence our sketch of its ROYAL LINE with the accession of KENNETH II., from whose reign the Scottish History first assumes an intelligible form.

KENNETH THE SECOND, surnamed Mac Alpine, having united the Scots and Picts under one sceptre, became FIRST KING OF ALL SCOTLAND. He d. in 858, and was s. by his brother,

DONALD, who was succeeded, after an inglorious reign of four years, by his nephew,

CONSTANTINE THE SECOND, (son of KENNETH Mac Alpine.) In this monarch's reign the Danes invaded Scotland, and the King, giving the barbarians battle, fell into their hands, and was beheaded in 878, leaving no issue. He was s. by his brother,

ETHUS, surnamed the Swift-footed. The rule of this Prince was brief and turbulent. A party, headed by GRIG, or GREGORY, rendering an appeal to the sword indispensable, Ethus was wounded in battle, and dying soon afterwards, the crown was usurped by his rival,

GREGORY, surnamed the Great. This monarch, who was contemporary with ALFRED, King of England, upon ascending the throne, selected for his colleague, Eocha, King of Strathclyde, grandson of KENNETH Mac Alpine, but both were compelled to abdicate within three years, when

DONALD THE FOURTH assumed the reins of government; and after a prosperous rule of eleven years, was s. by the son of ETHUS,

CONSTANTINE THE THIRD, who reigned forty years, and then retiring to a monastery, resigned the sceptre to the son of DONALD IV.,

MALCOLM THE FIRST, who was succeeded by

KENNETH THE THIRD, who was killed in 994, when the throne was usurped by

CONSTANTINE THE FOURTH, (great-grandson of ETHUS, the Swift-footed,) who died the following year, and was succeeded by his son,

KENNETH THE FOURTH, whose grandson,

BANCHO, Thane of Lochaber, had a son,

FLEANCE, who m. Mary, dau. of Griffyth ap Llewelyn, Prince of North Wales, and left a son,

WALTER, who, returning to Scotland after the restoration of MALCOLM CEAN-MOHR, was created LORD-HIGH-STEWARD, from which office his HOUSE assumed the surname of STUART. The great-grandson of the LORD-STEWARD, WALTER, had issue,

1 ALEXANDER, an eminent warrior, of whose great-grandsons,

ROBERT ascended the THRONE as ROBERT THE SECOND, and was founder of the STUART DYNASTY.

EUPHAME, who m. Sir Patrick Graham, patriarch of the eminent families of MENTEITH, GRAHAM of Gartmore, and GRAHAM of Netherby and Esk.

2 ROBERT (Sir), founder of the HOUSE OF LENNOX.

The right of KENNETH IV. being contested by MALCOLM, son of KENNETH III., he was deposed in 1003, and his competitor ascended the throne, as

MALCOLM THE SECOND. This monarch had two daughters,

BEATRIX, m. to GRIMUS, governor of the Scots Island, and left a son,

DUNCAN, successor to his grandfather.

DORCHA, m. to Finley, Thane of Angus, and left a son,

MACBETH, of whom hereafter.

The King was murdered in 1033, and was succeeded by his grandson,

DUNCAN THE FIRST, who had two sons, MALCOLM and DONALD. This unfortunate Prince was slain by his cousin, who ascended the throne, as

MACBETH. This Prince m. the Lady GRUOCH, dau. of KENNETH IV., the celebrated LADY MACBETH, who, with her husband, has afforded materials to the BARD OF AVON for one of his most splendid works. He had a son, LAHAULAN, who was crowned king after his father's defeat, but was slain within a few months by King MALCOLM.

MACBETH was eventually killed by MACDUFF, Thane of Fife, in 1057, and the rightful heir ascended the throne, as

MALCOLM THE THIRD, surnamed Cean-Mohr,* who m. MARGARET, sister of EDGAR ATHELING, and had three sons, EDGAR, ALEXANDER, DAVID, (successively kings,) and Matilda, m. to HENRY I., of England. MALCOLM fell in battle, when besieging Alnwick Castle, 13 Nov. 1098, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDGAR, who d. s. p. in 1106, and was s. by his brother,

ALEXANDER THE FIRST, who d. also issueless (in 1124), and was s. by his brother,

DAVID THE FIRST, who m. MAUD, daughter of WALDEOFF, Earl of Northumberland, by JUDITH, niece of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, (refer to BURKE's Extinct Peerage, article St. LIZ, Earls of Huntingdon), and had an only son,

HENRY, Prince of Scotland, who d. before his father, leaving issue by his wife, the Lady Adeline de Warren, dau. of William, Earl of Warren and Surrey,

I. MALCOLM, who succeeded his grandfather upon the throne.

II. WILLIAM, successor to his brother.

III. David, Earl of Huntingdon, in England; who m. Maud, dau. of HUGH (Kivelikok), Earl of Chester, and had a son and four daus., viz.,

1 JOHN, (surnamed Le Scot), who inherited the Earldom of Chester, and d. s. p.

2 Margaret, m. to Alan de Galloway, and had two daus.,

DIVORGAL, m. to John de Balliol, and was mother of JOHN DE BALIOL, who was declared KING OF SCOTLAND by EDWARD I. of England.

Marjory m. to JOHN COMYN; and d. leaving

JOHN, called the Red Comyn, who claimed the crown of Scotland, and was killed by BRUCE in the church of the Friars Minorete.

3 Isabel, m. to Robert de Brus, and was mother of ROBERT BRUCE, who contended for the crown.

4 Maud, d. unm.

5 Ada, m. to Henry de Hastings, and had a son,

HENRY DE HASTINGS, whose grandson,

JOHN, second BARON HASTINGS, was one of the competitors for the crown.

DAVID I. d. in 1153, and was s. by his grandson,

MALCOLM THE FOURTH, who d. unm. in 1165, and was s. by his brother,

WILLIAM the Lion,† who was s. in 1214 by his only son,

ALEXANDER THE SECOND, who m. 1st, Joan, dau. of King JOHN, of England, but by her had no issue; and he m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Ingelram de Courey, and had a son, his successor in 1249,

* CEAN-MOHR, great-headed.

† So surnamed from having adopted the LION as the armorial bearing of Scotland. From this emblem the chief of the Scottish heralds is called Lion king-of-arms.

ALEXANDER THE THIRD, who m. Margaret, dau. of HENRY III. of England, and had three children,

Alexander, } who both d. s. p. in their father's lifetime.
David, }

MARGARET, m. in 1281, to ERIC, King of Norway, and left an only dau., MARGARET, successor to her grandfather.

The King d. in 1285, and was s. by his granddaughter,

MARGARET, the Maiden of Norway, who d. unm. on her passage to Scotland.

On the death of this Queen a violent competition arose for the vacant throne between the descendants of DAVID, Earl of Huntingdon, (refer to DAVID L.) namely,

JOHN BALIOL,
ROBERT BRUCE, and JOHN Lord Hastings.

The competitors having finally agreed to submit their claim to the arbitration of EDWARD I. of England, that monarch decided in favour of

JOHN BALIOL, who was accordingly declared KING OF SCOTLAND in 1292. In the reign of this monarch FOUGHT—CONQUERED—and FELL the renowned SIR WILLIAM WALLACE. Baliol d. in 1296, when an interregnum of ten years ensued; at length,

ROBERT BRUCE, Earl of Carrick, was declared KING, as ROBERT I. This prince, THE BRUCE OF BANNOCKBURN, was the most illustrious monarch that ever swayed the Scottish sceptre, and his name alone, so long as one descendant shall survive of the

DAVID, his successor.
Margaret, m. to William, 4th Earl of Sutherland, ancestor of the Duke of Sutherland.

On the death of this renowned monarch, in 1329, the administration was assumed by JOHN RONDOLFE, third Earl of Moray, as REGENT OF SCOTLAND, during the minority of

DAVID THE SECOND, who was crowned at Scone in 1331. With this monarch EDWARD BALIOL, aided by the English king, disputed the throne. King DAVID d. in 1370, and was s. by his nephew, and joining her followers, fought and lost the battle of LANGSIDE. In this her extremity, the Queen of Scotland fled into England, and flung herself in full confidence upon the boasted magnanimity of the English nation, and the generosity of her kinswoman, the English Queen; but she reposed, alas! upon a shadow—the nation showed her no sympathy—the Queen gave her no protection. From both she experienced a series of cruel and unrelenting persecutions; and after enduring nineteen years of unjustifiable and unmitigated captivity, was put to death, at Fotheringhay Castle, by decapitation, on the 8th of February, 1586. Upon the (forced) resignation of the crown by Queen MARY, at Lochleven, her son, JAMES, Duke of Rothesay, then but a year old, was declared KING, as

JAMES THE SIXTH, and under this monarch the sceptres of England and Scotland became united at the decease of ELIZABETH, in 1603, when he ascended the English throne, as King JAMES I.

HOUSE OF GUELPH.

THE founder of the illustrious family of GUELPH,

ANULPHUS, HUNULPHUS, or GUELPH, younger brother of ODOACER, conqueror and first barbarian King of Italy, obtained possession in Bavaria, where he died in 489, leaving an only son,

OLFIGANDUS, who did not assume the supreme authority in Bavaria, but entered as a volunteer into the Roman army, under the celebrated Belisarius, with whom he became a favourite, and eventually obtained a command. The period of this gallant soldier's death is unascertained, but he left an only son,

ULIGAGUS, who served under Belisarius in that general's last campaigns in Persia, and was subsequently engaged in the defence of Italy against the Lombards. He died in 590, and his son or grandson,

CADUINUS, residing chiefly in France, enjoyed the confidence of Queen BRUMHILDA, a princess then in the zenith of power; and having, at the head of the Austrasian army, subdued a great part of the kingdom of Burgundy, these provinces were erected into a duchy, and the victorious general made duke thereof in 613. In the latter years of Caduinus he was commissioned by CLOTHAIRE THE SECOND, under the title of Ambassador of the King, (Missus Regius), then acknowledged sovereign of Austrasia, Burgundy, and Neustria, to collect and digest the laws of the Bavarian and German nations dependent upon France, a duty which he fulfilled with so much zeal and success as, in a great measure, to establish the dominion of that power throughout the neighbouring provinces. Caduinus died in 640, and his son,

CATHICUS, obtained the government of Alsace, and was MAYOR OF THE PALACE* in the kingdoms of Neustria and Austrasia, in the reign of Childeric, son of Clovis, and afterwards in that of DAGOBERT II., along with whom he was murdered in the forest of Vairres, anno 670. From this period the Dukes of Bavaria, allying with the Lombards, began to acquire large possessions in Italy, where a branch of the Guelphic family had already been established as Dukes of Este, in the Lombard kingdom. From Duke Cathicus we pass to

GUELPH, son of Ruthard, Count of Altdorf, from whom, who died about 823, descended

GUELPH, sometimes called Wolfard, Count of Altdorf, and Duke of Nether Bavaria, who married Imegi, daughter of Frederick, Count of Luxemburg, and had issue, GUELPH, Duke of Carinthia.

Cunegunda, m. to Azo the Second, Marquess of Este, and had a son, GUELPH, who inherited the estates of Altdorf at the decease of his uncle.

Guelph, alias Wolfard, was succeeded in 1036 by his son,

GUELPH, Duke of Carinthia, who was succeeded by his nephew,

GUELPH, Count of Altdorf, and Duke of Upper and Lower Bavaria. This prince engaged in the first crusade, anno 1096, and died in returning from the Holy Land, at Paphos, in Cyprus, in 1101, leaving by his wife, Judith, daughter of BALDWIN V., Count of Flanders, and sister of Maud, wife of WILLIAM the Conqueror, four sons, and was succeeded by the eldest,

* The youth and imbecility of the royal race (of France) had allowed the mayors of the palace to rise from being mere servants of the court to the important rank of commanding in the kingdom. They were appointed to the office by the grands of the state, and not by the sovereign; and after the death of Dagobert (A.D. 644), they assumed the command of the armies, and the management of the finances, so that nothing was left to the descendant, Moeroveus, but the empty title of king.—Halliday's Annals of the House of Hanover.

GUELPH, who died issueless in 1119, and was succeeded by his brother,

HENRY THE THIRD, surnamed Niger. This prince married Wolfiga, daughter and heiress of Magnus, the last Duke of Saxony of the line of Billung, and in her right assumed the title of Duke of Saxony; though the Emperor, HENRY V., seized upon the Duchy and conferred it upon another family. The duke obtained, however, the Duchy of Spoletto and the Margraviate of Tuscia, with the principality of Sardinia. He died in 1127, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

HENRY THE FOURTH, surnamed Superbus, who married Gertrude, daughter and heiress of the Emperor LOTHAIRE, by Richensa, daughter and eventually heiress of Henry the Fat, Duke of Saxony, by whom he obtained a restoration of the Duchy of Saxony. This prince subsequently acquired the Duchy of Braunswig, (now Brunswick), and the county of Norheim, and was invested with the Margraviate of Tuscia, and all the dominions of his aunt-in-law, Mathildis, wife of GUELPHO VI. He died by poison in 1138 or 1139, and was succeeded by his son,

HENRY THE FIFTH, surnamed THE LION, Duke of Saxony and Bavaria, who added to his possessions the counties of Meclenburg and Luneburg, by conquest from the Slaves. But neglecting his duty to the Emperor, FREDERICK BARBAROSSA, and joining the Pope, he was publicly proscribed in 1180, and despoiled of his Saxon and Bavarian dominions by the neighbouring princes, who combined against him. Henry still retained, however, Brunswic and Luneburg, but was obliged by oath to absent himself from Germany for three years, when he repaired with his second consort, Maud, to the court of her father, King HENRY II. of England; and through that monarch's intercession, obtained permission to return home in 1185, but was again driven into England in 1189; he returned, however, in the same year, and died on the 6th August, 1195, leaving issue by his second wife, the English princess, three sons and a daughter, viz., HENRY, of Zelle.

Otto, of Brunswic, elected emperor in 1198; crowned in 1208; and d. issueless in 1218.

William, Duke of Luneburg, surnamed Longospada, b. at Winchester, in England.

Mechthild, m. to Henry Burewen, Prince of the Wenden.

The eldest son,

HENRY, Longus, of Zelle, was Count Palatine of the Rhine from 1195 to 1215. This prince partitioned his father's dominions between his brothers; and after his decease, his nephew

OTHO, Puer, (son of William, of Winchester), who was first created Duke of Brunswic-Luneburg, laid claim to Brunswic as heir male; but his claim being disputed, he established it by his sword in 1228, and styling himself Duke of Brunswic, gave and confirmed to that principality many privileges. The prince married Matilda, daughter of ALBERT II., Elector of Brandenburg, and from him descended

WILLIAM, (son of Ernest Pius, of Zelle), founder of the new house of Luneburg, who was born 4th July, 1535, and succeeded to the government in 1559. This prince married Dorothy, daughter of CHRISTIAN III., King of Denmark, by whom he had seven sons and eight daughters. The sons having agreed amongst themselves not to divide the dukedom, determined that one only should marry, and decided by lot the individual, at the same time they agreed to reign primogeniturally; and those engagements they adhered to inviolably, to the admiration of all Europe. The matrimonial prize fell to

GEORGE, the sixth brother, a great military commander, who married in 1617, Anne-Eleanor, daughter of Lewis the Fifth, Landgrave of Hesse-Darmstadt, by whom he had (with four daughters) four sons, viz.,

CHRISTIAN-LEWIS, the eldest, who became Duke of Zelle; but dying issueless in 1665, was succeeded by his next brother, GEORGE-WILLIAM, of Calenberg and Gottengen, who m. Eleanora d'Esmars, daughter of Alexander d'Olbreuse, by whom he left an only dau., Sophia-Dorothea, the unhappy consort of King GEORGE I. of England.

JOHN-FREDERICK, who s. to Calenberg and Gottengen, (the Hanoverian dominions,) upon the demise of his brother, George-William. This prince became a catholic, and d. in Italy, in 1679, leaving four daus.

ERNEST-AUGUSTUS.

The youngest son,

ERNEST-AUGUSTUS, became Bishop of Osnaburg in 1662, and succeeded upon the demise of his brother, John-Frederick, to the Dukedom of Hanover. This prince, a military commander, was made ninth Elector of the Empire, on the 9th of December, 1692, under the title of ELECTOR OF HANOVER, and GREAT MARSHAL of the Empire; not, however, without considerable opposition from six of the other Electors, having the support only of the Electors of Saxony and Brandenburg. His Serene Highness married Sophia, daughter of Frederick, Elector Palatine and King of Bohemia, by the English Princess ELIZABETH, daughter of King JAMES I., and had issue,

GEORGE-LEWIS, who ascended the British throne under the title of GEORGE I., in right of his mother, the Electress SOPHIA, who had been declared successor to the crown by the Act of Settlement passed on the 6th of March, 1702. Her Serene Highness, who was esteemed a lady of great wit and sound judgment, d. at Hanover on the 8th of June, 1714, about seven weeks prior to the decease of Queen ANNE.

Frederic-Augustus, an imperial general, killed in the war with the Turks in 1690.

Maximilian-William, general of the Venetians, who embraced the doctrines of the church of Rome, and became the emperor's general; d. in 1702.

Charles-Philip, col. of an imperial regiment of dragoons; killed by the Turks in 1690.

Christian, drowned in an engagement with the French in 1708.

Ernest-Augustus, Bishop of Osnaburg, created Duke of York and Albany and Earl of Ulster, on the 29th of June, 1716, and invested with the order of the Garter. He d. ussq. in 1728.

Sophia-Charlotte, m. in 1684, to Frederic, Elector of Brandenburg, afterwards King of Prussia; and d. in 1705.

The Elector, Ernest-Augustus, died on the 23rd of January, 1698, and was succeeded in the Electorate by his eldest son,

GEORGE-LEWIS, who became subsequently the

FIRST BRITISH MONARCH OF THE HOUSE OF GUELPH.

VALVASORS.—The first name of dignity, next beneath a peer, was anciently that of Vidames, Vicedomini, or Valvasor, who are mentioned by our ancient lawyers as virī magnæ dignitatis, and Sir Edward Coke speaks highly of them. Yet they are at present entirely out of use; and our legal antiquaries are not agreed upon even their original or ancient office. Now, therefore, the first personal dignity after the nobility is a knight of the order of St. George, or of the Garter, first instituted by EDWARD III., anno 1344.—Blackstone.

His lordship, on the discomfiture of his royal master at the Boyne, having embarked for France, lost his life in the voyage. In 1691, he had been outlawed, and forfeited the estate and title of Strabane; but the earldom of Abercorn devolved upon his brother,

CHARLES, 5th earl, who, the late lord's attainer having been reversed, succeeded likewise to the restored title and estate of Strabane; but left no issue at his decease, in 1701, when the honours and estates devolved on his kinsman, (revert to Sir George Hamilton, Baronet, of Donalong, 4th son of James, 1st Earl of Abercorn.)

This gentleman was in the military service and confidence of JAMES II., but espousing the cause of WILLIAM, took a distinguished part at the siege of Londonderry against his royal master. Succeeding to the Earldom of Abercorn, his lordship, in virtue thereof, took his seat, in 1706, as a member of the Scottish parliament. Ireland was, however, the usual place of his residence; and of that realm, 2 Dec. 1701, he was created Baron Mountcastle and Viscount Strabane. Lineage

ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, (second son of Sir Alexander Abercromby, 1st Baronet of Birkenbog,) settled at Tullibody, co. Clackmannan, having inherited that estate from his cousin, George Abercromby, of Skeith. He was s. by his son, GEORGE ABERCROMBY, Esq. of Tullibody, who m. Mary, dau. of Ralph Dundas, Esq. of Manour, and had issue, (with a dau., Helen, wife of Robert Bruce, Lord Kennet, and grandmother of the present Robert Bruce, Esq. of Kennet, co. Clackmannan,) RALPH, of whom presently; Burnet, d. s. p. in 1792; Robert (Sir), K.B., a general officer in the army, and governor of Edinburgh Castle, d. in 1827.

RALPH ABERCROMBY, Esq., the eldest son, b. in 1738, entered the army 23 May, 1756, as a cornet in the 2nd regiment of dragoon guards, and ascending through the intermediate gradations, was appointed, 3 Nov. 1781, col. of the 103rd foot. In 1787, Col. Abercromby attained the rank of major-general, and in 1796 the command of the 7th regiment of dragoons. In the beginning of the war with republican France, General Abercromby served on the Continent under the Duke of York; and he conducted the march of the guards from Deventer to Ochensaal, in the retreat of the British from Holland, in the winter of 1794-5.

In August, 1795, he succeeded Sir Charles Grey as commander-in-chief in the West Indies; and within two years he added, by conquest, to those possessions, Demerara and Isequibo, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, and Trinidad. In 1797, he returned to Europe; and, in requital of such important services, was invested with the red ribbon, appointed to the command of the regiment of Scots Greys, intrusted with governments of the Isle of Wight, Fort George, and Fort Augustus, and raised to the rank of lieutenant-general. He subsequently held for some time the chief command of the forces in Ireland. In that important station he laboured to maintain the discipline of the army, to suppress the rising rebellion, and to protect the people from military oppression, with an anxiety worthy alike of the gallant soldier and enlightened statesman. When he found, however, that he could no longer save, he refused to destroy, and he flung up his command, with strong expressions of horror and indignation. In 1801, Sir Ralph Abercromby was dispatched, at the head of an army, to dispossess the French of Egypt; and he fell, in the moment of victory, at the celebrated battle of Alexandria. Sir Ralph married,

MARY-ANNE, dau. of John Menzies, Esq. of Fernton, co. Perth, who, on an official account of the triumph and fate of her lamented husband reaching England, was elevated to the peerage, 28 May, 1801, as BARONESS ABERCROMBY, of Aboukir and Tullibody, with remainder to the heirs male of the deceased general. Lineage

The surname Abercromby, like others of great antiquity, was assumed from a territory in the county of Fife, as is proved by a charter from King MALCOLM III., and the possessor of that property was esteemed the chief of the family, until the 17th century, when the chieftainship, by the extinction of that line of Abercromby, devolved upon Abercromby of Birkenbog, the head of which house,

SIR JAMES ABERCROMBY, of Pitmedden, Ley, and Birkenbog, (the lineal descendant of Humphredus de Abercromby, son of Abercromby of that ilk, who obtained a charter of the lands of Harthill and Arduin from ROBERT I.,) was killed at Flodden, leaving (by Margaret, his wife, dau. of Sir James Ogilvie, of Deskford) a son and successor,

GEORGE ABERCROMBY, of Pitmedden, Ley, and Birkenbog, b. in 1512, who m. Christian, dau. of Barclay of Gartley, in Strathbogie, and was s. by his son, ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Leslie of Pitcaple, Aberdeenshire; and we find, in 1550, a charter of various lands to him and his spouse. He was followed by his son,

This Alexander, of Fettermeir, had also another son, Dr. Patrick Abercromby, author of The Martial Achievements of the Scottish Nation, and who also wrote the Memoirs of the Family of Abercromby. Alexander was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES ABERCROMBY, of Birkenbog, father of ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, of Birkenbog, who was grand falconer in Scotland to King CHARLES I., and who m. in 1602, Elizabeth, dau. of Bethune, or Beaton, of Balfour, by whom he had three sons, 1. I. ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, of Birkenbog, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, in 1636. Sir Alexander took so active a part against King CHARLES, that an historian of the period characterizes him as a "main covenanter." In May, 1645, he joined Major Urry, and was at the battle of Auldearn, but Montrose retaliated, by quartering himself and some of his troops at Birkenbog. Sir Alexander m. thrice, and had by his last wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Baird, of Achmedden, two sons, namely, JAMES, his heir; and Alexander, ancestor of LORD ABERCROMBY. ABERDEEN, EARL OF, (George-Hamilton Gordon, K.T., M.A., F.R.S., F.H.S., President of the Antiquarian Society of London, and Chancellor of King's College, Aberdeen,) Viscount Formantine; Lord Haddo, Methlic, Tarves, and Kellie, in the

Frances, d. unm. in 1834.

Lineage.

The Gordons, Earls of Aberdeen, and the Gordons, Dukes of Gordon, derive from a common progenitor—the earls preserving throughout male descent, the dukes springing from the heir-female of the senior line, ELIZABETH GORDON.

PATRICK GORDON, of Methlic, a firm adherent of JAMES II. of Scotland, lost his life under the banner of that monarch, at the battle of Arbroath, 1445, and was s. by his son,

JAMES GORDON, of Methlic, who obtained a grant from JAMES II. of a part of the Barony of Kellie, then vested in the crown, by the forfeiture of Alexander, Earl of Crawford, and acquired other large possessions. He had several children, and was s. by his eldest son,

PATRICK GORDON, of Methlic and Haddo, who obtained charters under the great seal, from JAMES III., in 1481, from JAMES IV. in 1506, and from JAMES V. in 1514, all of considerable tracts of land, beside acquisitions from Lord Sinclair, the Bishop of Aberdeen, and others; the whole of which were embodied in one charter. Mr. Gordon lived to a very advanced period of life, and, dying in 1631, was s. by his grandson,

JAMES GORDON, of Methlic and Haddo, whose property grants from JAMES V. considerably enlarged. In the beginning of MARY's troubles, this gentleman was one of those who signed the association, in 1607, for the defence of the young Prince JAMES; but, upon ascertaining that the queen had been imposed upon, he joined the Earl of Huntly, her majesty's lieutenant in the north, adhered faithfully and firmly to her interests ever after, and obtained royal charters of several other lands and baronies. He m. Marjory, dau. of Sir Thomas Menzies, of Pitodlis, comptroller of Scotland; and dying in 1582, was s. by his grandson,

JAMES GORDON, of Methlic and Haddo, (only son of Patrick Gordon, by Agnes, dau. of Alexander Frazer, of Muchil.) This gentleman m. Jean, dau. of William, Lord Keith, and was s., in 1624, by (the only son of John Gordon, by Margaret, dau. of Sir Alexander Bannerman, of Elsick) his grandson,

SIR JOHN GORDON, of Haddo, who was second in command to the Marquess of Huntly, over the forces raised against the Covenanters in 1639, and created a BARONET OF NOVA SCOTIA, by CHARLES I., in 1642, for his distinguished conduct at the battle of Turriff. In the following year Sir John defended the house of Kellie against the Covenanters, but, being obliged to capitulate, he was sent to Edinburgh, and imprisoned in a church there, which afterwards bore the name of Haddo's Hole. He was subsequently tried, condemned, and executed at the cross of Edinburgh, in 1644. His estates were forfeited, and they remained under sequestration until the restoration of CHARLES II., when they were inherited by his eldest son

SIR JOHN GORDON, of Haddo, who m. Mary, only dau. of Alexander, 1st Lord Forbes, of Pitaligo, by whom he had an only child, Jean, m. to Sir James Gordon, of Lesmoir, Baronet. He d. in 1668, and was s. by his brother,

SIR GEORGE GORDON, of Haddo, an eminent lawyer, one of the senators of the college of justice in 1680, president of the session in 1681, and LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF SCOTLAND in the following year, when he was elevated to the peerage of that kingdom (30 Nov. 1682) by the titles of Lord Haddo, Methlic, Tarves, and Kellie, Viscount Formartine, and EARL OF ABERDEEN. His lordship, owing to a difference of opinion with his colleagues of the privy council, resigned the chancellorship in 1684; and retired to the country at the Revolution, to avoid taking the oaths of allegiance to King WILLIAM. Upon the accession of Queen ANNE, however, he took the oaths and his seat in parliament. He subsequently opposed the Union, but did not attend at the final settlement of the measure. His lordship m. Anne, dau. and heir of George Lockhart, Esq. of Torbrecks, and had issue, George, d. unm.; WILLIAM, his heir; Anne, m. to Alexander, 9th Earl of Eglington; Martha, m. to John Udney, of that ilk; Mary, m. to Alexander, 12th Lord Saltoun. Aberdeen, the question, whether the eldest sons of the peers of Scotland were eligible to be returned to the House of Commons, was raised upon a petition being presented against his return, and decided by the house in the negative, when the election was declared void, and a new writ ordered to be issued. Lineage.

The family of NORREYS was located at Speke, in Lancashire, long before the time of HENRY III.

SIR HENRY NORREYS, Knt. of Speke, had (with an elder son, William, ancestor of the Norreys' of Speke and Davyhulme—see BURKE'S Landed Gentry.)

JOHN NORREYS, of Bray, ancestor of

SIR WILLIAM NORRIS, of Yattendon, co. Berks, who was one of the knights of the body to EDWARD IV., and in the 2nd of HENRY VII. had a command in the king's army at the battle of STOKES. He m. 1st, Isabel, dau. and heir of Edmund Ingaldesthorp, and widow of John Nevill, Marquess of Montagu, and had three surviving daus. Sir William m. 2ndly, Lady Jane de Vere, dau. of John, Earl of Oxford, and had a son,

SIR EDWARD NORRIS, Knt., who m. Fridiswide, dau. and co-heir of Francis, Viscount Lovel, by whom he had issue,

John, esquire of the body to HENRY VIII., m. Elizabeth, sister of Edmund, Lord Bray, but d. s. p.
Henry (Sir).

The younger son,

SIR HENRY NORRIS, succeeded Sir William Compton as usher of the black rod 23 Oct. in the 18 of HENRY VIII., "to bear the same before the king, or his lieutenant at St. George's feast in the castle of Windsor." He was also esquire of the body to the king, one of the gentlemen of the privy chamber, and constable of Wallingford Castle. "But," says Dugdale, "upon 1 May, there being a solemn just held at Greenwich, wherein George Bullen, Viscount Rochford, was chief challenger, and this Henry principal defendant; the king suddenly departed thence, no cause for it being at all known, (which much discomposed the whole company, particularly the queen.) Some say that she let fall her handkerchief, wherewith one (supposed her favourite) did wipe his face, and that it was perceived by the king. But whatever it was, the next morning, this Henry, with the Lord Rochford, was committed to the Tower, so likewise the queen: who, when she came thither, fell upon her knees, beseeching God so to help her, as she was not guilty of what she was accused. Others were also committed at that time upon the same account. It is reported that she seemed to exclaim against this Henry, as if he had accused her; yet said they should both die together. But so they did not, nor on the same day; she being tried before the Duke of Norfolk (high steward for that occasion), and found guilty by her peers. He also, with the rest, soon after, and beheaded on the 14th of that month. It is likewise reported that the king greatly favoured this Henry, and that he much grieved that he was to die with the rest; also, that thereupon he offered pardon to him; conditionally, that he would confess that whereof he was accused: but he answered resolutely that, in his conscience, he thought the queen guiltless of the objected crime; but whether she were or not, he could not accuse her of anything, and that he had rather undergo a thousand deaths than betray the innocent. Upon relation whereof to the king, he cried out, Hang him up—hang him up, then!" This unfortunate gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Thomas, Lord Dacre of the South, and left issue, HENRY and Mary, m. 1st, to Sir George Carew, and 2ndly, to Sir Arthur Champernon. The son,

SIR HENRY NORRIS, Knt. of Rycote, co. Lineage.

The barony of Bruce of Whorlton, co. York, was conferred by CHARLES I. (1 Aug. 1641) upon York; Viscount Bruce, of Amphil, co. Bedford; and Earl of Ailesbury, co. Bucks.* He m. Diana, dau. of Henry Grey, 1st Earl of Stamford, by whom he had eight sons and nine daus. THOMAS BRUDENELL, s. his uncle, the Earl of Aylesbury, in the barony of Bruce of Tottenham.

The Earl of Ailesbury, although amongst the first to invite the Prince of Orange into England, as a mediator between the crown and the people, peremptorily refused to sanction his advancement to the throne, or to swear allegiance to the government of the Revolution. In 1690-1, during King WILLIAM's absence in Ireland, Queen MARY issued a proclamation for the apprehension of his lordship, with other suspected persons, but he was not then imprisoned; in a few years afterwards, however, being accused of attending meetings at the Old King's Head Tavern, in Leadenhall-street, for the restoration of King JAMES, he was committed to the Tower, which so affected the countess that she died in childbed, 12 Jan. 1696-7; the earl was admitted to bail on 12 Feb. following. His lordship obtained subsequently leave from King WILLIAM to reside at Brussels, where he m. Charlotte, Countess of Sannu, of the ancient and noble house of Argentan, in the duchy of Brabant, and by her, who d. 23 July, 1710, had an only dau.,

ROBERT, Lord Bruce, who m. Frances, dau. of Sir William Blacket, Bart., and d. s. p. in the lifetime of his father.

Mary, m. in 1728, to Henry Brydges, Marquess of Carnarvon, afterwards Duke of Chandos.

Elizabeth, m. to the Hon. B. Bathurst, d. s. p.

His lordship m. 2ndly, Lady Juliana Boyle, 2nd dau. of Charles, Earl of Burlington, but by that lady had no issue. He m. 3rdly, in 1739, Caroline, only dau. of Gen. John Campbell, of Mamore, who was afterwards Duke of Argyll, and by her had an only dau.,

In consequence of the failure of male issue, his lordship obtained, 17 April, 1746, by patent, the Barony of Bruce of

Tottenham, co. Wills, with remainder to his nephew, the Hon. Thomas Brudenell; and, dying 10 Feb. 1747, the earldom of Ailesbury &c. became extinct: the Scottish titles devolved upon Charles, 9th Earl of Kincardine, and the barony of Bruce, created as above, descended to his nephew,

THE HON. THOMAS BRUDENELL, 2nd baron, who thereupon assumed the additional name and arms of Bruce. His lordship, d. in 1730, m. 1st, 17 Feb. 1761, Susanna, dau. of Henry Hoare, Esq. of Stourhead, co. Wilts, and relict of Viscount Dungarvan, by whom he had,

Lineage.

For the origin of this family, refer to BURKE'S Landed Gentry.

The first of the family mentioned in any charter, Nisbet informs us, is DUNCAN DE CARRICK, and from the document it appears that he lived in the reign of MALCOLM IV., which began about 1150. The grandson of Duncan, ROLAND, of Carrick, had a grant of the country of Carrick from Neil, Earl of Carrick, and was declared chief of his name. This grant was confirmed by ALEXANDER III. The sixth in lineal descent from this Roland was,

SIR JOHN KENNEDY, designated son of Sir Gilbert de Carrick in many authenticated writs, obtained a confirmatory charter from DAVID II. of the lands of CASTLYS, co. Ayr, with other territorial possessions which he had acquired with his wife, Mary, dau. of Sir Niel Montgomery. He was s. by his son,

SIR GILBERT KENNEDY, one of the hostages delivered to the English, in 1357, for the liberation of DAVID II. This gentleman m. 1st, Marion, dau. of Sir James Sandilands, of Calder, and had by her, two sons,

Sir Gilbert m. 2ndly, and had a son,

SIR JAMES KENNEDY, who obtained from ROBERT III. a charter of confirmation of the balliary of Carrick, to be Caput totius prosapie, and to have the command of the militia of Carrick, &c.; the king's charter bears "Delecto consanguineo suo Jacobo Kennedy Militi," &c. Sir James m. the Lady MARY STEWART,* widow of George Douglas, Earl of Angus, and dau. of ROBERT III., and got a confirmation from that monarch, then his father-in-law, of the lands and barony of Dalrymple, to himself and the princess his wife, dated at Dundonald, in 1488. Sir James Kennedy was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GILBERT KENNEDY, Knt., who was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, in 1482, by the title of Lord Kennedy; and, in 1460, was appointed one of the six regents of the kingdom during the minority of JAMES III. The ceremony was celebrated with great pomp, but when the crown matrimonial was demanded, the Scotch deputies, in a respectful but firm manner, discovered a fixed resolution of consenting to nothing that tended to introduce any alteration in the order of succession to the crown. This opposition to the views of the French court gave great offence, and occasioned a report that poison was administered to the deputies, of whom Lord Fleming died at Paris, and the Earls of Cassilis and Rothes, and Bishop Reid, president of the Court of Session, at Dieppe, all three in one night, 28 Nov. 1558. Lineage.

ARNOLD-JOOST VAN-KEPPEL, Lord of Voorst, accompanied the Prince of Orange in 1688, and, on the establishment of his master upon the throne of England, was created, 10 Feb. 1695-6, Baron Ashford, of Ashford, co. Kent; Viscount Bury, co. palatine of Lancaster; and EARL OF ALBEMARLE,† a town and territory of the Dukedom of

* A bill passed in 1836 to relieve the family of the earl's father from whatever disabilities were supposed to adhere to them in consequence of the forfeiture of Lord Ogilvy; the bill was not, however, termed an act of restoration, for the earldom had never been forfeited by act of parliament.

† ALBEMARLE, or AUMARLE. This territory belonged, at the time of the Norman conquest, to Stephen, son of Odo, descended from the Earls of Champagne, whom WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR made EARL OF ALBEMARLE, as Normandy. The Earl was subsequently honoured with the Garter. "About this time (says Burnet) the king set up a new favourite, Keppel, a gentleman of Guelder, who was raised from a page into the highest degree of favour that any person had ever attained about the king. He was now (1695) made Earl of Albemarle, and soon after knight of the Garter, and, by a quick and unaccountable progress, he seemed to have engrossed the royal favour so entirely, that he disposed of everything that was in the king's power. He was a cheerful young man, that had the art to please, but was so much given up to his own pleasure, that he could scarce submit to the attendance and drudgery that was necessary to maintain his post. He had never yet distinguished himself in anything. He was not cold nor dry, as the Earl of Portland was thought to be, who seemed to have the art of creating many enemies to himself, and not one friend; but the Earl of Albemarle had all the arts of a court, was civil to all, and procured many favours." His lordship m. in 1701, Gertrude, dau. of Adam Vander Duin, Lord of St. Gravemoer, in Holland, and had issue,

The earl was a member of the nobles in Holland, deputy forester, gen. of the horse, and of Swiszers in the service of the States-General, governor of Bois-le-duc, &c. King WILLIAM held his lordship in the highest esteem, and bequeathed to him, in a codicil annexed to his majesty's last will and testament, the Lordship of Breevoort, and 200,000 guilders, the only legacy the king gave from the Prince of Nassau-Friesland, whom he had made his heir. When the line of this nobleman failed, both male and female, Thomas Plantagenet, Duke of Gloucester, son of EDWARD III., was summoned to Parliament as DUKE OF AUMARLE, anno 1385, and after him, Edward Plantagenet (subsequently Duke of York) was created DUKE OF ALBEMARLE, (1397.) This prince fell at Azincourt, and, leaving no issue, the earldom expired. In 1411, Thomas Plantagenet, 2nd son of HENRY IV., was created Earl of Albemarle and Duke of Clarence; but dying s. p. in 1421, the earldom again became extinct. The Marquess of Anglesey, having adopted the military profession, entered into active service under the command of his royal highness the late Duke of York, in the early part of the first war with revolutionized France, as lieutenant-col. of a regiment of infantry; from which exchanging into the hussars, he subsequently distinguished himself, during Sir John Moore's campaign, as the gallant leader of the cavalry brigade, in the Spanish peninsula; and at the close of the sanguinary struggle contributed mainly, at the head of the united British, Hanoverian, and Belgian horse, to the glorious result of Waterloo; in that memorable conflict, at nearly the close of the battle, his lordship received a wound on his right knee, which rendered amputation eventually necessary. The marquess has been twice lord-lieutenant of Ireland.

Lineage.

WILLIAM PAGET, one of the serjeants-at-mace of the city of London, left, with other children,

WILLIAM PAGET, who, after receiving the rudiments of education under the famous Lily, in St. Paul's school, and, passing through the University of Cambridge, entered the family of Stephen Gardiner, Bishop of Winchester, and was thence introduced into political life. In the 21st of HENRY VIII., Paget went into France to obtain the opinions of the learned in that kingdom, touching his royal master's divorce from Queen KATHERINE; and thenceforward, during the remainder of HENRY's reign, we find him actively and confidentially employed, often as a diplomatist upon secret and important missions, and at one time he filled the office of secretary of state. He received the honour of knighthood, and had a legacy of £300 from the king, who constituted him one of his executors, and of the council to EDWARD VI. Sir William Paget subsequently formed a close alliance with the Protector SOMERSET, and thus retained the opportunity of devoting his great abilities to the services of the state. On 14 Feb. 1546-7, he was elected a Knight of the Garter; and he was summoned to parliament as BARON PAGET, of Beaudesert, co. Stafford, 23 Jan. 1552. In the government of the Protector he took a prominent part, and participated in the downfall of his patron. He was committed to the Tower, fined £6000 by the Star Chamber, and divested of the insignia of the Garter. His disgrace was not, however, of endurance; within a short time he obtained his liberty, with a general pardon for all offences, and a remission of the debt due to the crown. On the death of EDWARD, he espoused the cause of MARY, and after her accession to the throne was sworn of the privy council. He had also a restoration of the Garter, and he obtained several important grants from her majesty. He was afterwards appointed lord privy seal. When ELIZABETH succeeded, in 1558, he retired from public life at his own request; and Camden informs us, that her majesty "retained an affection and value for him, though he was a strict zealot of the Romish church." His lordship m. Anne, dau. and heir of Henry Preston, Esq., son of Lawrence, 2nd son of Thomas Preston, Esq. of Preston Patrick and Nether Levens, co. Westmoreland; and, dying in 1653, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HENRY PAGET, K.B. (so made at the coronation of MARY), who was summoned to parliament as Baron Paget, 30 Sept. 1566. He m. Catharine, dau. of Sir Henry Knevet, of Buckenham, in Norfolk, and left at his decease, in 1578, an only daughter,

ELIZABETH PAGET, who m. Sir Henry Lee, Knt., but had no issue. There is some confusion as to this lady's having inherited the barony. Collins says she died 29 June, 1571; if so, her uncle enjoyed the dignity before her decease; for we find that gentleman,

THOMAS PAGET, summoned to parliament as BARON PAGET, on the 4th of the preceding April. In the 27th of ELIZABETH, this nobleman, being zealously affected to the catholic religion, and letters having been intercepted which betrayed good feelings towards the Queen of Scots, he deemed it advisable, on the apprehension of Francis Throgmorton, to withdraw privately, with Charles Arundel, into France. He was attainted soon after, with his brother, Charles Paget, by parliament, and his property confiscated. He m. Nazaret, dau. of Sir Henry Newton, of Barr's Court, co. Somerset, and was s. at his decease, 1589, by his only son,

WILLIAM, 4th baron, who was restored by parliament in the 1st of JAMES I. to his rank and honours, and was summoned to parliament from 5 Nov. 1605, to 7 March, 1628. His lordship m. Lettice, dau. and co-heir of Henry Knolles, Esq. of Kingsbury, in Warwickshire, (by Margaret, his wife, dau. and heir of Sir Ambrose Cave, Knt., chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, and Margery, his wife, dau. and co-heir of William Willington, of Barcheston, co. Warwick,) and dying 20 Aug. 1629, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 5th baron, b. 13 Sept. 1609; m. Frances, dau. of Henry, Earl of Holland, and had, with eleven other children,

i. WILLIAM, his successor.

ii. Henry, who settled in Ireland, and left at his decease, by his wife, Anne, dau. of R. Sandford, Esq. of Sandford, in Shropshire, (with a dau., Dorothy, wife of Sir Edward Irby, Bart.,) THOMAS, brigadier-gen. in the army, whose only dau. and heiress, CAROLINE, m. Sir Nicholas Bayly, Bart. of Placenywyd, son and successor of Sir Edward Bayly, who had been created a Baronet of Ireland, 4 July, 1730, and had a son, HENRY BAYLY, who inherited as 9th BARON PAGET.

lifetime; and was advanced to the Earldom of Uxbridge, 19 Oct. 1714. He m. 1st, Mary, eldest dau. and co-heir of Thomas Catesby, Esq. of Wheaton, co. Northampton, and had an only child,

THOMAS CATESBY, Lord Paget, who m. Lady Elizabeth Egerton, sister of Scroop, Duke of Bridgewater, and, dying before his father, left a son, HENRY, successor to the earldom.

The earl espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir W. Bagot, but had no other issue. He d. in 1743, and was s. by his grandson,

HENRY, 8th baron and 2nd earl. This nobleman dying unm., Nov. 1769, the earldom of Uxbridge and barony of Burton became extinct; but the barony of Paget, being a barony in fee, devolved upon the eldest surviving son of the deceased,

CAROLINE PAGET, dau. of Brigadier-Gen. Thomas Paget, (refer to William, 5th baron,) and her husband, Sir Nicholas Bayly, Bart., namely,

HENRY BAYLY, Esq., who thereupon assumed the surname and arms of Paget alone, and was summoned to parliament 13 Jan. 1770, as 9th BARON PAGET. Lineage.

The family of Campbell is one of the most distinguished in Scotland, and its head, ARGYLL, in feudal times, was probably the most powerful subject in the kingdom. Eight centuries ago, Gillespich Campbell acquired, by marriage with an heiress, the lordship of Lochow, in Argyllshire, and from him descended

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who, distinguishing himself as well by the great acquisitions he had made to his estate, as his achievements in war, obtained the surname of MORE, or GREAT; and from him the chief of the house is in the Gaelic styled, to this day, MAC CALLUM MORE. He was knighted by ALEXANDER III., 1280, and was one of the nominees, 1391, on the part of ROBERT BRUCE, in the contest for the crown of Scotland. This renowned and gallant chieftain was slain in a conflict with his powerful neighbour, the Lord of Lorn, at a place called the String of Cowal, where a great obelisk is erected over his grave. The event occasioned continued feuds for a series of years between the houses of Lochow and Lorn, which terminated at last by the marriage of the first Earl of Argyll with the heiress of Lorn. Sir Colin m. a lady of the name of St. Clair, and had issue,

NIEL, his successor.

Donald, progenitor of the Campbells of Loudoun.

Dugald (Sir), who swore fealty to EDWARD I. in 1299, but afterwards joined ROBERT BRUCE.

Arthur, who, having sworn fidelity with his brother to KING EDWARD, like him, afterwards joined ROBERT BRUCE, from whom he obtained two charters of the constabulary of Dunstaffnage, with the mains thereof. Duncan, likewise a supporter of the BRUCE.

Sir Colin was s. by his eldest son,

SIR NIEL CAMPBELL, who was knighted by ALEX. III. towards the close of that monarch's reign. He swore fealty, with his brothers, in 1296, to King EDWARD, but afterwards joining ROBERT BRUCE, adhered to him in prosperity and adversity, and fought by his side in almost every field, from the battle of Methven to that of Bannockburn. The king had so high a sense of Campbell's services that he gave him his sister, Lady Mary Bruce, in marriage, and granted to him and his said wife, and John their son, all the lands which belonged to David de Strathbogie, Earl of Athol. When the triumph of Bannockburn had decided the independence of Scotland, Sir Niel Campbell was one of the great barons in the parliament which met at Ayr, 26 April, 1315, and fixed the succession to the crown. By the Lady Mary Bruce he had three sons, viz.,

COLIN.

John (Sir), of Moulin, who, upon the forfeiture of David de Strathbogie, 11th Earl of Athol, was advanced to that earldom. He fell at the battle of Haldon Hill, 1333; and dying without issue, the Earldom of Athol reverted to the crown.

Duncan of Menstrie.

Sir Niel d. in 1316, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who accompanied the king into Ireland, in 1316, to assist in placing his brother, Edward Bruce, upon the throne of that kingdom. The Scottish army passing through a wood, Feb. 1317, Robert issued positive orders to his soldiers to march in order of battle, and on no pretence to leave their ranks.

It happened that two English yeomen discharged their arrows at Sir Colin, who rode off at full speed to avenge the insult. The king followed, and struck his nephew so violently with his truncheon, that he was all but unhorsed, exclaiming "Return! your disobedience might have brought us all into jeopardy." Sir Colin, in 1334, assisted the steward of Scotland in the recovery of the CASTLE OF DUNOON from the English, which gave the first turn of fortune in favour of King DAVID BRUCE, and he was in consequence appointed heritable governor of that fortress. He m. a lady of the house of Lennox, and had three sons and a dau., viz., ARCHIBALD; John, whence derive the Campbells of Barbreck, Succoth, and others, (see BURK'S Landed Gentry); Dugald; and Alicia, m. to Allan Lauder, of Hatton. He d. in 1340, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ARCHIBALD, of GILLESPICK, CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who was s. by his son,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who m. Margaret, 2nd dau. of Sir John Drummond, of Stobhall, and sister of Annabel, queen consort of ROBERT III., by whom he had issue, viz.,

DUNCAN.

Colin, of Ardkinglass.

Donald.

Christian, m. Duncan Macfarlane, of Arrochar.

Sir Colin was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR DUNCAN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who assumed the designation of ARGYLL, and was raised to the dignity of a lord of parliament by JAMES II., in 1445, by the title of Lord Campbell, having, in the previous reign, been of the privy council, and been appointed the king's justiciary, and lord-lieutenant of the co. Argyll. His lordship m. 1st, Lady Marjory Stewart, dau. of Robert, Duke of Albany, Regent of Scotland, and had three sons, viz., Celestine, who d. young.

Archibald, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Somerville, of Carnwath; and dying before his father, left a son, COLIN, who s. his grandfather.

Colin (Sir), ancestor of the Campbells of Glenurchy, now Marquesses of Breadalbane.

Lord Campbell m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Blackhall, natural son of ROBERT III., and had three more sons. His lordship was one of the hostages for the redemption of JAMES I., in 1424, and his annual revenue at that time was stated to be fifteen hundred marks, a larger income than that of any other of the hostages. He d. at the close of the year 1453, and was s. by his grandson,

COLIN, 2nd Lord Campbell, who was created Earl of Argyll, 1457. His lordship was appointed master of the king's household in 1464; and after filling several most important public situations, as ambassador to the courts of England and France, justiciary, &c., he was eventually made LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF SCOTLAND. He m. Isabel Stewart, eldest dau. and co-heiress, of John, Lord of Lorn, and, in consequence, added the galley to his achievement, with the designation of Lord Lorn to his other titles. Of this marriage there were, with several daus., two sons, viz.,

ARCHIBALD, his successor.

Thomas, ancestor of the Campbells of Lundy.

The earl d. 10 May, 1493, and was s. by his elder son,

ARCHIBALD, 2nd Earl of Argyll, who fell in the command of the vanguard at the celebrated field of Flodden, on 9 Sept. 1513, leaving, with a numerous family beside, (by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of John, Earl of Lennox,)

COLIN, his successor.

John (Sir), of Calder, ancestor of the Earl of Cawdor.

He was s. by his son,

COLIN, 3rd Earl of Argyll. This nobleman was appointed, in 1528, lieutenant of the borders, warden of the marches, heritable sheriff of Argyllshire, justice-general of Scotland, and master of the king's household. His lordship m. Lady Jane Gordon, dau. of Alexander, Earl of Huntly, and dying in 1533, was s. by his eldest son,*

* His 2nd son, John, was ancestor of the Campbells of Lochnell; and his 3rd, Alexander, became Dean of Moray.

ARCHIBALD, 4th earl. This nobleman was the first person of importance in Scotland who embraced the Protestant religion, and he became subsequently a strenuous advocate for the Reformation. He m. 1st, Helen, dau. of James, Earl of Arran, and had one son,

ARCHIBALD, his successor.

He m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of William Græme, Earl of Menteith, by whom he had, with two daus.,

COLIN, who s. as 6th earl.

His lordship d. in 1558, and was s. by his eldest son,

ARCHIBALD, 5th earl, who, at the breaking out of the civil wars in Scotland, espoused the cause of Queen MARY, and commanded her Majesty's forces at the battle of Langside, in 1568. After the assassination of the Regent MORAY, the Earl of Argyll, and other noblemen of the queen's party, assembled at Linlithgow, 10 April, 1570, and his lordship was then constituted, with the Duke of Chatelherault and the Earl of Huntly, her Majesty's lieutenant in Scotland. When the Regent LESLIE fell in 1571, by assassination too, he was candidate for the regency; but not succeeding, he was sworn of the privy council, and the next year constituted LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR. His lordship m. 1st, the Lady Jane Stuart, natural dau. of JAMES V., (this lady was at supper with her sister, Queen MARY, when Rizzio was murdered, 9 March, 1566; and she stood sponsor, as proxy for ELIZABETH of England, at the baptism of JAMES VI.) The earl m. 2ndly, Lady Joanna Cunningham, 2nd dau. of Alexander, 5th Earl of Glencairn, but had no issue. He d. in 1575, when the estates and honours devolved upon his half-brother,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Boquhan, as 6th earl, who was sworn of the privy council in 1577, and appointed lord high chancellor of Scotland in two years afterwards: by his 2nd wife, Agnes, dau. of William Keith, earl marshal, and widow of James, Earl of Moray, (the Regent,) he had two sons,

ARCHIBALD, his successor.

Colin, of Lundie, created a Baronet.

His lordship d. in 1584, and was s. by his elder son,

ARCHIBALD, 7th earl, a military officer of high reputation, who, after distinguishing himself in arms at home, entered the service of Philip III. of Spain, and obtained renown in the wars of that monarch against the States of Holland. His lordship m. 1st, Lady Anne Douglas, dau. of William, Earl of Morton, by whom he had, with four daus.,

ARCHIBALD, his successor.

He m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir William Cornwallis, of Brome, and had, with a dau., another son, James, created Earl of Irvine in 1642, who d. s. p., when the dignity expired.

The earl d. in 1638, and was s. by his elder son,

ARCHIBALD, 8th earl, who was advanced to the Marquisate of Argyll, by letters patent, dated 15 Nov. 1641. This nobleman resigned into the hands of CHARLES I. the justiciaryship of all Scotland, which had been in his family for several ages, reserving only to himself and his heirs the jurisdiction of the Western Isles, and of Argyll, and wherever else he had lands in Scotland, which arrangements were ratified by act of parliament in 1633. His lordship, who was so deeply engaged in the Scottish affairs of his time, and generally so mysteriously, that to treat of his career would produce rather a series of conjectures than of facts, acted a prominent part during the civil war, was the first commissioner from Scotland to the parliament of England, and commander-in-chief of the Covenanters, when defeated by Montrose at Inverlochic and Killyth; but after the king's murder, when Scotland, as with one voice, demanded the acknowledgment of CHARLES II., Argyll asserted his majesty's cause, and at the king's coronation at Scone, 1 Jan. 1650-1, had the honour of placing the crown upon his majesty's head. Subsequently, however, he assisted in the ceremony of proclaiming CROMWELL, Protector, and signed an engagement to support the usurper's government. On the restoration of the monarchy, the marquess immediately repaired to London, for the purpose of congratulating the king; but his majesty, refusing to see him, ordered his committal to the Tower, where he remained until Dec. following, when he was sent back to Scotland by sea, and narrowly escaped shipwreck. He was soon afterwards tried for high treason, and condemned to death, 25 May, 1661. In two days subsequently, he wrote a long letter to the king, vindicating his memory, and imploring protection for his poor wife and family; dined at noon with his friends with great cheerfulness; and was accompanied by several of the nobility to the scaffold; where, after an interval of devotion, his head was struck off by the maiden at the market-cross of Edinburgh. He had m. his cousin Margaret, second dau. of William Douglas, Earl of Morton, and was s. by the elder of two sons,

ARCHIBALD, 9th earl, who, in 1663, was restored to the estates and honours of his family, as Earl of Argyll. This nobleman, for refusing to subscribe to the Test Act, was found guilty of high treason, 19 Dec. 1681, and sentenced to death, but effected his escape from the Castle of Edinburgh, under the disguise of a page, holding up the train of Lady Sophia Lindsay, his step-daughter, and departed the kingdom: he was subsequently taken, in an abortive attempt to invade Scotland in the beginning of the reign of JAMES II., and executed at the same place, and in the same manner, as his father, 30 June, 1685. His lordship m. 1st, Lady Mary Stuart, dau. of James, Earl of Moray, by whom he left, with other issue,

I. ARCHIBALD, his successor.

II. John, of Mamore, M.P. for Argyllshire, 1700; m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, 8th Lord Elphinstone; and dying in 1766, left, with other children,*

JAMES, who inherited as 4th Duke of Argyll.

III. Charles, M.P. for co. Argyll, in 1741; d. the same year, unmarried.

IV. Neil, d. unm.

The earl was s. by his eldest son,

ARCHIBALD, who was acknowledged Earl of Argyll by the convention of estates in Scotland, anno 1689, before the reversal of the attainder against his father, and was created by the new monarch, after the revolution, in recompence for the services he had rendered in promoting that measure (28 June, 1701), Lord Inverary, Mull, Morvern and Tivy; Viscount of Lochoch and Glenilla; Earl of Campbell and Cowal; Marquess of Kintyre and Lorn; and Duke of ARGYLL, to him and his heirs male whatsoever. His grace m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Lionel Talmash, of Helmingham, co. Stafford, by Elizabeth, Countess of Dysart and Duchess of Lauderdale, and left two sons, with a dau. Anne, who m. James Stewart, 2nd Earl of Bute. He d. 28 Sept. 1703, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 2nd duke, b. in 1678. This nobleman, a great military commander, was created a British peer by Queen ANNE, 29 Nov. 1705, as Baron Chatham and Earl of Greenwich, and advanced to the DUKEDOM OF GREENWICH, 13 April, 1719. In 1715, on the breaking out of the insurrection in Scotland, his grace took the command of the Royal army, and fought the battle of Sheriffmuir. In 1735-6, he was constituted field-marshal of all his majesty's forces. Not less distinguished in the council than the field, the Duke is thus immortalized by Pope:—

“Argyll, the state's whole thunder born to wield,
And shake alike the senate and the field.”

His grace m. 1st, Mary, dau. of John Browne, Esq., but by that lady had no issue; he m. 2ndly, Jane, (one of the maids of honour to Queen ANNE,) dau. of Thomas Warburton, Esq. of Winnington, co. Cheshire, and had five daughters, viz.,

* Of John Campbell of Mamore's younger children, the 3rd son, William, was of Listonhall, Suffolk; the eldest dau., Mary, was Countess of Rosebery; and the youngest Primrose, the wife of Simon, Lord Lovat.

- Richard Wilson, Esq. of Tyrone; and 2ndly, John Tempest, Esq. of Lincolnshire.
- ii. Anne, m. William Wentworth, Earl of Strafford, but d. s. p.

Lineage.

The family of Armstrong was in ancient times settled on the Scottish border, and, springing from this parent stock, several branches, at a very early era, became located in the northern counties of England. One, established at Corby, in Lincolnshire, had continued there for seven, and another, at Tynedale, in Northumberland, for nine generations, at the time of the Visitation in 1623. A third scion, Thoroton, in his History of Nottinghamshire, mentions as fixed at Thorpe, in that county, so early as the eleventh year of RICHARD II., and gives the pedigree, in an interrupted succession, to the year 1679. And Leland, in the first volume of his Itinerary, speaks of a family of Armstrong settled in Yorkshire, whose representative he calls "a gentleman of many lands." Tradition affirms that the original surname was Fairbairn, and that it was changed to Armstrong on the following occasion:—An ancient King of Scotland, having his horse killed under him in battle, was immediately remounted by Fairbairn, his armour-bearer, on his own horse. For this timely assistance the king amply rewarded his deliverer with lands on the borders; and, to perpetuate the memory of so important a service, as well as the manner in which it had been rendered, (for Fairbairn took the king by the thigh, and set him on the saddle,) further conferred upon him the appellation of Armstrong, and assigned him for crest, "An armed hand and arm, in the hand a leg and foot in armour, couped at the thigh, all proper."

The Armstrongs of the border were at the head of a numerous and warlike clan, who, upon all differences that arose between the two crowns, made frequent inroads into the northern counties of England, assisted occasionally by the other neighbouring clans of their alliance. The most famed leader of these bold and adventurous men was,

JOHN ARMSTRONG, the laird of Giltknock Hall, a strong castle situated on the west side of the river Eake, in the parish of Canaby, and county of Eskedale. This mansion is still known as the residence of the distinguished chieftain; and the spacious ruins that remain, even to the present day, evince how strong a position it must have been in former times. In this fortress John Armstrong maintained for many years sumptuous state and considerable power, harassing, by continued incursions, the neighbouring counties of England, until at length delivered by treachery into the power of JAMES IV., he was executed, together with many of his retainers, by the king's orders, at Carlingrig, about the year 1530. He left a son, Christopher, who succeeded as laird of Giltknock, and was living in 1530, and a younger brother,

CHRISTOPHER ARMSTRONG, laird of Mangerton, (a castle

standing on the south-west bank of the river Liddle, twenty miles north-east of Carlisle, who had the good fortune to escape the execution of Carlingrig. He married and had two sons, the younger of whom, William, left Scotland some years after the death of Queen ELIZABETH, and seated himself in the county of Fermanagh, where he became the founder of a numerous family, whose branches flourished in those parts. The elder son of the laird of Mangerton was father of

ANDREW ARMSTRONG, born in the Castle of Mangerton in 1576, who, having disposed of his patrimony in Scotland to one of his kinsmen, migrated, in the commencement of the seventeenth century, to the north of Ireland, and established himself near his uncle in the county of Fermanagh. At the breaking out of the Rebellion in 1641, he embraced a military life, and served as an officer of horse in the army of CHARLES I. for several years, with great reputation. After the Restoration, he was appointed a justice of the peace for the King's County, where he had settled, and of which county he had served the office of sheriff. On the accession of JAMES II., Philip obtained a cornet's commission in a regiment of horse, and served with considerable reputation at the battle of Sedgmore, against the ill-fated Duke of Monmouth, and subsequently in the wars in Flanders, participating in the victory of Blenheim. John, b. 5 March, 1845. William, b. 29 March, 1847.
Another son, b. 27 July, 1848.
Katherine.

Lineage.

The Ashburnhams (so denominated from the town of that name in Sussex, formerly written Esseburnham) are, according to Fuller, "a family of stupendous antiquity, wherein the eminence hath equalled the antiquity, having been barons temp. HENRY III.," and Francis Thynn, Esq., in his catalogue of lord wardens of the Cinque Ports, and constables of Dover Castle, thus mentions one of the early progenitors: "Bertram Ashburnham, a baron of Kent, was constable of Dover Castle, A.D. 1066; which Bertram was beheaded by WILLIAM the Conqueror, because he did so valiantly defend the same against the Duke of Normandy."

JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq., representative of the family at the commencement of the 16th century, m. Lora, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Berkeley, Esq. of Aran, co. Hants, and was s. by his son,

JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq., M.P. for Sussex 1st and 2nd of PHILIP and MARY; m. Isabel, dau. of John Sackville, Esq., ancestor of the Dukes of Dorset, and was s. by his son,

JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq. of Ashburnham, who m. Mary, dau. of George Fane, Esq. of Baduel, co. Kent, grandfather of Francis, 1st Earl of Westmoreland; and dying in 1591, was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Knt., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Beaumont, of Staughton, co. Leicester, by whom he had issue,

JOHN, his successor.

William, M.P. in 1640, who, with other loyal members, was expelled the house for his fidelity to the crown. He subsequently took an active and distinguished part during the civil wars, was maj.-gen. in the royal army, and col.-gen. (1644) of the co. Dorset. After the Restoration, he was appointed cofferer to the king. He m. Jane, dau. of John, Lord Butler, and widow of James Lee, Earl of Marlborough, but d. s. p. in 1679.

Elizabeth, m. to Sir Frederick Cornwallis, Knt., afterwards Lord Cornwallis.

Frances, m. to F. Turville, Esq.

Anne, m. to Sir E. Deering, Bart.

This Sir John Ashburnham, by the inscription on his monument in Ashburnham Church, was necessitated, being deeply engaged for his friends, owing to his generous disposition, to sell his seat (in his family long before the Conquest) and all the estate he had elsewhere, and to leave his wife and children totally unprovided for. His widow m. Sir Thomas Richardson, lord-chief-justice of the Common Pleas, and was created BARONESS CRAMOND, in the peerage of Scotland, by CHARLES I. Sir John Ashburnham's eldest son.

JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq., was one of the grooms of the bedchamber to CHARLES I., and M.P. for Hastings, 1640. He filled, after the Restoration, the same post in the court of CHARLES II., sitting in parliament for the co. Sussex. In 1640, when the unhappy CHARLES deemed it advisable to leave Oxford, Mr. Ashburnham was the only servant that attended him; and, indeed, the only person, except a clergyman, Dr. Hudson, who served for a guide. He was afterwards instrumental in the flight of his royal master from Hampton Court, 11 Nov. 1647; but, upon the failure of the attempt, through Col. Hammond, governor of the Isle of Wight, who delivered the unfortunate monarch up to the army, his fidelity was questioned. But Lord Clarendon sufficiently clears Mr. Ashburnham from the imputation, observing, "that he preserved his reputation and credit with the most eminent of the king's party; and his remaining in England after the death of the king, which his enemies charged as an aggravation of suspicion against him, was upon the marriage of a lady, by whom he had a great fortune and many conveniences, which would have been seized by his leaving the kingdom; and he did send over to CHARLES II., and had leave to stay there, and sometimes supplied the king with considerable sums of money. Afterwards he was committed to the Tower by CROMWELL, where he remained till his (Cromwell's) death." Mr. Ashburnham m. 1st, Frances, dau. and heir of William Holland, Esq. of Westburton, and had issue,

WILLIAM, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, Lord Poulett of Hinton St. George; and, dying in 1665, left a son, JOHN, who s. his grandfather.

Frances, m. to Sir Denny Ashburnham, of Bromham, Bart.

Elizabeth, m. to Sir Hugh Smith, of Long Ashton.

He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Christopher Kenn, Esq. of Kenn, co. Somerset, and widow of Lord Poulett. He d. in 1671, and was s. by his grandson,

I. JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq., who was elevated to the peerage, as Baron Ashburnham, of Ashburnham, co. Sussex, 30 May, 1689. His lordship m. in 1677, Bridget, only dau. and heiress of Walter Vaughan, Esq. of Porthammel House, co. Brecknock; and dying 22 Jan. 1709-10, left (with two daus, Jane, m. to James Hayes, Esq.; Elizabeth, m. 1st, to Robert Cholmondeley, Esq. of Holford, and 2ndly, to Seymour Cholmondeley, Esq.) three sons, by the eldest of whom,

WILLIAM, 2nd baron, he was s. His lordship m. Catharine, dau. and eventually sole heiress of Thomas Taylor, Esq. of Clapham, co. Bedford; but dying without issue, 16 June, 1710, the barony devolved upon his brother, JOHN, 3rd baron, who was created a Vicomte St. Asaph, and EARL OF ASHBURNHAM, 14 May, 1730. His lordship (appointed, in 1728, gentleman of the bed-chamber to Frederick, Prince of Wales) m. 1st, to Lady Mary Butler, dau. of James, Duke of Ormonde, but by that lady had no issue. JOHN, 2nd earl, LL.D., b. 30 Oct. 1724, who was appointed, in 1753, keeper of Hyde Park and St. James's Park, and, in 1778, first lord of the bedchamber and groom of the stole to GEORGE III. Lineage.

Fuller, speaking of the Astons, says, "a more noble family measuring on the level of flat and inadventaged antiquity, is not to be met with; they have ever borne a good respect to the church and learned men."

RANDAL, of RANAULPH DE ASTONA, the first on record, who lived in the reign of EDWARD I., was father of

ROGER DE ASTON, who, in 1260, obtained from Roger de Moland, Bishop of Lichfield, the manors of Heywood and Longdon, and the keeping of the game in Caukwood, all in the co. Stafford. The fifth in descent from this Roger,

SIR ROGER DE ASTON, Knt., served the office of sheriff for Staffordshire in the reign of HENRY VI., and was one of the prime gentry returned by the commissioners for that county in 1433. Sir Roger m. Joyce, sister and co-heir of Sir Baldwin de Treville, and with her acquired large estates in the co. of Warwick. The great-grandson of this marriage,

SIR JOHN DE ASTON, K.B., was a military character of great eminence in the reigns of the first two sovereigns of the house of Tudor. Sir John was with HENRY VIII. in the French war of 1513, and was made a banneret for his conduct at the battle of Spurs. He obtained renown likewise at the siege of Terouin and Tournay. He was sheriff of the counties of Leicester and Warwick, and thrice of Staffordshire. Sir John Aston m. Joan, only child of Sir William Littleton, of Frankley, co. Worcester, by whom he acquired the manors of Wanlip, in Leicestershire, and Tixall, co. Stafford. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR EDWARD ASTON, of Tixall, who built a stately mansion at that place, the ruins of which are still remaining. He m. Joan, dau. of Sir Thomas Bowles, of Penho, co. Carnarvon, one of the barons of the Exchequer, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WALTER ASTON, of Tixall, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Leveson, of Lilleshull, and was s. in 1589, by his eldest son,

SIR WALTER ASTON, who, at the coronation of JAMES I., was honoured with the order of the Bath, and subsequently, in 1611, created a Baronet. In 1623 he was employed to negotiate a marriage between Charles, Prince of Wales, and the Infanta of Spain; and, in requital for his service upon that occasion, was elevated to the peerage, 28 Nov. 1627, as LORD ASTON OF FORFAR. His lordship m. Gertrude, only dau. of Sir Thomas Sadleir, of Standon, (son of the celebrated Sir Ralph Sadleir—see BURKE'S Landed Gentry), and dying in 1689, was s. by his eldest son,

WALTER, 2nd baron, who, at the decease of his uncle, Ralph Sadleir, Esq. of Standon, s. p. in 1660, inherited, under the will of that gentleman, the lordship of Standon, with other estates in Hertfordshire. This nobleman, a staunch and gallant supporter of the royal cause during the civil wars, m. Lady Mary Weston, 2nd dau. of Richard, Earl of Portland, K.G., lord-high-treasurer of England; and was s. at his decease, in 1678, by his eldest son,

JAMES, 5th baron. This nobleman m. Barbara, dau. of George, 14th Earl of Shrewsbury, and had two daus., his co-heirs, viz.,

- i. Mary, m. to Sir Walter Blount, Bart. of Sodington. This lady was accidentally burnt to death by her clothes catching fire, 6 Feb. 1805.
- ii. Barbara, who inherited Tixall, m. to the Hon. Thomas Clifford, son of Hugh Clifford, of Chudleigh. She d. in 1786, leaving twelve children, of whom,

1. THOMAS-HUGH CLIFFORD, the eldest son, succeeded to Tixall. He subsequently assumed the surname of CONSTABLE, and was created a Baronet. (See CONSTABLE.)

3 Arthur Clifford, who edited his great ancestor Sir Ralph Sadleir's State Papers and Letters in the year 1809.

His lordship dying thus, in 1751, without male issue, the baronetcy ceased, while the barony devolved upon

PHILIP ASTON, Esq., as 6th baron, the great-great-grandson of the late lord's great-great-grand uncle, William Aston, of Milwich, in remainder to whose posterity the original patent was framed. His lordship d. unm. in 1755, when his brother, ATHOLL.

ATHOLL, DUKE, MARQUESS, AND EARL OF, (George-Augustus-Frederick-John Murray,) Marquess and Earl of Tullibardine, Earl of Strathray and Strathardale, Viscount Glenaldmond, Balquhidar, and Glenlyon, Baron Murray of Tullibardine, Lord Balvenie and Gask, in the peerage of Scotland; Earl Strange, Baron Strange, and Baron Murray, of Stanley, co. JOHN-JAMES-HUGH-HENRY, Marquess of Tullibardine, b. 7 Aug. 1840.

His grace s. as 6th duke, at the decease of his uncle, in 1846.

Lineage

This family, one of the most eminent in Scotland, was at one time invested with the absolute sovereignty of the Isle of Man. "Freskine," says Sir Robert Douglas, "a gentleman of Flemish origin, came into Scotland during the reign of DAVID I., and obtained from that munificent sovereign the lands of Strathbrock, co. Linlithgow. Soon after the insurrection of the Moraymen, in 1130, Freskine, who probably contributed by his skill and bravery to the subduement of these ancient people, acquired from the same prince some of the most fertile districts in the low lands of Moray, and built a fortalice at Duffus, where he resided, the massy ruins whereof are still remarkable." The descendant of this distinguished person,

WALTER, inheriting his paternal lands at Moray, was distinguished by the surname of DE MORAVIA, or MORAY. From this Walter de Moravia descended the Morays, Lords Bothwell, the Morays of Abercairny, and

SIR WILLIAM DE MORAVIA, who acquired the lands of Tullibardine with his wife, Adda, dau. of Malise, Seneschal of Strathern, as appears by charters dated in the years 1283 and 1284. He was s. by his son,

ANDREW MURRAY, of Tullibardine. When Edward Balliol invaded Scotland, in 1333, this Andrew Murray, favouring his pretensions, contributed greatly to the decisive victory obtained by Balliol at Duplin, by fixing a stake in a ford in the river Earn, through which his army passed and attacked the Scots. This rendered Murray so obnoxious that, when he was made prisoner in a couple of months after, he was immediately put to death for his adhesion to Balliol. He left a son,

SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, from whom lineally descended (the 5th in succession)

SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, living in 1483 and 1511, who had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Andrew, (Sir,) ancestor of the Viscounts Stormont.

Sir William was s. by his eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, whose grandson,

SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, m. in 1547, Lady Agnes Graham, dau. of William, 2nd Earl of Montrose, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN MURRAY, 12th feudal Baron of Tullibardine, master of the household, and one of the privy council of JAMES VI., who was created Lord Murray of Tullibardine, 25 April, 1604, and 10 July, 1606, Earl of Tullibardine. His lordship m. Catherine, dau. of David, Lord Drummond, and had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Patrick, of Castletown, afterwards Earl of Tullibardine. Mungo, who became 2nd Viscount Stormont, but d. issueless.

The earl d. in 1609, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 2nd earl, who, with his cousin, David, Viscount Stormont, when a very young man, had the good fortune to be instrumental in the rescue of the king, at Perth, from the attempt of the Earl Gowrie and his brother, in 1600. For this signal service he obtained the hereditary sheriffship of Perthshire, which has since continued in the family. His lordship m. 1st, in 1602, Cecilia, eldest dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of Wemyss, but had no issue; he m. 2ndly, Lady Dorothea Stewart, eldest dau. of John, 5th Earl of Atholl, (at whose decease, without male issue, the earldom of Atholl reverted to the crown,) by whom he had issue, JOHN, who became Earl of Atholl; and Mary, m. to Sir John Moncrieffe, of Moncrieffe, Bart. The earl, a short time before his decease, having petitioned CHARLES I., setting forth that his countess was the eldest dau. and heir of line of John, Earl of Atholl, and that the family of Stewart of Innermeath, which had obtained the title at that nobleman's decease, had become extinct, the king graciously promised to revive the dignity in her posterity; when his lordship, wishing to prevent the junction of the earldoms of Atholl and Tullibardine, and for the purpose of forming two noble families, resigned the latter dignity to the crown in favour of his brother, PATRICK MURRAY, which disposition was confirmed by patent under the great seal, anno 1628. The earldom of Tullibardine came back, however, to the Atholl line, upon the demise of Earl Patrick's son, JAMES, 4th earl, who outlived his male issue. William, 2nd Earl of Tullibardine, d. in 1628, and was s. by his son,

JOHN MURRAY, who, on 6 Aug. 1628, was served heir to John, Earl of Atholl, which service was confirmed by patent, 17 Feb. 1628-29, and he thus became 1st Earl of Atholl of the house of Murray. His lordship m. Jane, dau. of Sir Duncan Campbell, of Glenurchy, and dying in 1642, was s. by his son,

John, 2nd Earl of Atholl, K.T., to whom reverted the earldom of Tullibardine, in 1670, upon the demise of his cousin James, mentioned above. His lordship was created Marquess of Atholl, 17 Feb. 1676; he m. Lady Amelia-Sophia Stanley, only dau. of James, 7th Earl of Derby, by whom he had, with other children,

JOHN, his successor.

Charles, created Earl of Dummore. (See that dignity.) William, who succeeded as 2nd Lord Nairne. (See that title.)

His lordship d. in 1703, and was s. by his eldest son, JOHN, 6th Earl of Tullibardine, 3rd Earl of Atholl, and 2nd Marquess of Atholl, who was created, 30 July, 1703, Marquess of Tullibardine and Duke of Atholl, with remainder, in default of male issue, to the sons of his deceased father. His grace m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of William and Anne, Duke and Duchess of Hamilton, by whom he had issue, six sons and a dau.; of which,

William, who s. his brother as Marquess of Tullibardine, was one of the first that joined the Earl of Mar, in 1715, and proclaimed the Chevalier, for which act of high treason he was attainted by parliament. Escaping abroad, the marquess returned to Scotland, 1719, with the Spanish forces, joined the insurgents at Kintail, and was at the battle of Glenshiel. After the defeat there, his lordship escaped a second time to the Continent, where he lived in exile twenty-six years. He accompanied CHARLES-EDWARD to Scotland, landed with him at Boradale, 25 July, 1745, unfurled the prince's standard at Glenfinnan, 19 Aug., and supported by a man on each side, held the staff while the manifesto and commission of regency were read. After the decisive battle of Culloden he fled to the westward, intending to embark for the Isle of Mull; but his horse falling, he surrendered, 27 April, 1746, in a bad state of health, to Mr. Buchanan, of Dummakill. His lordship was eventually conveyed to London, and committed to the Tower, where he d. 9 July, 1746.

JAMES, who s. to the dukedom.

Charles, a cornet of horse, joined the Chevalier, in 1715, and had the command of a regiment. Upon the march he never could be prevailed upon to ride, but kept at the head of his regiment on foot in the Highland dress. After the surrender of Preston, his lordship, being amongst the prisoners, was tried by a court-martial as a deserter, and sentenced to be shot; but he was reprieved, and d. s. p. in 1720.

George, who was with his brother, the Marquess of Tullibardine, at Kintail, and was wounded at the battle of Glenshiel. Making his escape abroad, he was several years an officer in the Sardinian service, but obtaining a pardon, he returned home. Joining CHARLES-EDWARD, in 1745, he was appointed lieutenant-general of the prince's forces, acted as such at the battles of Preston, Falkirk, and Culloden, marched into England with them, and brought up the rear in their retreat thence. He was attainted by parliament, but made his escape, and was most graciously received by the Chevalier at Rome. AYLMER, SIR GERALD-GEORGE, of Donadea Castle, co. Kildare; b. 15 Sept. 1798; s. as 9th baronet, at the decease of his father, 23 May, 1816; m. 24 April, 1826, Maria, elder dau. and co-heir of Colonel Hodgson, of Carlisle, of the E. I. Co.'s service, and has an only son,

GERALD-GEORGE, b. 26 May, 1830.

Sir Gerald is deputy-lieut. of the co. Kildare.

Lineage.

The Aylmers deduce their descent from Athelmare, or Ailmer, Earl of Cornwall, who lived in the reign of Ernst-RED; and their settlement in Ireland is fixed at some time in the 12th century. In the 10th of HENRY VI., A.D. 1421, we find Richard Aylmer, Esq. of Lyons, co. Kildare,* one of the keepers of the peace for that co., as well as for the adjoining co. of Dublin; and in eleven years afterwards (1433) he is a subscriber, as sovereign of the town of Tassagard, to an indenture made to one John Staunton, and his heirs, of a waste plot of ground there, for the yearly consideration of one penny at Easter. In the reign of HENRY VIII., a member of the family, Sir Gerald Aylmer, Knt. of Dullardstown, co. Meath, and son of Bartholomew Aylmer, Esq. of Lyons, by his wife, Margaret Chivers, rose to considerable eminence in the legal profession, and was constituted, in 1532, one of the justices of the court of Common Pleas in Ireland; from which he was removed to the presidency of the court of Exchequer; and, in 1535, he returned, as chief justice, to the former court. The king being disposed to promote him to the same rank in the King's Bench, the Earl of Shrewsbury opposed the judge's preferment, representing him as an ignorant man, and unfit for such an office. Whereupon Henry reproved the Lord Cromwell for recommending so improper a person; when Lord Cromwell entreated of his highness to discourse with Sir Gerald, and that he would then find himself misinformed: the king did so, and asking him the true reason of the decay of Ireland, Sir Gerald answered, "That it was because the estates men (who used to reside and defend their lands and countenance their tenants) did now generally dwell in England, and left Ireland a prey to the natives; but that if his highness would oblige them to residence, or seize their estates to his own use if they did not, he would soon find a reformation." The king, with thanks for his advice, assured him care should be taken of it in the next parliament; and the act of absentees was accordingly passed, 1536, whereby, among others, the Earl of Shrewsbury forfeited his lands.

The baronetcy of Ireland was conferred 25 Jan. 1621, in little more than a year after the institution of the order, by JAMES I., upon

Sir Edmund s. as 9th baronet of Redgrave (PREMIER BARONET OF ENGLAND) and 10th baronet of Mildenhall, upon the decease of his father, 5 Sept. 1820.

Lineage.

Various conjectures have been hazarded as to the origin of the surname of BACON, but to little purpose. It matters not, however; the antiquity of the family is beyond dispute; and there are few houses in the kingdom more distinguished by the production of great and eminent men. Besides Friar Bacon, the marvel of his day, Sir Nicholas Bacon, and the great Lord Bacon, there were five other extraordinary personages of the same family.

SIR NICHOLAS BACON, Knt., b. at Chiselhurst, in Kent, in 1510, becoming eminent at the bar, succeeded Nich. Heath, Archbishop of York, at the accession of ELIZABETH, in the custody of the great seal, and was sworn of her Majesty's privy council. The chief business of the first session of ELIZABETH'S reign was the settlement of religion, and the management of that important affair was committed almost wholly to the lord keeper, who pursued therein his wise maxim, "Let us stay a little, that we have done the sooner." As a statesman, he was remarkable for a clear head and profound understanding. His great skill lay in balancing parties, and it is thought that the queen was indebted to him for that great secret of governing. Towards the latter end of his life he became so remarkable for corpulency, that his royal mistress used familiarly to observe, "that the lord keeper's soul lodged well." To himself his great size was very cumbersome, inasmuch, that after walking from Westminster Hall to the Star Chamber, which was but a very little way, he was usually so greatly out of breath, that the lawyers forbore speaking at the bar until he recovered himself, and gave them notice by knocking with his staff. Sir Nicholas m. 1st, Jane, dau. of William Fernley, Esq. of West Creting, co. Suffolk, by whom he had issue,

1 Anne, m. to Sir Roger Townshend, of Rainham, co. Norfolk, ancestor of the Lords Townshend, to whom she brought the Stiffkey estate.

2 Elizabeth, m. to Sir Thomas Knyvet, of Ashwellthorpe, co. Norfolk.

FRANCIS, b. 23 Jan. 1560, brought up to the bar, was appointed queen's counsel, and soon after the accession of JAMES I. honoured with knighthood. In 1613, he was constituted attorney-general, and sworn of the privy council. In 1617, Sir Francis was made LORD KEEPER OF THE GREAT SEAL, and the next year he was entitled LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND. Within a few months afterwards he was elevated to the peerage, 11 July, 1618, in the dignity of Baron Verulam; and he was created 27 Jan. 1627, VISCOUNT ST. ALBANS. His lordship was subsequently convicted, upon his own confession, of corruption in the exercise of his judicial functions, and sentenced to pay a fine of £40,000, to be imprisoned during the king's pleasure, and to be ever afterwards incapacitated from holding office under the crown. Having, in pursuance of this judgment, suffered a brief incarceration, and the fine being eventually remitted, he withdrew into retirement, and devoted the remainder of his life to the most splendid literary labours. He m. Alice, dau. and co-heir of Benedict Barnham, Esq., an alderman of London, but d. 9 April, 1626, without issue, when his honours became EXTINCT. The learned Bayle calls Lord St. Albans one of the greatest geniuses of his age; Voltaire styles him the father of experimental philosophy; and Walpole terms him the prophet of arts, which Newton was sent afterwards to reveal. The latter author adds: "It would be impertinent to the reader to enter into any account of this amazing genius or his works; both will be universally admired as long as science exists. As long as ingratitude and adulation are despicable, so long shall we lament the depravity of this great man's heart! Alas! that he, who could command immortal fame, should have stooped to the little ambition of power."

Lineage.

The ancestors of this family are recorded in Domesday-Book, as holders of Bagot's Bromley, co. Stafford, under Robert de Stafford, founder of the old feudal house of Stafford, which terminated some time in the reign of RICHARD I.
 in an heir female, MILICENT DE STAFFORD, who conveyed the feudal barony to her husband, HERVEY DE BAGOT, (a younger branch of the family of which we are about to treat.) Their son HERVEY assumed the surname of Stafford, and was progenitor of the succeeding Barons and Earls of Stafford, and Dukes of Buckingham. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) Of this Hervey the following account is given in "Memorials of the Bagot Family," compiled in 1823, by the present Lord Bagot:—

"It has long appeared a matter of doubt who the Hervey Bagot was that, in the reign of RICHARD I., m. Millicent de Stafford, sister and sole heir to Robert, the last Baron Stafford. Hervey Bagot is always styled a younger son of the house of Bagot, but whether of Bagot's Bromley, (the head branch of the family,) or of Hyde, (another branch,) has seemed doubtful to many antiquarians. Er-deswick thinks he was of Bagot's Bromley; Mr. Chetwynd endeavours to prove that he was of Hyde; and Sir William Dugdale only styles him 'a gentleman of ancient family in those parts.' After the most attentive and repeated examination of every document bearing upon the subject of this Hervey Bagot's descent, it is evident, almost to demonstration, that he must have been the brother of Simon Bagot, of Bromley; and consequently, like him, in the third generation from the Bagot who held that manor at the time of the Domesday survey."

The pedigree of the family, in the possession of the family, attested by Sir William Dugdale and Gregory King, of the College of Arms, "and supported by a most extraordinary mass of original deeds and other family mun-iments, according to the memorial already quoted, deduces the lineal descent from Bagot, Lord of Bromley, who held the lands from Robert de Stafford, as mentioned in Domesday Book, to

SIR RALPH BAGOT, Knt. who, in the time of Edw. III.,
m. Elizabeth, dan. and heiress of Richard de Blithfield, of a very ancient family seated on a manor of that name, within two miles of his residence at Bagot's Bromley.
 With this heiress, Sir Ralph became possessed of the estates at Blithfield and Littlehay, in Colton, which had been in the lady's family from the Conquest; and he removed, most probably, from his own seat to that of Blithfield, where his descendants continue to reside. From this Sir Ralph the pedigree carries on the line to

HERVEY BAGOT, Esq., (eldest surviving son and heir of Walter Bagot, Esq. of Blithfield and Bagot's Bromley, co.
 Stafford, and Elizabeth, his wife, dan. of Roger Cave, Esq.,)
b. 8 Feb. 1590, and created a Baronet 29 May, 1627, the year after that in which he had served the office of sheriff for the co. Stafford. This gentleman suffered much during the usurpation, for his attachment to the royal cause. He
m. twice, and was s. at his decease, in Dec. 1660, by his viving son,

Lineage.

The family of Baird is of remote antiquity in North Britain. There is a tradition relating to it which states, that WILLIAM THE LION, while hunting in one of the south-west counties, happening to straggle from his attendants, was alarmed by the approach of a wild boar, and calling out for assistance, a gentleman of the name of Baird, who had followed the king, came up, and had the good fortune to slay the object of the monarch's alarm; for this signal service, WILLIAM conferred upon his deliverer large grants of land, and assigned him for his coat of arms, a boar passant, and for his motto, "Dominus fecit;" which arms are to be seen upon an ancient monument of the Bairds of Auchmedden, in the church-yard of Banff.

GEORGE BAIRD, of Auchmedden, co. Aberdeen, chief of the clan, who was living in 1566, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Alexander Keith, of Troup, brother to the Earl Marischal, and was father of

GILBERT BAIRD, of Auchmedden, m. in 1570, Lillias, dau. and heir of Walter Baird, of Ordnhivas, and had a numerous issue, of which the eldest son, GEORGE, of Auchmedden, was ancestor of the BAIRDS of that place, now represented by FRASER OF FINDRACH (see BURKE'S Landed Gentry, Supplement); and the 4th son, James, founded the houses of Newbyth and Saughton Hall. This

JAMES BAIRD was a commissary of the Ecclesiastical Court in the time of CHARLES I. He had two sons,

I. JOHN (Sir), a lord of session, under the title of Lord Newbyth, father of WILLIAM, created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1695, whose son and successor, JOHN (Sir), 2nd bart., d. s. p. in 1746, when the title expired. He had entailed his estates upon his cousin, William Baird.

The second in the above list, but the 5th son,

I. DAVID BAIRD, Esq., having repeatedly distinguished himself in arms, but pre-eminently at Seringapatam, where he headed the storming party, and led them on to victory, was created a Baronet 13 April, 1809, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his eldest brother, Robert Baird, Esq. of Newbyth, co. Haddington. Sir David Baird was commander-in-chief at the capture of the Cape of Good Hope; and his achievements in Egypt procured him the order of the Bath from his own sovereign, and the insignia of the Crescent from the Sultan. At the bombardment of Copenhagen, he was wounded in the shoulder; and in the battle of Corunna lost an arm, soon after the fall of the gallant Sir John Moore. Sir David attained the rank of gen. in the army, and was col. of the 24th foot. He m. 4 Aug. 1810, Miss Preston Campbell, of Fern Tower, and Locklauc, co. - iv. Colin, b. 6 Dec. 1819; m. 29 July, 1845, Lady Frances Howard, dau. of the Earl of Wicklow, and has issue.

His lordship is the acknowledged chief of the ancient house of Lindsay, and had the Earldom of CRAWFORD confirmed to him by the House of Lords in 1848.

Lineage.

Sir William Dugdale mentions several considerable families of Lindsay in England in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, observing that the surname was first assumed by the proprietors of the lands and manor of Lindsay, co. Essex. It is the opinion of Scotch antiquaries, that one of these Lindsays, coming with King MALCOLM CANMORE into Scotland, and settling there, obtained the lands of Wachopdale, and other possessions, from the crown, and founded the family of Lindsay beyond the Tweed. It is certain that the Lindsays began to be of note in Scotland temp. ALEXANDER I. (the son of MALCOLM), who succeeded to the throne in 1107. From this era our limits compel us to pass to the close of the 14th century, when,

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, 7th feudal Lord of Crawford and Gleneak, was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 21 April, 1398, as EARL OF CRAWFORD. "This Sir David Lindsay acted the principal part in the celebrated tournament at London Bridge, in May, 1390. John Lord Welles, ambassador from RICHARD II. to Scotland, at a solemn banquet, where the Scots and English were discoursing of deeds of arms, said, 'Let words have no place; if you know not the chivalry and valiant deeds of Englishmen, appoint me a day and place, where you list, and you shall have experience.' Whereupon, Sir David Lindsay assenting, Lord Welles selected London Bridge as the place for a trial of skill. Lindsay repaired to London with a gallant train of thirty persons; and, on the day appointed, appeared in the lists against Lord Welles. At the sound of trumpet they encountered each other, upon their barbed horses, with square grounden spears. In this adventure, Lindsay sat so strong that, notwithstanding Lord Welles' spear was broken upon his helmet and visage, he stirred not, inasmuch that the spectators cried out that, contrary to the laws of arms, he was bound to his saddle. Whereupon he dismounted, got on his horse again without assistance, and, in the third course, threw Lord Welles out of his saddle to the ground. Then dismounting, he supported his adversary, and, with great humanity, visited him every day, till he recovered the effects of the fall." His lordship m. Catharine Stuart, 5th dau. of ROBERT II., and was s. at his decease, in 1412, by his eldest son, ALEXANDER, 2nd Earl of Crawford, who m. Mariota, dau. and heiress of David Dunbar, of Cockburn, and grand-daughter of George, Earl of March, and had six sons, of whom, ALEXANDER, the 2nd, but eldest surviving, succeeded to the EARLDOM OF CRAWFORD, and the next.

WALTER LINDSAY, styled of Kinblethmont, had charters of the baronies of Arde and Bewfort in 1459, and of the barony of Panbride in 1463. He m. 1st, Sophia, dau. of Livingston, of Saltcoates, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of William, Lord Livingston, and had an only son, his successor,

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, of Edzell and Bewfort, who was s. in 1527, by his grandson,

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, of Edzell and Gleneak, (eldest son of Walter Lindsay, who fell at Flodden, 9 Sept. 1513.) To this gentleman,* David, 7th Earl of Crawford, made an assignment of his title and estates, with the concurrence of the crown; and, upon the decease of that nobleman, in 1542, Sir David became 8th Earl of Crawford. He retained the dignity, however, for life only; and it returned at his death to the grandson of his predecessor. His lordship m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Andrew, 3rd Lord Gray, and relict of Alexander Blair, of Balthyock, and of Thomas, 4th Lord Lovat, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir John Campbell, of Calder, and had,

* Alexander, Master of Crawford, and his brother, John, Lindsay, having seized, fettered, and imprisoned their father, DAVID, 7th Earl of Crawford, were disinherited in consequence by his lordship, who assigned by deed, dated 20 Dec. 1541, with the approbation of the crown, his honours and estates to his cousin, and next male heir after these sons, Sir David Lindsay, of Edzell, (mentioned above;) and the said David inherited at the earl's decease, in 1542, (the Master of Crawford and his brother having previously died, the latter issueless;) but being of a generous disposition, he re-conveyed the titles and estates to David Lindsay, son of the said Master of Crawford, but with the express provision, that falling heirs male of this David's body, the estate and honours of Crawford should descend to the heirs male of Edzell. He likewise reserved to himself the title for life, with sufficient property to maintain his rank. Upon the demise, then, of Ludovic, 14th Earl of Crawford, the honours &c. should certainly have descended to the ancestor of Lord Balcarres.

David (8th), his successor, whose great-great-grandson, and lineal descendant.

JOHN LINDSAY, of Edzell, upon the extinction of the male line of David, 9th Earl of Crawford, by the death of George, Lord Spynie, * in 1672, becoming chief of the Lindsays, and entitled, by the terms upon which his ancestor, David, 8th Earl of Crawford, restored that dignity to David, grandson of the 7th earl, to the EARLDOM OF CRAWFORD, preferred his claim to parliament, but unsuccessfully. (The earldom of Crawford and the estates of that branch of the Lindsays were conferred, by act of parliament, in 1644, after the forfeiture of Ludovic, 14th earl, upon John, 10th Lord Lindsay, of Byers, afterwards Earl of Crawford and Lindsay, lord high treasurer of Scotland.) John Lindsay of Edzell's male line ceased with his grandson, David Lindsay, in 1744, and the representation of the Lindsays then devolved upon the descendant of John Lindsay, David, 8th Lord Crawford's 2nd son, of whom we are about more particularly to treat.

JOHN, of whom presently.

The second son,

JOHN LINDSAY, a very eminent Scottish lawyer, was made one of the senators of the College of Justice in 1584, was sworn of the privy council in 1595, and, in the following year, appointed a commissioner of the Treasury and secretary of state, when he resigned the post of lord of session in favour of his brother, Sir David Lindsay. This eminent person was also one of the eight Magnates Scotiae, constituted governors of the kingdom, who were designated Octavians. He m. On the title of Spynie, the lords of session, in their return to the House of Peers, 1740, observed, that the patent of creation has not been found in the records, nor has any person sat in parliament under that title since 1689, neither has any person claimed a vote in virtue thereof at any election since the Union.

BARNEWALL.

BARNEWALL, SIR REGINALD-AYLMER-JOHN-DE-BARNEVAL, of Crickstown Castle, co. Meath, b. in 1838; s. his father, as 8th baronet, at his birth.

Lineage.

This family, whose surname was anciently written "De Barneval," "Bernevale," and "Barnewall," deduces its lineage from remote antiquity, and claims, among its earliest progenitors, personages of the most eminent renown. It is the parent stock from which the noble houses of Kingsland and Trimlestown branched, and the name of its patriarch is to be found, with the other companions in arms of the Conqueror, in the Roll of Battle Abbey. In Ireland, the Barnewalls come under the denomination of "Strongbowians," having established themselves there in 1172, under the banner of Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke.

SIR MICHAEL DE BERNEVAL, Knt., the first settler, joined the English expedition, with three armed ships, and effected a descent upon Beerhaven, co. Cork, previously to the landing of his chief, Earl Strongbow, in Leinster. Sir Michael is mentioned in the records at the Tower of London as one of the leading captains in the enterprise; and in the reigns of HENRY II. and of RICHARD I. he was lord, by tenure, of Beerhaven and Bantry. From this gallant and successful soldier, we pass to

SIR ULPHAM DE BERNEVAL, Knt., the tenth in descent, first possessor of Crickstown Castle and estate, and the founder of what is to this day termed, the "Crickstown branch" of the family. The great grandson of this Sir Ulpfram,

ULPHAM DE BARNEVAL, (fourth of the same Christian name,) m. a dau. of the Lord Furnival, and left three sons, Christopher (Sir), father of the first Lord Trimlestown. John, ancestor of the Viscounts Kingsland. Barnaby (Sir), an eminent lawyer, who became lord-chief-baron of the Exchequer.

The eldest son,

SIR CHRISTOPHER BARNEWALL, (as the name began then to be spelt,) succeeded to the patrimonial estate of Crickstown; and was, in 1445 and 1446, chief-justice of the court of King's Bench, and lord high-treasurer of Ireland. He m. Matilda, dau. of Sir — Drake, of Drakerath, and had two sons; the younger,

Robert, was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 4 March, 1461, as Baron Trimlestown;

While the elder,

SIR NICHOLAS BARNEWALL, s. his father, and having been brought up to the profession of the law, was appointed, in consideration of his good and faithful services to the house of York, during the war of the Roses, chief-justice of the court of Common Pleas, in Ireland, for life, by patent, dated 1 Aug. 1461. He m. Ismay, dau. of Sir John Serjeant, of Castleknock, near Dublin, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHRISTOPHER BARNEWALL, of Crickstown; who m. Ellen, dau. of Peter, Lord Dunboyne, and from him we pass to his descendant,

I. SIR PATRICK BARNEWALL, Knt. of Crickstown Castle, (twelfth in lineal descent from the first possessor of that estate, and the twenty-first from his Anglo-Norman ancestor, who had settled in Ireland, temp. HENRY II.,) who was created a BARONET OF IRELAND, 22 Feb. 1622. He m. Cecilia le Fleming, dau. of William, Lord of Slane; and had, with other children,

RICHARD, his successor.

John (Sir), a distinguished lawyer, and one of the barons of the Exchequer in 1688. Sir John m. Thomazine, dau. of Anthony, Viscount Tarah, and left an only dau., Mary, m. to Lord Trimlestown.

Michael, ancestor of the present baronet.

Sir Patrick d. 21 June, 1624, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR RICHARD, b. 21 Dec. 1602. This gentleman suffered severely during the Cromwellian usurpation; and of the extensive possessions then wrested from him he obtained restitution, after the re-establishment of the monarchy, of his castle, and 2000 acres of land only adjoining thereto. Sir Richard m. Anne, dau. of Lawrence Dowdall, Esq. of Athlumney, co. Meath, and left, PATRICK, his successor, and John, ancestor to the 8th Baronet. He d. soon after the Restoration, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR PATRICK, M.P. for Meath in 1689 and 1690. This gentleman inherited, in virtue of the act of limitation, the mansion of Crickstown, and the 2000 acres of land appertaining thereto; he enjoyed also a pension from the crown of £150 per annum. Sir Patrick m. Frances, dau. of the Hon. Richard Butler, of Kilkash, co. Tipperary, and grand-dan. of Walter, 11th Earl of Ormonde, and was s. at his decease by his only son,

IV. SIR GEORGE, who d. without issue, 22 Oct. 1735, when his estates passed to his three sisters, as co-heiresses; and thus the male branch of the family was deprived of the castle and manor of Crickstown, of which it had been in possession uninterruptedly for fifteen generations. The baronetcy devolved upon the next male heir,

V. SIR GEORGE, (grandson of John Barnewall, 2nd son of Sir Richard, the 2nd baronet.) This gentleman, upon the demise of his kinsman, returned to Ireland, from Germany, where he had been residing, and, after establishing his right, retired again to the Continent, in 1744, where he d. without issue.

From the period of the decease of Sir George, the baronetcy remained dormant, until revived, Nov. 1821, in favour of the late SIR ROBERT BARNEWALL, by a full recognition of his right by the College of Arms in Ireland.

The immediate line of this gentleman we shall now trace. MICHAEL BARNEWALL, Esq., 4th son of the 1st baronet, left an only son and heir,

BARTHOLOMEW BARNEWALL, Esq. of Ballyhost, co. Westmeath, who m. Jane, dau. of Kidagh Geoghegan, Esq. of Castletown-Geoghegan, in the same co.; and, dying in 1732, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Henry Barron is a magistrate and deputy-lieut. of the county, and has represented the city of Waterford in the last three parliaments.

Lineage.

Of the great Hibernian sept of the Fitzgeralds, one branch were in olden times Barons of Burnchurch, in the county of Kilkenny, a scion of the great house of Desmond; and its members, to distinguish themselves, were in the habit of adding the word "Baron" to their patronymic. These Barons of Burnchurch, for a long period feudal lords of great influence in their immediate locality, were consequently known as Fitzgerald alias Baron, or Baron alias Fitzgerald, as the party himself thought proper to write it. Being royalists, they lost their estates by confiscation, temp. CROMWELL, and some of them entered foreign service. Of this family,

CAPTAIN JAMES BARON, alias FITZGERALD, nephew of the last Baron of Burnchurch, and son of Edward, having served under the Prince de Condé in France, returned to Ireland with Colonel Dempsey and others after the Restoration, and petitioned for a restoration of the barony and lands of Burnchurch, forfeited by his uncle, but his petition, like those of many other of the royalist Irish families, was unsuccessful. He subsequently settled in the co. of Water-

* The original and correct spelling of this name is stated to have been with one r (Baron), which was added to this branch, as already shewn, from the circumstance of their being Barons of Burnchurch, and to distinguish them from the other innumerable branches of the Fitzgeralds.

ford, and there married Slany Ni Brien,* dau. of Donald More O'Brien, the great Donald O'Brien, of Cumberagh, by whom he had issue. Of which were two sons,

* Sir Terence O'Brien, Bart., left a jointure to his kinswoman, this Slany Ni Brien, (dau. of the great Donald O'Brien,) who was m. to Capt. James Baron, nephew to the last Baron of Burnchurch. This jointure was confirmed to her by certificate, amongst the decrees of Innocent, in the reign of CHARLES II. The O'Briens of Cumeragh were a branch of the Thomond family. They possessed the castles of Cumeragh and Abbeyside, co. Waterford. Their possessions in that county were of immense extent. In O'Brien's Irish Dictionary allusion is casually made to them, in explaining the word Cumarraig; the author's words are—"Cumarraig (derived from cumar, a valley) are a people living in a country full of valleys and hills. Thus the O'Briens of Cumeragh, in the county of Waterford, were called Cumarraig, as they inhabited the valleys between Dunganarvan and the river Suir." These extensive possessions were subsequently forfeit under the political and religious confiscations which swept over Ireland. The forfeitures of the O'Briens of Cumeragh included the entire of the parish of Kilrossenta, with all their other possessions from Dunganarvan to the Suir. There was no restoration made to the O'Briens of Cumeragh of any portion of their wild domains, any more than to the Fitzgeralds, Barons of Burnchurch, so that the present Barons of the county of Waterford (descended from both these ancient stocks) are largely sufferers by forfeiture.

Shuteage.

This family, formerly bearing the surname of SHUTE, is of Norman origin, and while the Duchy was an appendage of the crown of England, the ruins of Shute Castle, their Normanic possession, were still to be seen: there were several monuments beside, commemorative of the Shutes, throughout the principality.

JOHN SHUTE, Esq., barrister-at-law, (only surviving son of Benjamin Shute, Esq.,) inherited, by will, although unallied, and but slightly known to the testator, the estate of John Wildman, Esq. of Becket, co. Berks, Mr. Wildman declaring, that the only reason he had for making Mr. Shute his heir was, that he considered him the most worthy of all his acquaintance of adoption, after the manner of the Romans, a mode of settling property which he had always approved. In a few years afterwards, Mr. Shute obtained another property by settlement—that of Francis Barrington, Esq. of Tofts, co. Essex, who had m. his cousin, Elizabeth, dau. of Samuel Shute, sheriff of London, and d. without issue. In pursuance of this settlement, Mr. Shute assumed, by act of parliament, the surname and arms of "Barrington." He was returned twice to parliament for Berwick-upon-Tweed; but, on the last return, in 1723, the Commons taking into consideration the Harborough lottery, came to a resolution that the honourable member had promoted and carried on that fraudulent undertaking, and therefore expelled him the House, 15 Feb. 1723. He had previously been elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 1 July, 1720, by the titles of Baron Barrington, of Newcastle, co. Dublin, and Viscount BARRINGTON, of Ard-glass, co. Down. His lordship m. Anne, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Daines, by whom he had issue, BASSET.

BASSET, BARONESS, (Frances Basset,) of Stratton, Cornwall; b. 1 May, 1781; inherited the peerage at the decease of her father, Francis, Lord de Dunstanville and Basset, 5 Feb. 1835.

Lineage.

Immediately after the Norman conquest, arose into power and importance, especially in the midland counties, the great baronial family of Basset, which gave a chief justice to England, in the reign of HENRY I., in the person of Ralph Basset, from whom sprang the Lords Basset of Drayton, the Lords Basset of Haddington, &c. (See BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.) About the middle of the 12th century, the Bassetts of Cornwall obtained the estate of Tehidy, by marriage with the heiress of the great house of De Dunstanville; from that period they appear to have enjoyed considerable wealth and influence until the civil wars, when we find three brothers of the Bassetts all eminently distinguished in the royal cause, namely,

- Sir Francis Basset, sheriff of Cornwall.
 Sir Thomas Basset, } major-generals in the royal army.
 Sir Arthur Basset, }

Sir Francis Basset, the sheriff, was with the king at Les wathel, when Essex's army surrendered; and his majesty, Sir Francis relates, in a letter to his wife, then said to him, "I now leave, Mr. Sheriff, the county of Cornwall to your protection." Owing, however, to the large sums of money disbursed in this unhappy struggle, the family estate became considerably reduced; but it was at length retrieved by the marriages of the great-grandfather and grandfather of the present peeress with heiresses. The former m. Miss Hele, and the latter, Miss Pendarves; of this last union,

JOHN-PENDARVES BASSET, Esq., was the son and heir. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. of Sir Edmund Prideaux, Bart. of Netherton; and dying in 1739, was s. by his post-humous son,

JOHN-PRIDEAUX BASSET, Esq., at whose decease, in minority, 28 May, 1756, the estates reverted to his uncle,

FRANCIS BASSET, Esq. of Turley, in Northamptonshire, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John St. Aubyn, Bart. of Clowance, co. Cornwall; and dying in Nov. 1769, left issue,

FRANCIS, his heir.
 John, in holy orders, rector of Illogan and Camborne, b. in 1760; m. 4 Oct. 1790, Mary, dau. of George Wingfield, Esq.; and d. 20 May, 1816, leaving a son,
 John, of Lincoln's Inn, barrister-at-law, b. in 1791.

Lineage.

This family deduces, illegitimately, from a branch of the house of Plantagenet, being thus lineally descended from JOHN OF GAUNT, Duke of Lancaster, (son of EDWARD III.,) who caused all his natural children, (afterwards legitimized to all intents but that of succession to the crown,*) by Catherine Swinford, dau. of Sir Payn Roet, alias Guyn, king of arms, and widow of Sir Otes Swinford, Knt., (to whom he was eventually married,) to be called Beaufort, from the castle of that name, in the co. Anjou, the place of their nativity; which castle came, in the year 1276, to the house of Lancaster, by the marriage of Blanche, dau. of Robert, the 1st Count of Artois, and widow of HENRY I., King of Navarre, with Edmund, surnamed Crouchback, Earl of Lancaster, second son of HENRY III. of England. Of the three sons of John of Gaunt, born before marriage, of Catherine Swinford,

HENRY, the 2nd son, was consecrated Bishop of Winchester in 1405. He was the celebrated CARDINAL BEAUFORT, LORD CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND.

Thomas, the youngest son, was created Earl of Dorset and Duke of Exeter, but left no issue at his decease, in 1427.

The eldest son,

SIR JOHN BEAUFORT, was created Earl of Somerset in 1396, and in two years afterwards, Marquess of Dorset, which dignity he subsequently resigned, and was created Marquess of Somerset; but when constituted lord chamberlain, on the accession of HENRY IV., he is styled EARL OF SOMERSET only. He was a K.G., and captain of Calais. From this nobleman we pass to his descendant,

HENRY, Duke of Somerset, K.G., who fell into the hands of the Yorkists at the battle of Hexham, and was beheaded, 2 April, 1468, leaving an illegitimate son, by Joan Hill, CHARLES SOMERSET, of whom presently.

He was s. in his honours by his brother,

* It has recently been discovered, that in the original patent of legitimacy to the Beauforts (which being ratified by parliament, parliament alone could alter) the exclusion from the inheritance of the crown does not occur; the words "excepta dignitate regali" were inserted by HENRY IV., in his confirmation ten years afterwards.

EDMUND, Duke of Somerset, who shared a similar fate, 7 May, 1471; and dying issueless, as did his younger brother, John, the male line of JOHN OF GAUNT terminated, as well the descendants of Catherine Swinford, as of his first wife, Blanche, mother of HENRY IV.

CHARLES SOMMERS, mentioned above as the illegitimate son of Henry Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, being a person of extraordinary endowments, fulfilled several of the most important diplomatic missions; and was subsequently created a knight banneret, made a knight of the Garter, and appointed captain of the guards, A.D. 1496. Sir Charles obtained in marriage, Elizabeth, only dau. and heiress of William Herbert, Earl of Huntingdon, Lord Herbert of Ragland, Chepstow, and Gower; in whose right he assumed the title of Lord Herbert, and was summoned to parliament as such, in the first year of HENRY VIII. His lordship was constituted lord chamberlain for life, as a reward for the distinguished part he had in the taking of Therouenne and Tournay, and was created Earl of Worcester, 2 Feb. 1513-14. The earl had two wives, beside the heiress of Huntingdon; namely, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas West, Lord de la Warr, by whom he had several children; and Eleanor, dau. of Sir Edward Sutton, Lord Dudley. His lordship d. 15 April, 1536, and was s. by the only son of his first marriage.

HENRY, 2nd earl of Worcester, who had received the honour of knighthood, during the French campaign, from Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Anthony Browne, standard-bearer to HENRY VII.; and dying 26 Nov. 1549, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 3rd earl, K.G. This nobleman was sent into France, in 1573, with a font of pure gold, for the baptismal ceremony of a dau. of CHARLES IX. of that kingdom, at which he was to stand, in the Queen of England's stead, as one of the sponsors. His lordship m. Christian, dau. of Edward North, Lord North of Cathlodge; and dying 21 Feb. 1589, was s. by his only son,

EDWARD, 4th earl, K.G. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Francis, Earl of Huntingdon, and had several children, of whom, Thomas, the third son, was made knight of the Bath, 1604-5, and created, 8 Dec. 1636, Viscount Somerset of Cashel, co. Tipperary. The earl d. 3 March, 1627-8, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

HENRY, 5th earl, who had been summoned, in the lifetime of his father, to the first parliament of JAMES I., and maintained his castle of Ragland, with a garrison of 800 men, without levying any contributions upon the country, from 1643 to 1646, and only surrendered it, eventually, to Sir Thomas Fairfax, on most honourable conditions. This castle was amongst the last places in England from whose battlements the royal banner bade defiance to treason; but, after its capitulation, it was demolished, and the timber in the surrounding parks cut down and sold by the committee of sequestration, occasioning a loss to the noble proprietor, moderately estimated at £100,000. The earl was advanced to the dignity of MARQUESS OF WORCESTER, 2 Nov. 1642. He m. Anne, only child of John, Lord Russell; and dying in 1646, was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD, 3rd marquess. This nobleman, like his father, attaching himself zealously to the royal cause, was appointed by CHARLES I. lord-lieut. of North Wales, and addressed by his majesty as Earl of Glamorgan, until he succeeded to his heritable honours. King CHARLES is charged with deputing this lord ("whose religion," says Lord Clarendon, "was of that sort of catholics the people rendered then odious, by accusing to be most Jesuited") to negotiate with the Irish rebel catholics, and to bring over a great body of them for the king's service. The parliament complained; the king disavowed the earl; but this mysterious affair has been treated at great length by Doctor Birch, and the doctor strenuously asserts that the king was privy to the negotiation. The Marquess of Worcester left behind him a literary work, entitled, "A century of the names and scantlings of such inventions as at present I can call to mind to have tried and perfected, which (my former notes being lost) I have, at the instance of a powerful friend, endeavoured now, in the year 1655, to set these down in such a way, as may sufficiently instruct me to put any of them to practice." First printed in 1663. In this work, the power and application of the steam-engine is distinctly described. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Dormer, Knt., and had HENRY, Lord Herbert, and two daus., Anne, m. to Henry Howard, son of the Earl of Arundel, and Elizabeth, Marchioness of Powis. He espoused, 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Henry O'Brien, Earl of Thomond, but by that lady had no surviving issue. He d. 3 April, 1667, and was s. by his son,

HENRY, 3rd marquess, who was created DUKES OF BRAUFORT, 9 Dec. 1692. His grace, refusing to subscribe to the oaths of allegiance to WILLIAM III., lived in retirement, after the accession of that monarch. He m. Mary, dau. of Arthur, Lord Capel, and widow of Henry, Lord Beauchamp, by whom he had five sons and four daus.; of the former, the eldest,

He espoused 2ndly, 1707, Rachel, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Baptist Noel, Earl of Gainsborough, by whom he had two sons, HENRY and CHARLES-NOEL. The duke m. 3rdly, Mary, youngest dau. of Peregrine Osborne, Duke of Leeds; which lady died without issue. His grace d. 24 May, 1714, and was s. by his elder son, HENRY, 3rd duke, who m. 28 June, 1739, Frances, only child and heir of Sir James Scudamore, of Home Lacy, co. Hereford, Viscount Scudamore, in the peerage of Ireland; from whom he was divorced in 1743-4. (The lady wedded subsequently, Charles Fitzroy, natural son of the 1st Duke of Grafton, by whom she left one dau., Frances, heiress to the Scudamore estates, who m. Charles, Duke of Norfolk.) Lineage.

The surname of this very ancient family is derived from the city of BEAUMONT, in France, which formerly gave title to a succession of viscounts, whose heiress, AGNES DE BRAUMONT, conveyed the seignury to her husband, LOUIS, 2nd son of JOHN, King of Jerusalem and Sicily, and nephew of LOUIS IX. of France. The 4th son of this lady,

HENRY DE BEAUMONT, came into England, according to general supposition, at the instance of ELEANOR, wife of EDWARD I., and obtained high and confidential employment from the crown, with extensive territorial grants. This eminent person, who was brother of Isabel, wife of John, Lord Vesel of Alnewicke, is styled in our records, "consanguinius regis;" and, amongst his other offices, he was made King of the Isle of Man for life, by the same tenure that its lords usually held it under the Kings of Scotland. He was likewise summoned to parliament as a baron, 4 March, 1309, and sworn of the privy council. His lordship m. Alice, dau. and at length heir of Alexander Comin, Earl of Bogan, in whose right he became constable of Scotland, and obtained the manor of Whitwicke, in Leicestershire, where he was licensed to convert the manor house into a castle. JOHN DE BEAUMONT, 2nd baron, summoned to parliament, 25 Feb. 1342. His lordship m. the Lady Alianore Plantagenet, dau. of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, and great-granddau. of HENRY III., by whom he had an only child, HENRY, born in Brabant, during her ladyship's attendance upon Philippa, queen-consort of EDWARD III.; in consideration of which circumstance, Lord Beaumont procured the king's special letters patent, declaring "that notwithstanding the said HENRY was begotten and born in foreign parts, nevertheless, in regard it was by reason of his and his lady's attendance on the queen, he should be reputed a lawful heir, and inherit his lands in England, as if he had been born there." Lord Beaumont d. in 1343, and was s. by the said

HENRY DE BEAUMONT, 3rd lord, who m. the Lady Margaret de Vere, dau. of John, Earl of Oxford; and dying in 1368, was s. by his only child,

Mr. Beaumont was s. by his eldest son,

BEDFORD, DUKE AND EARL OF, (Francis Russell,) Marquess of Tavistock, Baron Russell, of Cheneys, co. Buckingham, Baron Russell, of Thornhaugh, co. Northampton, and Baron Howland, of Streatham, co. Surrey, K.G., b. 13 May, 1788; m. 8 Aug. 1808, Anna-Maria, dau. of Charles, 3rd Earl of Harrington, and has an only son, WILLIAM, Marquess of Tavistock, b. 30 June, 1869.

His grace, who had been summoned to parliament by writ in the Barony of Howland of Streatham, 15 Jan. 1833, s. his father as 7th duke, 20 Oct. 1839.

Lineage.

The first earl of the county of Bedford was HUGH, son of ROBERT DE BELLOMONT, who obtained that highest rank at the period from King STEPHEN, with the daughter in marriage of Milo de Beauchamp; "but being a person remiss and negligent himself, he fell from the dignity of an earl to the state of a knight, and in the end to miserable poverty." The next earl of the county was INGELRAM DE COURCY, who was so highly esteemed by King EDWARD III. that that monarch bestowed upon him his daughter, Isabella, in marriage, and created him EARL of BEDFORD, making the earl at the same time a knight of the Garter. This nobleman died, leaving daughters only, in 1397, and the earldom became extinct. The third person elevated to the highest rank—the seat of whose dignity was the county of Bedford—was JOHN PLANTAGENET, "John of Lancaster," DUKE of BEDFORD, the celebrated REGENT of FRANCE, temp. HENRY VI., eminent as a statesman and a soldier. He died childless in 1435, and the dukedom expired. In 1469, King EDWARD IV. created GEORGE NEVILL, eldest son of the Marquess of Montagu, DUKE of BEDFORD, with the design of marrying him to his eldest daughter, the Lady Elizabeth Plantagenet; but the marquess falling and forfeiting, at the battle of Barnet, in 1471, his son, the duke, losing thus his inheritance, and having no other means of sustaining the ducal rank, was deprived of all his honours and dignities by parliament in 1477. Eight years afterwards, JAMES TUDOR, Earl of Pembroke, son of Sir Owen Tudor, by Katherine, QUEEN DOWAGER of HENRY V., was created, on the accession of his nephew, HENRY VII., DUKE of BEDFORD; but he, like his predecessors, died without issue to inherit, and the dukedom again EXPIRED. The county of Bedford from that period remained for nearly a century and a half without conferring its name upon nobility; at length, however, it gave title to the house of Russell.

SIR RALPH RUSSELL, Knt.,* son and heir of John Russell, constable of Corfe Castle anno 1291; m. Isabel, one of the daus. and co-heirs of James Newmarsh, feuda. Baron of Newmarsh and Derham, co. Dorset, and left, with other issue,

SIR WILLIAM RUSSELL, of Kingston-Russell, Dorsetshire, M.P., in the 1st of EDWARD II., for the co. of Southampton; who m. 1st, Eleanor, only dau. and heiress of Thomas de Aula, Lord of Yaverland; and 2ndly, Jane, dau. and co-heir of Robert FEVEREL. He d. in 1311, and was s. by his son, (by his 2nd wife,)

SIR THEOBALD RUSSELL, who m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. of Ralph de Gorges, Baron Gorges, and heir of her brother, Ralph Gorges, by whom he had a son, RALPH, who assumed his maternal surname and arms of GORGES, (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) Sir Theobald m. 2ndly, Eleanor, dau. of John de la Tour, of Berwick, co. Dorset, by whom he was father of

WILLIAM RUSSELL, whose great-grandson, JOHN RUSSELL, of Kingston-Russell, m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heiress of John Hering, and was father of

SIR JOHN RUSSELL, Knt., speaker of the House of Commons in the 2nd and 10th of HENRY VI. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of John Froxmere, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES RUSSELL, who m. Alice, dau. and heiress of John Wyse, Esq., and dying in the 1st year of HENRY VIII., left two sons, the elder of whom,

JOHN RUSSELL, said to be one of the most accomplished gentlemen of his time, resided at Berwick, about four miles from Bridport, co. Dorset, and obtained a favourable introduction to court through one of those unexpected incidents which may be attributed solely to good fortune. In the 21st of HENRY VII. (1506), the Archduke PHILIP of AUSTRIA, only son of the Emperor MAXIMILIAN I., and husband of Johanna, dau. of FERDINAND and ISABEL, King and Queen of Castile and Aragon, having encountered a violent hurricane in his passage from Flanders to

Spain, was driven into Weymouth, where he landed, and was hospitably received by Sir Thomas Trenchard, Knt., a gentleman of rank in the neighbourhood. Sir Thomas immediately apprized the court of the circumstance, and in the interim, while waiting for instructions what course to adopt, invited his first cousin,* Mr. Russell, then recently returned from his travels, to wait upon the prince. His imperial highness, fascinated by Mr. Russell's companionable qualities, desired that he should accompany him to Windsor, whither the king had invited his highness to repair; on the journey we are informed that the archduke became still more pleased with his attendant's "learned discourse and generous deportment," and recommended him strongly to the king. Mr. Russell was, in consequence, taken immediately into royal favour, and appointed one of the gentlemen of the privy chamber. Becoming subsequently a favourite of HENRY VIII., and a companion of that monarch in his French wars, Mr. Russell was appointed to several high and confidential offices, and finally elevated to the peerage, 9 March, 1538-9, in the dignity of Lord Russell, Baron Russell, of Cheyneys, co. Buckingham. In the next year, 1540, when the great monasteries were dissolved, his lordship obtained a grant to himself, and his wife, and their heirs, of the site of the Abbey of Tavistock, and of extensive possessions belonging thereto. After the accession of EDWARD VI., Lord Russell had a grant of the monastery of Woburn, and was created EARL OF BEDFORD, 9 Jan. 1550. In MARY's time, the same courtly sunshine continuing, his lordship obtained a new patent, dated 3 Nov. 1553, for the office of lord privy seal, and was appointed ambassador to Spain, to conduct her majesty's royal consort, PHILIP II., into England. The earl m. Anne, dau. and heiress of Guy Sapcote, Esq., and widow of Sir John Broughton, Knt.; and dying 15 March, 1554-5, (amongst his other honours, we must not omit his being a knight of the Garter,) was s. by his only son,

FRANCIS, 2nd earl, K.G.; b. in 1528. This nobleman, in the 1st of ELIZABETH, was sworn of the privy council, and was subsequently a person of great eminence during her majesty's reign. His lordship m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Sir John St. John, and sister of Oliver, Lord St. John of Blieshoe, and had,

I EDWARD, Lord Russell, who predeceased his father, without issue.

II. JOHN, summoned to parliament, after the decease of his brother, as LORD RUSSELL. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Anthony Cooke, of Gidea Hall, co. Essex, and widow of Sir Thomas Hobby, of Besham, co. Berks, by whom he left two daus., ELIZABETH, who d. unm.; and Anne, the wife of Henry, Lord Herbert.

III. FRANCIS, (Sir,) summoned to parliament as LORD RUSSELL; m. Julian, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Foster, Knt., by whom he had an only son, EDWARD, who s. as 3rd EARL OF BEDFORD.

IV. WILLIAM, (Sir,) distinguished by his eminent services in Ireland, temp. ELIZABETH. In 1580, Mr. Russell first commanded 150 horse there, which the clergy of England had raised, for the reduction of the queen's rebellious subjects; and, for his gallantry, received the honour of knighthood. Soon after this, we find him in the Low Countries, under Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester. In 1594, Sir William was constituted Lord Deputy of Ireland, and for the next two years he was engaged against the rebel O'Maden. On the accession of JAMES I., he was elevated to the peerage, 21 July, 1603, as BARON RUSSELL of Thornhaugh, co. Northampton. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Long, Esq. of Shengay, co. Cambridge, and left at his decease, 9 Aug. 1613, a son, FRANCIS, 2nd Lord Russell of Thornhaugh, who inherited as 4th EARL OF BEDFORD.

- I. Anne, m. to Ambrose Dudley, Earl of Warwick.
- II. Elizabeth, m. to William Bouchier, Earl of Bath.
- III. Margaret, m. to George Clifford, Earl of Cumberland.

Francis, 2nd Earl of Bedford, m. 2ndly, Bridget, dau. of John, Lord Hussey, and widow of Sir Richard Morison, Knt., but by that lady had no issue. His lordship d. at Bedford House, in the Strand, 23 June, 1585, and was s. by his grandson,

EDWARD, 3rd earl, who m. Lucy, dau. of John, Lord Harrington, and sister and heir of John, 2nd Lord Harrington; but dying without issue, 3 May, 1627, was s. by his cousin, (refer to William, 4th son of the 2nd earl.)

FRANCIS, 2nd Lord Russell of Thornhaugh, as 4th EARL OF BEDFORD. His lordship m. Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Giles Bridges, 3rd Lord Chandos, by whom he had, with four daus., four sons, viz.,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Francis, d. s. p.

John, col. in the civil wars, on the side of the king, and after the Restoration, col. of the 1st regiment of foot-guards, d. unm.

EDWARD, m. Penelope, dau. of Sir Moses Hill, of Hillsborough, in Ireland, and widow of Sir William Brook, K.B., and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, standard-bearer to CHARLES II., who d. unm., and was s. by his brother,

EDWARD RUSSELL, "who," says Burnet, "had been bred at sea, and was bed-chamberman to the king (JAMES II.) when Duke of York; but upon Lord Russell's death, retired from court. He was a man of much honour, and great courage. He had good principles, and was firm to them." Strenuously supporting the Revolution, he obtained high naval commands from the new king, and distinguished himself as one of the most eminent naval heroes of the period, particularly by his victory over the French fleet at La Hogue, in 1692. He was rewarded with a peerage, 7 May, 1697, as Baron Shingay, Viscount Barfeur, and Earl of Orford. His lordship m. Lady Margaret Russell, youngest dau. of his father's brother, William, 1st Duke of Bedford, but d. in 1727, s. p., when the peerage became extinct.

His lordship (Francis, Earl of Bedford) d. of the small-pox, 9 May, 1641, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 5th earl, who, at the Restoration of King CHARLES II., carried St. Edward's sceptre; was elected a knight of the Garter, 1672; and created, 11 May, 1694, Marquess of Tavistock, and DUKES OF BEDFORD. His grace m. Anne, dau. and sole heiress of Robert Carr, Earl of Somerset, by his too celebrated countess, Frances Howard, the divorced wife of Essex. "Francis, Earl of Bedford," says Pennant, "was so averse to the alliance, that he gave his son leave to choose a wife out of any family but that. Opposition usually stimulates desire: the young couple's affections were only increased. At length, the king interposed, and sending the Duke of Lennox to urge the earl to consent, the match was brought about. Somerset, now reduced to poverty, acted a generous part, selling his house at Chiswick, plate, jewels, and furniture, to raise a fortune for his daughter of £12,000, which the Earl of Bedford demanded, saying, that since her affections were settled, he chose rather to undo himself than make her unhappy." The lady proved worthy of the alliance. It is said that she was ignorant of her mother's dishonour, till informed of it by a pamphlet, which she accidentally found; and it is added, that her grace was so struck with this detection of her parent's guilt, that she fell down in a fit, and was found senseless with the book open before her. The duke had issue by this admirable woman, seven sons and three daus., of whom the eldest surviving son was the celebrated

WILLIAM, Lord Russell. This distinguished patriot was first returned to parliament for the co. Bedford, in 1678-9. His lordship, who took an active part against the court, appeared publicly in the King's Bench, at Westminster Hall, 16 June, 1690, and presented the Duke of York as a recusant; he subsequently carried up the bill of exclusion of his royal highness, at the head of more than 200 members of the Commons, to the House of Lords. Thus incurring the hostility of the government, he soon fell a victim to his uncom promising patriotism. Charged as a participator in the Rye-House conspiracy, his lordship was arraigned at the Old Bailey, 13 June, 1683, and convicted. He was executed, by decapitation, at Lincoln's-Inn Fields, 21 July following. Between his condemnation and death, Lord Cavendish offered to change clothes with him in the prison, and thus enable him to effect his escape; but Lord Russell had too much magnanimity to expose his friend to so much danger. The attainder of his lordship was annulled after the Revolution. He m. Lady Rachael Wrothesley, 2nd dau. and eventual heir of Thomas, Earl of Southampton, lord high treasurer, and widow of Francis, Lord Vaughan, by whom he left,

- 1 WROTHESLEY, who s. as 2nd Duke of Bedford
- 2 Rachael, m. to William, Duke of Devonshire.
- 3 Catherine, m. to John, Marquess of Granby.

* The nephew of his mother, Alice Russell.

His grace dying 7 Sept. 1700, was s. by his grandson, WALTONESLEY, 2nd duke, K.G. This nobleman m. in 1695, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of John Howland, Esq. of Streatham, by whom he acquired a very considerable fortune, and in consequence of his marriage, was created, 13 June, 1695, Baron Howland, of Streatham, co. Surrey. His grace had issue two surviving sons (his two immediate successors) and two daus.: 1. Rachel, m. 1st, to Scroop, 1st Duke of Bridgewater, and 2ndly, to Sir Richard Lytton, K.B.; and Elizabeth, m. to William, 3rd Earl of Essex. JOHN, 4th duke and 8th earl, K.G. This nobleman was appointed, in 1756, lord-lieut. of Ireland; and accredited, in 1762, minister plenipotentiary to the court of France, in which character he signed, at Fontainebleau, the preliminaries of peace with France and Spain. His grace m. 11 Oct. 1731, Diana, youngest dau. of Charles, Earl of Sunderland, and granddau., maternally, of John, Duke of Marlborough, by whom (who d. 27 Sept. 1735) he had one son, who d. in infancy. FRANCIS, 5th duke, b. 23 July, 1765. This popular nobleman d. at Woburn Abbey, deeply lamented, 2 March, 1802. Rejecting the wild theories which, in his day, endangered the sacred cause of freedom, the Duke of Bedford stood forward the hereditary champion of the constitution, prepared with equal fearlessness to repel the assaults of anarchy or of despotism. In private life, his grace's deportment was so mild, benevolent, and courteous, that his friends, amongst the most devoted of whom was CHARLES-JAMES FOX, adhered to him with more than ordinary feelings of attachment—their affection amounted to enthusiasm. His grace d. msm. in March, 1802, and the honours and representation of the house of RUSSELL passed to his brother,

Lineage.

The BEDINGFELDS deduce from the conquest, through an uninterrupted line of distinguished ancestors; and they rank amongst the first names in England, still adhering to the Roman-catholic faith. The founder of the family, according to the pedigree in the history of Norfolk, was,

OCENUS DE PUCCS, a Norman knight, and fellow-soldier of Duke William, who obtained, after the conquest, the manor of Bedingfeld, co. Norfolk, from which he assumed his surname.

SIR EDMUND BEDINGFELD, Knt., m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Tuddenham, Knt., and sister and co-heiress of Robert de Tuddenham, by whom, with other extensive

To soften, however, the asperity of this unmerited refusal, the dignity of Baronet was conferred upon him, 2 Jan. 1660-1. BELHAVEN.

BELHAVEN AND STENTON, BARON, (Robert-Montgomery Hamilton,) in the peerage of Scotland, and Baron Hamilton of Wishaw, in that of the United Kingdom; b. in 1793; s. to the Scottish dignity, as 8th baron, at the decease of his father, 29 Oct. 1814; and acquired the peerage of the United Kingdom, by letters patent, dated 10 Sept. 1831. His lordship m. in Dec. 1815, Hamilton, dau. of Walter Campbell, of Shawfield, Esq.

Lineage.

JOHN HAMILTON, of Broomhill, natural brother of James, 1st Earl of Arran, had a letter of legitimation under the great seal of Scotland, 20 Jan. 1613; and dying about 1550, was s. by his elder son,

JOHN HAMILTON, of Broomhill, whose grandson,

Sir JOHN HAMILTON, of Broomhill, afterwards of Bell, was created 15 Dec. 1647, for his loyalty to CHARLES I., BARON BELHAVEN AND STENTON, co. Haddington. His lordship, having no male heirs, surrendered his barony to the crown, and obtained a new patent, 10 Feb. 1675, in favour, after his own decease, of the husband of one of his granddaus., John Hamilton, and the heirs male of that gentleman. Lord Belhaven m. Margaret, natural dau. of James, Marquess of Hamilton, and had issue,

I. Margaret, m. to Sir Samuel Ballie, of Lamington.

II. ANNE, m. to Sir Robert Hamilton, Bart. of Silvertown Hill, and had, with two sons and three other daus.,

MARGARET, m. to Sir John Hamilton, of whom presently, as LORD BELHAVEN AND STENTON.

III. Elizabeth, m. to Alexander, 1st Viscount Kingston.

Lord Belhaven and Stenton d. in 1670, when the barony devolved, according to the limitation, upon the eldest son of Sir Robert Hamilton, of Pressmenan, one of the senators of the College of Justice, (who was husband, as stated above, of the deceased lord's granddau., Margaret.)

Sir JOHN HAMILTON, of Bell, as 2nd baron. This nobleman was a lord of the Treasury in 1704, and was a zealous and eloquent opponent of the Union, 1706. He had two sons, JOHN, his successor; and James, a member of the faculty of advocates, and solicitor of the boards of Customs and Excise in Scotland, d. s. p. 28 June, 1739. His lordship was committed to the Tower of London, as an ally of the Chevalier St. George, in 1708, and d. of an inflammation of the brain, almost immediately after his release, 21 June, in that year. He was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 3rd baron, one of the representative peers, who, having been appointed governor of Barbadoes, in 1731, was drowned in his passage to that island. He m. Anne, dau. of Andrew Bruce, merchant in Edinburgh, and had issue, I. JOHN, his successor; II. Andrew, an officer in the army; d. u.s.m.; III. JAMES, who s. as 5th lord; IV. Robert, a major in the army; d. u.s.m.; and I. Margaret, m. to Sir Alexander Baird. His lordship was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 4th baron, who d. u.s.m. in 1764, and was s. by his brother, JAMES, 5th baron, who also d. u.s.m., 25 Jan. 1777, and the peerage remained some years subsequently dormant.

By virtue of an entail of the 2nd Lord Belhaven, in 1701, confirmed by the last, in 1706, the husbands of the heirs female being excluded from inheriting the property, and the whole male descendants of the 2nd lord's father, Lord Pressmenan, having entirely failed, the family estates, of great value, devolved upon Mrs. Mary-Hamilton Nisbet, of Pencaltland, and she was accordingly served heir to James, 5th Lord Belhaven, 3 Dec. 1783. The whole male descendants of James Hamilton, of Barncleuth, from which the 2nd lord sprang, having likewise failed, the barony of Belhaven and Stenton devolved on ROBERT HAMILTON, of Wishaw, he being the male heir whatever, that is, the nearest male heir existing in the collateral line of John, 2nd Lord Belhaven, according to the usual course of descent established by the law of Scotland. By this course of descent, it is settled, that in the case of three brothers, should the middle brother fail, the younger, and not the elder, is entitled to succeed as heir male. The founder of the family, John Hamilton, of Udson, had three sons, viz.,

JOHN HAMILTON, of Coltness.

JAMES HAMILTON, of Barncleuth, whose descendant inherited, as 2nd Lord Belhaven.

WILLIAM HAMILTON, of Wishaw.*

The title of Lord Belhaven was assumed by William Hamilton, capt. of the 44th regt. of foot, lineal descendant and heir male of John Hamilton, of Coltness, the elder of the three brothers; and he voted at the general election,

* Hamilton of Wishaw.

WILLIAM HAMILTON, of Wishaw, 3rd son of John Hamilton, of Udson, m. in 1621, Beatrix, dau. of James Douglas, of Morton, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM HAMILTON, of Wishaw, m. 1st, Anne, dau. of John Hamilton, of Udson, and had, with other children,

ROBERT, who m. Jean, eldest dau. and heiress of William Hamilton, of Brownmuir, in Ayrshire; and dying before his father, left,

WILLIAM, who inherited Wishaw.

Mr. Hamilton m. 2ndly, in 1676, Mary, eldest dau. of the Hon. Sir Charles Erskine, Bart., and granddau. of John, 7th Earl of Marr, by whom he had five sons and six daus. The third son,

WILLIAM, of the English bar, m. Helen, dau. of David Hay, of Woodcockdale, co. Linlithgow, and had an only son,

THE RIGHT HON. WILLIAM-GERARD HAMILTON, secretary of state for Ireland, and afterwards chancellor of the Exchequer in that kingdom. This gentleman, so well known as "SINGLE-SPEECH HAMILTON," is one of the reputed authors of Junius. He d. u.s.m. in 1796.

William Hamilton, of Wishaw, d. in 1724, and was s. by his grandson,

WILLIAM HAMILTON, of Wishaw, m. Bertha, dau. of his uncle, Charles Hamilton, of Wetherley; and being killed by a fall from his horse, 16 April, 1786, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

ROBERT HAMILTON, of Wishaw, who, upon the demise of James, 5th Lord Belhaven and Stenton, in 1777, should have succeeded as 6th lord; but he never assumed the honour. He m. in 1764, Susan, 2nd dau. of Sir Michael Balfour, Bart. of Denmiln, in Fife; and dying 27 March, 1784, left issue,

WILLIAM, who had his claim confirmed, as 7th LORD BELHAVEN.

Robert, an officer of rank in the army.

Peter-Douglas.

Jean, m. to George Ramsay, Esq. of Barnton, and d. in 1841.

Bethia, m. to William Ramsay, Esq., and d. in 1809.

In 1796, as Lord Belhaven. An objection was taken, however, to his right; and evidence was given that there were male descendants of the body of William Hamilton, of Wishaw, the youngest of the three brothers; consequently, the character of heir male whatever of John, 2nd Lord Belhaven, the patentee of 1765, could not belong to the gentleman who had assumed the dignity. This argument was supported by the attorney-general attending on behalf of the crown; and the Lords' committee of privileges unanimously decided, 5 Jan. 1793, that the votes given at the election, by the assumed Lord Belhaven, were not good, and that resolution was confirmed by the House of Peers. Soon after the settlement of this point, William Hamilton, of Wishaw, eldest son and heir of Robert Hamilton, presented to the king a petition, claiming the dignity and title of Lord Belhaven and Stenton; and this petition being, as usual, referred to the House of Peers, the claim was determined in his favour, 25 April, 1799, and he became WILLIAM, 7th Baron of Belhaven and Stenton, (his father, Robert Hamilton, being counted the 6th lord, (although he had never assumed the dignity.) His lordship, who was b. 13 Jan. 1765, m. 3 March, 1789, Penelope, youngest dau. of Ronald Macdonald, of Clanronald, and by her (who d. in 1816) had issue, BERKELEY.

BERKELEY, EARL OF, (Berkeley,) Viscount Dursley, and Baron Berkeley, of Berkeley Castle, co. Gloucester, one of the heirs to the baronies of Mowbray, Segrave, and Braose of Gower.

Lineage.

ROBERT FITZHARDINGE (whose father was one of the companions of WILLIAM the Conqueror) obtained for his fidelity to the EMRESS MAUD, and her son, HENRY II., the lordship of Berkeley and Berkeley-Hernesse, of which Roger de Berkeley,* owner of Dursley, was then divested, for taking part with STEPHEN. This Robert Fitzhardinge entertained at Bristol, in 1168, Dermot Mac Murrough, King of Leinster, with sixty of his retinue, at the time the Irish prince came into England to solicit succours from HENRY II. He d. in 1170-71, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

MAURICE DE BERKELEY, who m. Alice, dau. of Roger de Berkeley, the former and ousted possessor of Berkeley and Dursley, and had six sons. He d. in 1190, and was s. by the eldest,

ROBERT DE BERKELEY, who espoused the baronial cause, and thus incurred the displeasure of JOHN, but was restored to royal favour; falling again from his allegiance, the castle and lands of Berkeley were seized by the crown, and their profits assigned for the maintenance of the castle of Bristol. He was subsequently, however, put into possession of all his lands except Berkeley Castle; and dying 13 May, 1219, without issue, was s. by his brother,

THOMAS DE BERKELEY, to whom Berkeley Castle was granted in 1223. This feudal lord m. Joan, dau. of Ralph de Somery, Lord of Campden, co. Gloucester; and dying in 1243, was s. by his eldest son,

MAURICE DE BERKELEY. This eminent person had military summonses to march against the Welsh, in the 42nd, 43rd, and 44th HENRY III., and the next year he had command to attend the king in London, well appointed with horse and arms, to take part against the barons, then in open hostility; but he appears to have adopted an opposite course, and to have joined the insurrectionary lords, for which his lands were seized by the crown. This Maurice m. Isabel, dau. of Maurice de Creoun, a great baron in Lincolnshire, by Isabel, his wife, sister to William de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, (uterine sister and brother of HENRY III.), and dying 4 April, 1281, was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS DE BERKELEY, who was with the king at the siege of Kenilworth Castle, Oct. 1266, and afterwards in the Welsh wars; for which eminent services he had a special grant, temp. EDWARD I., of liberty to hunt the fox, hare, booger, and wild cat, with his own dogs, within the king's forests of Mendip and chase of Kingswood; after this we find him engaged in Scotland, and participating in the victory of Falkirk, gained 22 July, 1298. He was subsequently at the celebrated siege of Caerliarock, and was summoned to parliament as a BARON from 23 June, 1295, to 15 May, 1291. His lordship m. Jane, dau. of William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, and was s. in 1291, by his eldest son,

MAURICE DE BERKELEY, 2nd lord, who had summons to parliament, as Lord Berkeley of Berkeley Castle, from 6 Aug. 1308, to 15 May, 1321. In 1312, his lordship was nominated governor of Gloucester; and in 1314, governor of the town and castle of Berwick-upon-Tweed. In 1315, he was constituted justice of South Wales, and had the custody of all the castles there. In 1319, by the title of the king's beloved kinsman, he was made steward of the duchy of Aquitaine; but in 1321, joining Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, he was committed prisoner to Wallingford Castle, where he d. 31 May, 1326, leaving, with other issue, by his wife, Eva, dau. of Eudo la Zouche,

THOMAS, his successor.

Maurice (Sir), from whom descended the Lords Botetourt, the Lords Berkeley of Stratton, and the Berkeleys of Pylle, represented by LORD PORTMAN.

His lordship's eldest son,

THOMAS, succeeded as third lord, and was summoned to parliament from 14 June, 1329, to 20 Nov. 1360. To this nobleman the custody of the unhappy EDWARD II. was committed at Berkeley Castle; but, owing to the humanity with which his lordship treated the captive monarch, he was soon after obliged to deliver the castle and his prisoner to Lord Maltravers and Sir Thomas Gournay. After the murder of the unfortunate prince, Lord Berkeley was arraigned as a participator in the foul deed, but honourably acquitted. His lordship d. 27 Oct. 1361, and was s. by his eldest son by his first wife, Margaret, dau. of Roger de Mortimer, Earl of March, and widow of Robert Vere, Earl of Oxford.

MAURICE, 4th lord, summoned to parliament, 25 Feb. 1342. This nobleman attended the BLACK PRINCE into Gascony, and was wounded in the celebrated battle of POICTIERS. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Hugh le Despencer, and had, with other issue,

THOMAS, his successor.

James (Sir), who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir John Bluet, Knt., with whom he had the manor of Ragland, and a fair estate in Gloucestershire. He d. in 1404, leaving a son, JAMES, who s. his uncle as 6th lord.

His lordship was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 5th lord, who m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Gerard Warren, Lord L'Isle, and left an only child,

Elizabeth, m. to Richard Beauchamp, 12th Earl of Warwick. "Upon this lady," says Nicolas, "according to the usual descents of baronies in fee, the barony of the Berkeleys, created by the writ of summons of 1295, should have devolved; but whether this anomaly arose from an idea, then prevailing, that the tenure of the castle of Berkeley conferred the barony, or that the heir male had the greatest political influence, cannot now perhaps be ascertained; the inference which may be drawn from the relative situations of the husband of the said Elizabeth, who was one of the most powerful noblemen of the time, and that of James Berkeley, who s. to the barony, is, that the tenure of Berkeley Castle was then considered to confer the dignity of baron upon its possessor, and, consequently, that the said James was allowed that dignity as his right, rather than by the favour of the court."

Thomas, 5th Lord Berkeley, thus dying without male issue, was s. by his nephew,

JAMES BERKELEY, 6th lord. This nobleman m. 1st, a dau. of Humphrey Stafford, of Hooke, co. Dorset, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, widow of Henry, son and heir of William, Lord Ferrers of Groby, and 2nd dau. of Thomas Mowbray, 1st Duke of Norfolk,* and earl marshal of England, and had four sons† and three daus. His lordship d. in 1463, and was s. by his eldest son, WILLIAM, 7th lord, who was created, 21 April, 1481, Viscount Berkeley; advanced to the dignity of Earl of Nottingham, 1483; and created MARQUESS OF BERKELEY, 28 Jan. 1489-90. This great nobleman had a dispute with Thomas Talbot, Viscount L'Isle, concerning some lands claimed by the latter in right of his grandmother, Margaret, Countess of Shrewsbury; and the quarrel rose to such a height, that the disputants encountered each other with their respective followers, at Wotton-under-Edge, in 1469 when the Viscount L'Isle was mortally wounded by an arrow shot through his mouth. The marquis d. 14 Feb.

* He was created Duke of Norfolk, 29 Sept. 1396, his grandmother, Margaret, Duchess of Norfolk, being still alive.

† From Thomas, the fourth son, who was seated at Dursley, descend the BERKELEYS of Cothelrige, in Worcestershire, and the BERKELEYS of Spetchley, in the same county. (See BURKE'S Landed Gentry.)

* For the first BERKELEYS, see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.

1491-2, and, leaving no issue, his own honours ceased, but the barony of Berkeley should have passed to his brother Maurice, had not the marquess, in anger with his kinsman, settled the castle of Berkeley, and those lands and lordships which composed the ancient barony, upon HEN. VII. and his majesty's heirs male, in failure of which to descend to his own right heirs; in consequence of this conveyance,

MAURICE, (8th baron by right,) enjoyed none of the estates, and was entirely deprived of the peerage. His brother's displeasure was attributed to his having married a person of mean blood, namely, Isabel, dau. of Philip Meade, Esq. an alderman of Bristol. This Maurice obtained, however, his share of an estate which devolved upon him in right of his mother, Isabel. He d. in 1506, and was s. by his son,

MAURICE, (by right, 9th lord,) who was made a knight of the Bath at the coronation of HENRY VIII. He m. Catherine, dau. of Sir William Berkeley, Knt. of Stoke Clifford, co. Gloucester, but having no issue, was s. at his decease, 1526, by his brother,

THOMAS, (10th lord,) who had a command in the celebrated battle of Flodden, fought 9 Sept. 1513, and for his signal services there received the honour of knighthood from Thomas Howard, Earl of Surrey. He m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Marmaduke Constable, of Flamborough, co. York, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS, (by right 11th baron,) who m. 1st, Mary, dau. of George Hastings, 1st Earl of Huntingdon, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir John Savage, of Frodsham, co. Chester; and dying 19 Sept. 1534, was s. by a posthumous son,

HENRY, 12th lord, who, on the death of EDWARD VI., the last male heir of HENRY VII., s. as heir to James, Marquess of Berkeley, to BERKELEY CASTLE AND LANDS, and thus recovered the ancient honour and precedence of the family. His lordship m. Catherine, 3rd dau. of Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey, and dying 26 Nov. 1513, was s. by his grandson,

GEORGE, 13th baron, K.B., who m. Elizabeth, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Sir Michael Stanhope, of Sudbury, co. Suffolk, and dying 10 Aug. 1668, was s. by his only surviving son,

GEORGE, 14th lord, created 11 Sept. 1679, Baron Mowbray, Segrave, and Braose, Viscount Dursley, and EARL OF BERKELEY. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of John Massingberd, Esq., treasurer of the East India Company, and dying 14 Oct. 1698, was s. by his elder son,

CHARLES, 2nd earl, K.B., who had been previously summoned to parliament, (11 July, 1689,) as Baron Berkeley of Berkeley. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Baptist Noel, Viscount Campden, and had four sons and three daus.* He d. 24 Sept. 1710, and was s. by his 2nd, but eldest surviving son,

JAMES, 3rd earl, a distinguished naval officer, who had summons to parliament, 7 March, 1764, as Lord Dursley. His lordship m. Lady Louisa Lennox, eldest dau. of Charles, 1st Duke of Richmond, and was s. at his decease, in 1736, by his only son,

BID

Lineage.

The Saxon words—"Bidde," or "Bida," prayer, entreaty, &c., and "Uph," assistance, protection, &c.—of which the surname Biddulph is said to be composed, would indicate that he who first adopted it had been employed in some embassy, or mission, to seek aid, and thence acquired the designation. The family is certainly of remote antiquity; and Erdeswick, in his survey of Staffordshire, says, "the Biddulphs derive themselves from one Ormus le Gwidon, Lord of Darlveston, Buckingham, Biddulph, &c., in Staffordshire, who lived in the time of Doomsday." (For a more detailed account of the Biddulph family, in all its branches, the Biddulphs of Burton, Chirk Castle, Ledbury, and Amroth Castle, see Burke's Landed Gentry.) A pedigree extant deduces the line from Ormus, to

Lineage.

This ancient family has given birth to three distinct races of peers, viz., the Lords of Guisnes, in France; the Barons of Ixworth, in Suffolk, (which barony ceased with Sir William Blount, Baron of Ixworth, who was slain fighting under the banner of Montfort, Earl of Leicester, at the battle of Lewes, and subsequently attained, by parliament, in the reign of HENRY III.;) and the Barons of Mountjoy, of Thurveston, co. Derby, which barony expired in 1681. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) Its settlement in England is traced to the Conquest, and its genealogy deduced from the Biondi, or Blondi, of Italy.

RODOLPH, 3rd Count of Guisnes, had three sons by his wife, Rosetta, dau. of the Count of St. Pol, all of whom accompanied the NORMAN, in his expedition against England, in 1066; and, contributing to the triumph of their chief, shared amply in the spoils of conquest. One of the brothers returned to his native country; the other two adopted that which they had so gallantly helped to win, and abided there: of these,

SIR ROBERT LE BLOUNT was the 1st feudal Baron of Ixworth, but of him presently.

SIR WILLIAM LE BLOUNT was a general of foot at Hastings, and had grants of seven lordships in Lincolnshire. His son was seated at Saxlingham, in Norfolk, and the great-grandson of that gentleman.

MARIA LE BLOUNT, sole heiress of her line, marrying, in the next century, SIR STEPHEN LE BLOUNT, united the families of the two brothers.

The elder son,

SIR ROBERT LE BLOUNT, had the command of the CONQUEROR'S ships of war, and is styled "DUX NAVIUM MILITARIVM." His portion of the Spolia Optima embraced thirteen manors in Suffolk, in which county he was the first feudal Baron of Ixworth (the place of his residence) and Lord of Orford Castle; he m. Gundreda, youngest dau. of Henry, Earl Ferrers, and had a son and heir,

GILBERT LE BLOUNT, 2nd Baron of Ixworth, from whom we pass to

WILLIAM LE BLOUNT, 6th Baron of Ixworth, who was standard-bearer to Simon de Montfort, and fell at the battle of Lewes, 14 May, 1264. He was attainted and the Barony of Ixworth forfeited. He left no issue, so that the representation of the family devolved upon his uncle,

SIR STEPHEN LE BLOUNT, who m. as stated, MARIA LE BLOUNT, heiress of Saxlingham, and had two sons,

SIR ROBERT, his heir.

SIR JOHN, who m. Constance, one of the sisters and heirs of Sir Richard de Wrotham, justice of the Common Pleas.

SIR WILLIAM BLOUNT, who m. Lady Isabel de Beauchamp, dau. of William, first Earl of Warwick, and widow of Henry Lovet, of Kilmley Lovet, co. Worcester, and dying in the 9th or 10th of EDWARD II., left a son,

Johanna, 3rd sister and co-heir of Sir William de Sodington, and acquired the Estate of Sodington, which to this day, continues one of the principal seats of the family. Sir Walter d. in 1332, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR WILLIAM LE BLOUNT. This gentlemen m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Theobald de Verdon, second Baron de Verdon, but dying issueless,* left his property to his brother, BOLINGBROKE.

BOLINGBROKE AND ST. JOHN, VISCOUNT, (Henry
St. John,) Baron St. John, of Lydiard Tregoze, co

Wilts, Baron St. John, of Battersea, co. Surrey, and a Baronet; b. in 1820, s. as 5th viscount, at the decease of his father, 1 Oct. 1851.

Lineage.

This family, springing in the male line from the Ports, Lords of Basing, co. Southampton, at the Conquest, derives, through the female line, from

WILLIAM DE ST. JOHN,* who came into England with the CONQUEROR, as grand master of the artillery, and supervisor of the wagons and carriages, whence the horses' hames, or collar, was borne for his cognizance. He m. Oliva, dau. of Ralph de Filgiers, of Normandy, and had by her, Thomas, who d. without issue, and

JOHN DE ST. JOHN, who inherited, on the demise of his brother, all the lands in England, and principally the lordship of STANTON, co. Oxon. (for distinction from the other towns of the same name, called STANTON ST. JOHN.) This John was a person of great eminence in the reign of WILLIAM RUFUS, being one of the twelve knights that accompanied Robert Fitz-Hamon, Earl of Gloucester, in a warlike expedition against the Welsh, and received, "in reward for his great services, and helps in many victories," the castle of Faumont, co. Glamorgan. He had issue, a dau., Avois, m. to Sir Bernard de St. Valery, and two sons,

1. ROGER, of whom presently.

ii. Thomas, Lord of Stanton St. John, living 13 HEN. II., whose son,

ROGER, was assessed $\text{£}133$ 6s. 8d. for trespassing in the king's forests, 23 HENRY II. The grandson of this Roger,

JOHN ST. JOHN, was killed at the battle of Evesham, 43 EDWARD I. He was in the holy wars with RICHARD I., who, at the siege of Acon, in Palestine, adopted the device of tying a leathern thong, or garter, round the left leg of a certain number of knights, (one of whom was this John St. John,) that they might be impelled to higher deeds of valour. This is supposed by some to have given the idea of the Order of the Garter.

The elder son,

ROGER DE ST. JOHN, m. Cicely, dau. and heiress of Robert de Haya, lord of the manor of Halmac, co. Suffolk, a kinsman of HENRY I., and had, with two sons, a dau., MURIAL, who m. Reginald de Aurca Valle, or Orville, and had a dau.,

MABIL ORVILLE, who m. ADAM DE PORT, a powerful feudal baron, (having the head of his barony at Basing, co. Southampton,) and had a son and heir, who, assuming the surname of his maternal ancestors, became

WILLIAM DE ST. JOHN, Lord of Basing, in which lordship and his other territorial possessions he was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE ST. JOHN, Lord of Basing, who, in the 42nd of HENRY III., had summons to be at Chester upon Monday next after the feast of St. John the Baptist, well accoutred with horse and arms, to oppose the incursions of the Welsh. From the eldest son of this feudal lord, by Agnes, dau. of William de Cantelupe, JOHN, descended the Lords of St. John of Basing, represented by the Marquess of Winchester.

And from the second,

WILLIAM DE ST. JOHN, of the castle of Faumont, co. Glamorgan, sprang

SIR OLIVER ST. JOHN, who acquired the lordship of Bletshoc, in the reign of HENRY VI., with his wife, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Beauchamp, and sister and sole heiress of John, Lord Beauchamp, of Bletshoc, co. Northampton; by which marriage, Lydiard Tregoze came also into the family of St. John. Sir Oliver St. John d. in 1437, and his widow m. 2ndly, John Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, K.G., by whom she had a dau., Margaret, who m. Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond, and by him was mother of HENRY VII. From the elder son of Sir Oliver, Sir John St. John, Knt., descended the Lords St. John of Bletshoc. The 2nd son,

OLIVER ST. JOHN, had the lordship of Lydiard Tregoze, and was, as Leland writes in his Itinerary, a stout black man, and died at Fonterabia, in Spain. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Lord Scroope, and left, with three daus., an only son and heir,

* The name was taken from the territory of St. John, near Rouen.

SIR JOHN ST. JOHN, chamberlain to Margaret, Countess of Richmond,* grandmother of HENRY VII., and one of the executors of her will. Sir John d. in 1612, and was s. by his son,

JOHN ST. JOHN, whose son and heir,

NICHOLAS ST. JOHN, Esq. of Lydiard Tregoze, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Richard Blount, of Maple Durham, co. Oxford, and had issue, JOHN (Sir), who inherited Lydiard, OLIVER, of whom presently; and Richard. The second son,

OLIVER ST. JOHN, having the misfortune to kill, in a duel, one Best, captain of the guard to Queen ELIZABETH, was obliged to relinquish the study of the law, and fly the kingdom. Adopting a military life, he attained considerable renown in the wars of ELIZABETH and JAMES in Ireland, and was eventually advanced to the peerage of that kingdom, as Viscount Grandison, with limitation to the issue of his nephew, Sir Edward Villiers, (which viscounty now merges in the earldom of Jersey,) and to the peerage of England, by the title of Baron Tregosse. In the next year, his lordship obtained a grant of the manors of Battersea and Wandsworth; but d. without issue, 30 Dec. 1630, when the English barony expired. The manors of Battersea and Wandsworth he bequeathed to John, the only surviving son of his brother; and upon that brother himself,

SIR JOHN ST. JOHN, had devolved, as stated above, the estate at Lydiard. Sir John had m. Lucy, dau. and heiress of Sir Walter Hungerford, of Farley, co. Wilts, and had surviving issue,

JOHN.

Barbara, m. to Sir Edward Villiers, Knt., by whom she had issue,

WILLIAM, 2nd Viscount Grandison, whose only dau. and heir,

BARBARA, m. Roger Palmer, Earl of Castlemain, in Ireland. She was afterwards created Duchess of Cleveland, by CHARLES II., and was mistress of that monarch.

JOHN, who s. as 3rd Viscount Grandison.

JOHN, Knt. of Battersea and Wandsworth, (by the bequest of his deceased uncle, Lord Grandison,) who was created a Baronet, 22 May, 1611. This gentleman was zealously attached to the royal cause, and had three sons slain fighting under the royal standard. He was succeeded at his decease, by (the son of his eldest son, Oliver, by Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Horatio, Lord Vere, Baron of Tilbury, which lady m. after his decease, John, Lord Poulet) his grandson,

SIR JOHN, at whose decease, unn., the title reverted to his uncle,

BOOTHBY.

BOOTHBY, SIR BROOKE-
WILLIAM-ROBERT, of Broad-low Ash, co. Derby, b. 21
Jan. 1809; s. his father, as 10th bart. 21 April, 1846.

Lineage.

The Boothbys claim Saxon origin, and the assumption is sustained by Dugdale and Camden. The former elaborate antiquary fixes the division of counties (Origines Juridicales, c. ix.) in the year 800 by Eosbert; and the latter, speaking of Lincolnshire, says, "The hundred or wapentake of Boothby, Boothby-Paynell, a market-town, and a gentleman's old seat called Boothby, were denominated from one Boothby, who there inhabited."

THEOBALDUS DE BOOTHBY was governor of Pontefract Castle, which he defended with great gallantry for the Lancastrians during the war of the Roses. From this Theobald we pass to THOMAS DE BOOTHBY, living in the reign of EDWARD VI., whose great-grandson, WILLIAM DE BOOTHBY, m. Judith, dau. of Thomas Osten, Esq. of Orley, co. Stafford, and by her (who m. 2ndly, William Basset, Esq. of Biore, Staffordshire, and 3rdly, Sir Robert Corbet, Bart.) he had, with other issue,

I. HENRY BOOTHBY, Esq., who was created a Baronet 5 Nov. 1644, by letters patent, which received the sign-manual of CHARLES I., but did not pass the seals, owing to the confusion of the civil wars. All the real estates enjoyed by Sir Henry he derived from the good management of his mother, his father having devised him money only. This lady, through her own exertions, was enabled to leave her son an estate in London; another called Kingsland, in Middlesex; Claterclote, Claden, and the manor of Cropperdy, in Oxfordshire; Bradlow-Ash, Cold Eaton, King's Mills, and the lands thereto belonging, near Ashbourne, Derbyshire: one-half of the manor or park of Cheadle, with Longnor, and other possessions in Staffordshire. Lineage.

The family of BOSWELL is supposed to have been established in Scotland in the reign of DAVID I., and it obtained the Barony of BALMUTO in the beginning of the 15th century, by the marriage of

SIR JOHN BOSWELL with Mariota, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Glen. The grandson of this marriage, DAVID BOSWELL, of Balmuto, m. twice: by his 1st wife, he had ALEXANDER (Sir), who s. at Balmuto, and carried on that line. He m. 2ndly, in 1490, Lady Margaret Sinclair, dau. of William, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, and left at his decease, in 1493.

THOMAS-ALEXANDER BOSWELL, Esq. of Crawley Grange; b. 24 Sept. 1800; m. in 1841, Jane, dau. of John Barker, Esq.

Upon the authority of Sir Walter Scott, Mr. Croker gives the following characteristic anecdote of this eminent lawyer, who appears to have looked upon Dr. Johnson, and some of the other companions of his son, with unmeasured contempt:—"Old LORD AUCHINLECK was an able lawyer and good scholar, after the manner of Scotland, and highly valued on his own advantages, as a man of good estate and ancient family; and, moreover, as he was a strict presbyterian, and a whig of the old Scottish cast. This did not prevent his being a terribly proud aristocrat; and great was the contempt he entertained and expressed for his son James, for the nature of his friendships, and the character of the personages of whom he was enjoyé one after another. 'There's nae hope for Jamie, man,' he said to a friend; 'Jamie is gaen clean gyte. What do you think, man, he's done wi' Paoli? He's off wi' the land louping scoundrel of a Corsican; and whose tail do you think he has pinned himself to now, man?' Here the old judge summed up, with a sneer of most sovereign contempt; 'a dominie, man—an auld dominie; he kept a schule, and called it an academy.'" Lord Auchinleck d. in 1783, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES BOSWELL, the friend and well-known biographer of Johnson. This remarkable person was born at Edinburgh, 29 Oct. 1740. He studied civil law in the universities of Edinburgh and Glasgow, and was called to the Scottish bar, and the English bar. Mr. Boswell cultivated the friendship of literary men, and was introduced to Dr. Johnson, in May, 1763. In 1790, he published his Life of the Great Moralist, which obtained an extraordinary degree of popularity. He was author, besides, of a work upon the Great Douglas Peerage cause. He m. in 1769, Miss Margaret Montgomery, and had issue, ALEXANDER, his successor, and James, barrister-at-law, with three daus. He d. at his house in Portland-street, 19 June, 1796, and was s. by his elder son,

1. ALEXANDER BOSWELL, of Auchinleck, who was created a Baronet, 16 Aug. 1821. Sir Alexander fell the following year (26 March, 1822) in a duel, arising from a political dispute, leaving JAMES, his successor, and a dau., who m. in 1826, Sir William-Francis Elliott, Bart. of Stobs.

Sir William inherits two baronetcies: of one, he is the 10th in succession: of the other, the 2nd.

Lineage.

The family of Rouse is of very high antiquity in the several counties of Sussex, Worcester, Warwick, Gloucester, and Hereford. Dr. Nash, in his History of Worcester, mentions that its patriarch in that shire accompanied the CONQUEROR into England; and the statement is confirmed by the Battle Abbey roll. On 23 July, 1641, the dignity of Baronet was conferred upon

THOMAS ROUSE, Esq. of Rouse Lench, co. Worcester, eldest son of Sir John Rouse, Knt., which honour expired with

SIR THOMAS ROUSE, the 4th bart., in 1721, when the issue male failed, and the estates of Sir Thomas passed to his then only surviving sister,

ELIZABETH ROUSE, at whose decease, unm., in 1729, her sister Mary's grandson, the next male relation of the family, inherited, viz.,

THOMAS PHILLIPS, Esq., who assumed the surname and arms of ROUSE, and took up his residence at Rouse Lench. This gentleman served the office of high-sheriff of Worcester, as Thomas Rouse, Esq., in 1733. He d. unm. in 1768, and was s. by CHARLES-WILLIAM BOUGHTON, Esq., (2nd son of Shuckburgh Boughton, Esq. of Poston Court, co. Hereford, and grandson of Sir William Boughton, 4th Bart. of Lawford, co. Warwick,) who assumed the surname of Rouse, and represented the boroughs of Evesham and Bramber, as Charles-William Boughton-Rouse, Esq. Mr. Boughton-Rouse was chief secretary, in 1784, to the Board of Control, and, upon retirement, from office, was created a Baronet, 28 June, 1791; but very soon afterwards he inherited the baronetage of his own family, the Boughtons, to which we must now revert.

I. WILLIAM BOUGHTON, Esq. of Lawford, (son of EDWARD BOUGHTON, and Elizabeth, his wife, heiress of Edward Catesby, grandson of WILLIAM BOUGHTON, (who d. 28 ELIZABETH,) by Jane, his wife, sister of Thomas Corningsby, and great-grandson, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. and co-heir of William Willington, of Barcheston, co. Warwick, of EDWARD BOUGHTON, who d. 1 EDWARD VI., was created a Baronet 4 Aug. 1641. He m. Abigail, eldest dau. and co-heir of Henry Baker, Esq., and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

II. SIR EDWARD, who m. twice, (his wives were, Mary, dau. of Thomas Pope, Earl of Down; and Anne, dau. of Sir John Heydon, Knt., governor of the Bermudas,) but having no issue, was s. in 1680, by his brother,

III. SIR WILLIAM. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Hastings Ingram, Esq. of Little Woolford, co. Warwick; and dying 12 Aug. 1683, left (with three daus., Lucy-Anne, m. to John Parkes, Esq. of Eydon, co. Northampton; Catherine, m. to William Smith, Esq. of Polton, co. Warwick; and Abigail, m. to Edward Boughton, Esq. of Bilton) an only son,

IV. SIR WILLIAM, M.P. for the co. Warwick, in the reign of ANNE. This gentleman m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Mr. Alderman Ramsey, of the city of London, and had EDWARD, his successor, and two daus., Mary, the wife of Sir Henry Houghton, Bart., and Anne. He m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Charles Shuckburgh, Bart., and had, with other surviving issue, Shuckburgh, who m. Mary, eldest dau. of Algernon Greville, 2nd son of Fulke, Lord Brooke, and left EDWARD and CHARLES WILLIAM, successively (8th and 9th) baronets; William, who d. unm.; Mary, m. to John Egerton, Bishop of Durham; Anne, m. to John Ruthford, Esq.; Elizabeth, m. to Lord Templeton; and Lucy, m. to Robert Wright, Esq.

Sir William d. 22 July, 1716, and was s. by his eldest son, V. SIR EDWARD, who m. Grace, eldest dau. of Sir John Shuckburgh, Bart., and was s. in Feb. 1721-2, by his only child,

VI. SIR EDWARD. This gentleman, by his second wife, Anna-Maria Beauchamp, an heiress, left a dau., who m. John Donellan, Esq., and an only son, his successor, in 1773,

VII. SIR THEODOSIUS-EDWARD-ALLESLEY. The sudden death of this gentleman, during his minority, caused an extraordinary sensation at the period it occurred. Sir Theodosius was confined to his bed by severe indisposition, at the family mansion of Lawford Hall, wherein his mother, and Captain and Mrs. Donellan, (his sister and brother-in-law,) were at the time residing. Having taken a draught from the hands of Lady Boughton, the unfortunate gentleman almost immediately expired, 21 Aug. 1780. Suspicion of poison subsequently arising, the body, after being deposited in the family vault, was disinterred, when a coroner's inquest returned a verdict of murder against Capt. Donellan, who was tried, condemned, and executed for the crime, at the Spring assizes for the co. Warwick, in 1781. It must be remarked, however, in justice to the memory of Mr. Donellan, that the evidence against him was solely circumstantial, and not of the strongest nature; and that he died solemnly protesting his innocence. The widow of Captain Donellan m. Sir Egerton Leigh, Bart., and after his decease, Barry-E. O'Meara, Esq., the medical attendant at St. Helena of the ex-emperor Napoleon, and d. 30 Jan. 1830. Upon the melancholy death of Sir Theodosius, the title devolved on his cousin,

VIII. SIR EDWARD, grandson to the 4th bart., as particularized above. This gentleman, who pulled down the mansion of Lawford Hall, and sold the estates in the cos. Warwick and Leicester, d. unm., in 1794, when the title devolved upon his only brother, the before-mentioned, (as legatee of Thomas (Phillips) Rouse, Esq. of Rouse Lench,)

IX. and I. SIR CHARLES-WILLIAM BOUGHTON-ROUSE, Bart. of Rouse Lench, co. Worcester, and of Downton Hall, co. Salop, (so created 28th July, 1791,) who, upon inheriting his own family honours, resumed his paternal surname of BOUGHTON. This gentleman m. in 1782, Catherine, only dau. and heiress of William-Pearce Hall, Esq., of Downton Hall, co. Salop, by whom he left issue,

WILLIAM-EDWARD, present baronet.

SIR HENRY NEVILLE, of Billingbere, co. Berks, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir John Gresham, and was s. by his son,

SIR HENRY NEVILLE, of Billingbere, a distinguished person in the reigns of ELIZABETH and JAMES I., of whom Lodge gives the following account:—"He owed his introduction to court to a family connexion with Secretary Cecil, and his promotion there, perhaps, yet more to his own merit, for he was a person of great wisdom and integrity. He was appointed ambassador to France, in April, 1599; and, in the summer of the following year, acted as first commissioner at the treaty of Boulogne. Unfortunately for him, the negotiation was concluded a few months before the discovery of Essex's conspiracy; and at his return he unwarily listened to some hints of that wild design, which his excessive attachment to the earl induced him to conceal. Essex, on his arraignment, named him as a party; he was committed to the Tower for a misprision of treason, in the midst of his preparations for returning to his charge in France, and sentenced to pay a heavy fine, which was mitigated to £5000. The alteration caused in his pecuniary circumstances, by the rigid exaction of this penalty, compelled him, in the next reign, to accept of offices beneath his deserts; and contrary to his spirited disposition, we find him projecting and executing various little schemes for the relief of JAMES's necessities; and in spite of the efforts made by his friends to get him appointed secretary, in 1613, he was never advanced to any higher employment, owing, as it is said, to the king's having conceived a personal dislike to him." The surname of this family was originally De Birkskough, from their abode being at Birkskough, or Birkswood, near Newbiggin, in a lordship belonging to the priory of Carlisle, a large portion of which estate is still in their possession.

ISOLD BRISCO obtained the manors of Crofton, Winhow, and Dunderaw, with Margaret, his wife, dau. and heir of Sir John Crofton, of Crofton, Knt., and was s. by his son, CHRISTOPHER BRISCO, of Crofton. It appears by an arbitrament between the prior of Carlisle and this Christopher, concerning the manor of Brisco, that the said manor should remain to the prior and his successors, paying to the said Christopher one hundred marks; and that the capital messuage, with the woods for building, should remain to the said Christopher and his heirs. This Christopher kept fourteen soldiers at Briscothorn upon Esk. He was taken prisoner at the burning of Wigton; and on that and similar occasions was forced to mortgage a considerable part of his estate. Suffolk*, and created, 19 Oct. 1714, EARL OF BRISTOL. He m. 1st, in 1686, Isabella, dau. and sole heir of the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Carr, Bart. of Sleeford, co. Lancaster, and grand-dau., maternally, of James Howard, 3rd Earl of Suffolk, by whom he had a son, CARR, Lord Hervey, (who predeceased him,) and two daus. The earl m. 2ndly, in 1695, Elizabeth, only dan. and heir of Sir Thomas Felton, Bart. of Playford, co. Suffolk, by whom he had eleven sons and six daus., of whom,

JOHN, Lord Hervey, (the eldest son,) b. 15 Oct. 1696, was called up to the House of Lords, in his father's barony, in 1733. His lordship was appointed keeper of the privy seal in 1740, and in the same year constituted one of the lords justices, during his majesty's absence from the kingdom. This nobleman fell under the lash of Pope, who in some extraordinarily severe lines, thus speaks of him:—

"Eternal smiles his emptiness betray,
As shallow streams run dimpling all the way;
Whether in flood impotence he speaks,
And, as the Prompter breathes, the puppet squeaks.
Eve's tempter, thus the Rabbinus have express—
A cherub's face, a reptile all the rest.
Beauty that shocks you, parts that none can trust,
Wit that can creep, and pride that licks the dust."

By Middleton, in his dedication of the history of the Life of Tully, his lordship is, however, very differently depicted; in that he is praised for his good sense, politeness, patriotism, temperance, and information. Lord Hervey having felt some attacks of epilepsy, entered upon, and persevered in, a very strict regimen; and thus stopped the progress of that dreadful disease. His daily food was a small quantity of asses' milk, and a flour biscuit; once a week he indulged himself in eating an apple: he used emetics daily. His lordship was distinguished as a political writer, and a list of his works is given in Horace Walpole's Catalogue of Royal and Noble Authors. He m. in 1720, Mary, dan. of Brigadier-General Nicholas Lepell, and left four sons, (three of whom became successively Earls of Bristol,) and four daus.* who, after his decease, were granted the precedence of those of an earl. Lord Hervey d. 5 Aug. 1743.

BROOKE, EARL, (Henry-Richard Greville, K. T.,) of Warwick Castle, co. Warwick, Earl of Warwick, and Baron Brooke, of Beauchamp's Court, in the same county; lord-lient. and custos-rotulorum of the co. Warwick; b. 29 March, 1779; s. as 3rd earl, on the demise of his father, 2 May, 1816; m. 21 Oct. following, Sarah, relict of John-George, 5th Lord Monson, and only dau. of John, 2nd Earl of Mexborough, by whom (who d. 30 Jan. 1851) he has an only son, GEORGE-GUY, Lord Brooke, M.P., b. 28 March, 1818.

Lineage.

WILLIAM GREVILLE, a citizen of London, "the flower of woolstaplers," (as his epitaph records,) lies interred at Campden, where he had been recently seated. This William was living in the 21st of RICHARD II., as that monarch acknowledges receiving a loan from him and his father of the enormous sum in those days of 300 marks, 10 Aug. 1397. He purchased, in the following year, the manor of Milcote, co. Warwick, from Sir Walter Beauchamp, Knt., and entailed it upon his heir male. He d. in the 3rd of HENRY IV., and was s. by his son,

JOHN GREVILLE, of Campden, who served the office of sheriff of Glamorganshire in the 6th of HENRY IV. He m. 1st, Sibil, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Corbet; and 2ndly, Joyce, dau. of Sir Walter Cocksey, Knt., sister and heiress of Hugh Cocksey, and widow of — Beauchamp. The grandson of this John,

SIR THOMAS GREVILLE, of Milcote, assumed the name of COCKSEY, upon inheriting the estates of his grandmother's family. He d. in the 14th of HENRY VII., without issue, when the lands of the Cockseys passed to the heirs of that family; and Milcote, with the other estates of the Grevilles, devolved, according to the entail of William Greville, upon

JOHN GREVILLE, of Drayton, (great-grandson of Lewis, or Lodowick, Greville, and his wife, Margaret,* sole dau. and heir of Sir Giles Ardene, of Drayton, co. Oxford.) This John Greville was one of the justices for the gaol delivery of Warwick, in the 15th of HENRY VII. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir Humphrey Forster, of Harpedon, co. Oxford, and was s. by his elder son,

* Leland says, "The first notable increase of the landes of Graville, of Dralton, cam by one Lewis Graville, who married Margaret, the daughter and heir of a noble, caulled Syr Giles Ardene."

SIR EDWARD GREVILLE, of Milcote, a distinguished military character in the reign of HENRY VIII., particularly at the battle of Spurs. In the 13th of the same king, Sir Edward Greville obtained the wardship of Elizabeth, one of the daus., and at length sole heiress, of Edward Willoughby, only son of Robert, Lord Brooke, and his wife, Elizabeth, one of the daus. and co-heirs of the Lord Beauchamp of Powyk,* which wardship tended, in a great degree, to the subsequent elevation of the family. Sir Edward m. Anne, dau. of John Denton, Esq. of Amersden, co. Bucks, and had issue, (he d. 20th HENRY VII.,)

JOHN (Sir), of Milcote and Drayton, M.P.† for the co. Warwick, whose great-grandson,

SIR EDWARD GREVILLE, of Milcote and Drayton, m. Joan, dau. of Sir Thomas Bromley, lord chancellor of England, and left several daus. Sir Edward, being in debt, sold his whole estate to Lionel Cranfield, Earl of Middlesex; and thus the elder branch of the Grevilles became EXTINCT.

FULKE. Thomas. Edward.

The second son,

SIR FULKE GREVILLE, Knt., m. Elizabeth Willoughby, the ward of his father, and the greatest heiress then in England. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) The account of this marriage is in a manuscript, entitled "The Genealogie, Life, and Death of Robert, Lord Brooke," written in 1644, and in possession of Earl Brooke. "In the days of HENRY VIII., (says the author of the manuscript,) I read of Sir Edward Grevil, of Milcote, who had the wardship of Elizabeth, one of the daus. of the Lord Brooke's son. The knight made a motion to his ward, to be married to John, his eldest son; but she refused, saying, that she did like better of Fulke, his second son. He told her that he had no estate of land to maintain her; and that he was in the king's service of warre beyond the seas, and therefore his return was very doubtful. Shee replied and said, that shee had an estate sufficient both for him and for herself; and that shee would pray for his safeties and wait for his coming. Upon his returne home, for the worthy services he had performed, he was, by King HENRY, honoured with knighthood; and then married Elizabeth, the dau. of the Lord Brooke's son." By this marriage the manor of Alcester, and many other fair lordships and lands, came in right of his wife to Sir Fulke; who, seating himself at Beauchamp's Court, and augmenting his large estate by the purchase of sundry lands in the neighbourhood, raised his family to high distinction in the co. Warwick. Of this marriage there were, with other issue,

I. FULKE, his successor.

II. Robert, of Thorpe-Latimer, co. Lincoln, whose eldest son, FULKE GREVILLE, left issue, ROBERT, who s. as 2nd Lord Brooke; and Dorothy, m. to Sir Arthur Haslrigge.

Sir Fulke was s. by his eldest son,

SIR FULKE GREVILLE, who m. Anne, dau. of Ralph Neville, Earl of Westmorland, and was s. by his only son,

SIR FULKE GREVILLE, a man of letters, and a distinguished courtier in the reigns of ELIZABETH and JAMES I., who, at the coronation of the latter prince, was made a Knight of the Bath; and soon after, was called, from being Treasurer of the Navy, to be Chancellor of the Exchequer, and was sworn of the privy council. In the 2nd of King JAMES's reign he obtained a grant of WARWICK CASTLE, with the gardens and other dependencies about it, and was elevated to the peerage, 18 Jan. 1630-1, by the title of Lord Brooke, Baron Brooke, of Beauchamp's Court, co.

* Lord Beauchamp of Powyk was descended from Walter de Beauchamp, of Alcester, brother of William, 1st EARL OF WARWICK, of the Beauchamp family; the male line of which family expired with HENRY DE BEAUCHAMP, EARL AND DUKE OF WARWICK, in 1445, when the dukedom became extinct, and the earldom devolved upon his grace's only dau. and heiress, Anne de Beauchamp, as COUNTESS OF WARWICK; but her ladyship d. unm., in four years afterwards, when her aunt, Anne Beauchamp, wife of Richard Neville, son of the Earl of Salisbury, became heiress of the family.

† Sir John Greville, of Milcote, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Spencer, Esq. of Hodnot, and had an only son, Sir Edward Greville, of Milcote and Drayton, who m. one of the daus. and co-heirs of William Willington, Esq. of Burcheston, in Warwickshire, and had an only son, Lodowick Greville, who, by his wife, Thomasine, dau. of Sir William Petre, Knt., left an only son, the above SIR EDWARD GREVILLE.

Warwick; with limitation, in default of heirs male of his own body, to his kinsman, Robert Greville, son of Fulke Greville, Esq. of Thorpe Latimer, co. Lincoln. His lordship d. 30 Sept. 1628, and was buried in his own vault, in the great church of Warwick, under a monument, which he had erected himself, with this remarkable inscription :

Fulke Greville,
Servant to Queen Elizabeth,
Councillor to King James,
and friend to Sir Philip Sidney.
Trophæum peccati.

As his lordship never married, the honours descended, according to the limitation, to his kinsman.

ROBERT GRAYVILLE, Esq. (refer to issue of Sir Fulke Greville and Elizabeth Willoughby,) as 2nd baron. This nobleman distinguished himself as a general, in the parliament army, during the civil wars. He was victorious at Edge Hill, in Oct. 1642; and the next year was killed by a musket ball, in a successful assault upon Lichfield. PHILIP DE-CAPELL accompanied Fitz-Stephen into Ireland, and had large grants of lands for his services there: those lands, comprising the estate of Ahadoe, in the co. Cork, with the mansion-house, the remains of an ancient castle, have remained ever since (a period of nearly 700 years) in his descendants, and are still held by the original tenure of knight's service, viz., the annual presentation of a pair of spurs at Easter.

The family of BROOKE issued originally from the house of Latham, or Leighton, in Cheshire, from which, in the time of STEPHEN, three eminent branches sprang, viz., the Brookes of Cheshire; the Brookes, Lords Cobham; and the Brookes of Oakley.

WILLIAM BROOKS, of Astwell, in the co. of Northampton, (fourth in descent from Sir Nicholas Brooke, lord of the manor of Chester Waver, co. Warwick, where he was buried in 1271.) exchanged, sometime in the 14th century, the manor of Astwell, and other lands, with Thomas Lovett, for the manors of GREAT OAKLEY and Rushton. He m. the niece of Sir Thomas Billinge, lord chief justice of EDWARD IV., and had a son and heir,

I. RICHARD-BROOKE SUPPLE, Esq., F.R.S., who assumed, by sign-manual, in 1797, upon succeeding to the estate of GREAT OAKLEY, the surname of BROOKE, in obedience to the testamentary injunction of his great-uncle; and he adopted at the same time, the original surname of his family, DE-CAPELL,* instead of Supple, also by royal licence. He m. 18 Aug. 1788, Mary, only dau. and heir of Gen. R. Worge, and had by her (who d. 7 Oct. 1846),

* Family of De-Capell.

The surname of DE-CAPELL is supposed to have been corrupted to SUPPLE. An ancient MS. in the British Museum gives a list of English families who came into Ireland in the times of HENRY II., RICHARD I., and JOHN, in which may be found that of James Chappell, otherwise Capell, otherwise Supple, Baron.

PHILIP DE-CAPELL had a grant, as already stated, of Ahadoe, co. Cork, and his descendant, BROUGHAM.

BROUGHAM AND VAUX, BARON, (Henry Brougham,) of Brougham, co. Westmorland; b. 19 Sept. 1778; m. in 1819, Mary-Anne, eldest dau. of Thomas, 4th son of Sir John Eden, Bart. of Windleston, co. Durham, niece of the Lords Auckland and Henley, and widow of John Spalding, Esq., by whom he had two daus., Eleanor-Sarah, who d. in 1820, and Eleanor-Louisa, who d. 30 Nov. 1839. This eminent person, after a long series of great and gratuitous public services, was constituted lord chancellor, and created a peer of the realm, on the accession of the Grey administration, in 1830. He retired with his party in 1834. Lord Brougham is heir-general, and representative of a branch of, the ancient and noble house of VAUX.

Lineage.

The family of Brougham is of Saxon descent, and derives its surname from BURGHAM, afterwards called Brougham, a parish in Westmorland, the ancient Brocavum, or Brovoniacum, of the Romans. In the Itinerary of Antoninus, "Iter V. à Londinis Laguvallium ad Vallium," (London to Carlisle,) it is stated thus: "Verteris (Brough) ad Brocavo, M. P. xx. mihi quidem Brocavum esse Brougham." Camden, in his Britannia, (Edit. 1600, p. 689,) says: "Eden runs along not far from Howgill, a castle of the Sandfords; but the Roman military way passes directly through Whinfield, a large park, thick set with trees, to Brovoniacum, twenty Italian miles, but seventeen English, from Verteræ, as Antoninus has fixed it; he calls it also Brocovum, as the Notitia Broconiaco, from which we understand the company of Defensores had their abode here. Though age has consumed both its buildings and splendour, the name is preserved almost entire in the present one of BROUGHAM; the antiquity whereof has been further confirmed of late years, by the discovery of Roman coins, altars, and other testimonies." The ancient line of the BROUGHAMS is likewise alluded to by Hutchinson, in his History of Cumberland. "This family," he observes, "may be said to stand unusually eminent in point of antiquity; from having originally assumed the name of the Roman station—an area to the south of Brougham Castle, the vallum and outward ditch of which are yet very distinguishable."

The estate of Burgham or Brougham belonged to the Brougham family before the Conquest. This is proved from the fact, that the earliest possessors had Brougham at the time of the Conquest, and continued to hold it afterwards by the tenure of drengage, a tenure by military service, but distinguished at that time from knights' service, inasmuch as those only held their lands by drengage, who had possessed them before the Conquest, and were continued in them after submitting to the Conqueror.

Hence when we find the name of Gilbert de Broham among the drengi of Westmorland, who made fine with King JOHN that they might not go with him into Normandy, it proves not only that he at that time held his lands of Brougham in capite, but that in the time of King JOHN he continued to hold them by the same service of drengage as his ancestors had done from the Conquest to the reign of JOHN, and that his ancestors had been in possession before the Conquest.

This Gilbert, about the fourth year of King JOHN, granted to Robert de Vipont one half of the town of Brougham, together with the advowson of the rectory—but no part of the manor—although the castle, then a single tower, which was afterwards enlarged by Roger Clifford, Vipont's successor, stands within the manor of Brougham.

We now proceed to the descent of the family from WALTER, who possessed Brougham before the Conquest.

WALTER DE BURGHAM was lord of the manor and estate of Burgham in the time of EDWARD the Confessor, and he retained possession after the Conquest, as tenant in capite, by the tenure of drengage. From him descended

WILFRID DE BURGHAM, who lived in the time of HENRY I. He was succeeded by

SIR UDARD DE BROHAM, Knt., (or as it is sometimes written, Odard de Burgham,) who, in the early part of the reign of HENRY II. had the custody of Appleby Castle, and was fined in the Exchequer 20 marks, for delivering it to the King of Scots. In the 22nd of HENRY II., he took part with other barons against the king, and was again heavily fined, as appears by the record belonging to the Court of Exchequer (Account side) in the Public Record Office, in the custody of the Right Hon. the Master of the Rolls, pursuant to the Statute 1 & 2 VICT. c. 94. He was succeeded by his son,

GILBERT DE BURGHAM, mentioned in the record of the seventeen drengi. He was succeeded by

HENRY DE BURGHAM, lord of the manor of Burgham in the reign of EDWARD I. In 1303, his dau., Dorothy, m. John de Carlton, ancestor of the Barons Dorchester. In the time of EDWARD III.,

JOHN DE BURGHAM possessed the manor, and was sheriff of Westmorland, in 1361, under Lord Clifford. He was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE BURGHAM, Knt., who having some dispute with Lord Clifford, respecting the extent of the manor, a solemn deed was entered into between them, for the purpose of defining and fixing for ever the boundaries of the manor of Burgham. This instrument bears date the 2nd of RICHARD II., and is enrolled amongst the records preserved in the Rolls Chapel.

In 1383, Sir John de Burgham was knight of the shire for the co. Cumberland with John de Kirkby. He m. the dau. and heiress of John de Tynedale, and his daughter, Alice, m. John Vaux, of Catterlen. He was s. at his decease, as found by the inquis. post mortem, by his son,

JOHN DE BURGHAM, lord of Burgham, M.P. for Carlisle in 1394 and 1396, and was s. by

THOMAS DE BURGHAM, lord of Burgham, and in 1436, knight of the shire, with William Stapilton, for the co. of Cumberland. This Thomas appears subsequently to have dropped the de before his name. He was one of the king's justices for the northern counties, as appears by the Record of Assizes and Gaol Delivery, preserved in the Treasury of the Exchequer, in the Chapter House, Westminster. Thomas Burgham m. a dau. of Sir John Kirkbride, of Braithwaite-Howes, in the co. Cumberland, and thus acquired that estate. He was s. by

JOHN BURGHAM, who was lord of Burgham in the reign of EDWARD IV., and by an inquisition post mortem, taken at Burgham in 1494, it was found that the said John died seised of the manor, and that he was s. by his son and heir,

JOHN BURGHAM, who, in 1504, possessed Burgham. He m. a dau. of Dudley of Yanwath, and his dan., Isabella, m. Thomas de Carleton. He was s. by

GILBERT BURGHAM, lord of Burgham, temp. HEN. VIII. who was s. by

THOMAS BURGHAM, lord of Burgham in 1553. This gentleman m. Jane, dau. and heiress of John Vaux, of Catterlen and Tryermaine, (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage), and had two sons, viz., I. HENRY BURGHAM; II. PETER BROUGHAM, of whom presently. The elder son,

HENRY BURGHAM, was lord of Burgham in the reign of ELIZABETH, as appears by the following grant, signed "Henricus Burgham," and sealed with the seal of his arms. This Henry m. Catherine Nevill, dau. and heir of Sir Ralph Nevill, of Thornton Briggs, co. York, and widow of Sir Walter Stirkland, Knt., as appears by a fine levied by her in the 18th HENRY VIII. He was s. by his son and heir,

THOMAS, who was in the commission of the peace for the co. Cumberland; he d. s. p. in 1607, as appears by a deed, dated 29 March, 1608, reciting that Elizabeth, Margaret, and Katherine, being the sisters and co-heirs of the said Thomas Burgham, did, for the consideration therein-mentioned, demise unto the said Agnes, his widow, all that the manor, capital, messuage, and demesne lands called Brougham Hall, with the appurts, to hold to Agnes and her assigns during her life, &c.

PETER BROUGHAM, of Blackhall, in the co. Cumberland, uncle and heir of the last mentioned Thomas, m. Anne, dau. and heiress of John Southaic, of Scales Hall, in Cumberland, and thus acquired that estate. He d. in 1570, and was s. by his son,

HENRY BROUGHAM, of Scales and Blackhall. This gentleman served the office of sheriff for the co. Cumberland. He m. 1st, Jane, dau. of John Wharton, of Kirby-Thore, by whom he had an only dau., Jane, m. to Edward Aglionby. Mr. Brougham m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Thomas Falowfield, of Melkinthorpe Hall, co. Westmorland; and dying in 1622, was s. by his son,

THOMAS BROUGHAM, Esq. of Scales, who served the office of sheriff for Cumberland. He m. Mary, dau. of Daniel Fleming, Esq. of Skirwith, (ancestor of the Flemings of Rydal, created a Baronet in 1705,) and had issue, I. HENRY, his successor; II. Thomas; III. Christopher; IV. William; V. John; VI. Toby; VII. Agnes, m. to Anthony Wybergh, Esq., youngest son of Thomas Wybergh, Esq. of Clifton Hall, Westmorland; and VIII. Mary. Mr. Brougham d. in 1648, and was s. by his son,

HENRY BROUGHAM, of Scales, who enlarged his possessions there, and greatly added to Scales Hall. A MS. preserved in the Dean and Chapter Library, at Carlisle, called Bishop Nicholson's MS., and described as a "Curiosy Relation of all the Antiquities of Families of Cumberland," written about 1675, speaks thus of this Henry and his predecessors:—"Next adjoining Squire Brougham, ancient heir male of all the Squire Broughams, of Brougham Hall, in Westmorland, built him a very fine house at Scales, and lives there. His grandfather, Henry Brougham, married Jane Wharton, daughter of Squire Wharton, of Kirby-Thore. His father, Thomas, married Mary, daughter of Squire Daniel Fleming, of Skirwith, and cousin of Squire Fleming, lord of Ridall; and this Squire Brougham married fair Miss Slee, dau. of Mr. Slee, of Carlisle, a jovial gentleman of £300 a-year." The same MS. has the following passage, at p. 118, relating to Brougham Hall:—"Then this great Roman way brings you to the castle, near which was a great Rom: campe, as I have been informed, leaving on the left Brougham H: the seat of the Broughams, and also a faire house, newly built in Brougham, by James Bird, an attorney at law. And close by the castle runs the river Emote, which the way crosses, and so goes through Carleton, by Penrith, which it leaves on the left, near to Carlisle, as I sayd before. From this castle you have the prospect of Lowther Hall, the chief and ancient seat of [illegible] and Clifton Hall, which is to be referred to Kendal way, and likewise of Penrith, and Penrith Castle, and Carleton Hall, on the other side of the water, in the county of Cumberland, likewise of Brougham Hall and Chapel and Mr. Bird's house, which lye in the way if you go by the Bridges from hence to Penrith." By his 1st wife Mr. Brougham had four children, Thomas; Henry; Anne, b. in 1683; d. 15 Feb. 1789, at the age of 106, having lived in the reigns of seven sovereigns, viz., CHARLES II., JAMES II., WILLIAM and MARY, ANNE, and the first three GEORGES; Joane. B R O U N.

BROUN, SIR RICHARD, of Colstoun, co. Haddington, s. his father, as 8th baronet, 30 Nov. 1844.

Lineage

According to tradition, the house of Colstoun was founded soon after the Norman Conquest by a French warrior, who bore the arms of, and claimed alliance to, the Royal family of France.

WALTERUS LE BRUN flourished at an early period of the 12th century, and was one of the barons who witnessed the instrument of inquisition respecting the possessions of the church of Glasgow, made by Prince David, (in 1116,) during the reign of his brother, ALEXANDER I.

SIR DAVID LE BRUN, by a judicial transcript, devised to the Abbey of Holyrood House "lands and acres in territories de Colstoun," for prayers to be said for "the soul of ALEXANDER and the health of his son." Sir David was one of the witnesses, along with King DAVID I., in laying the foundation of the abbey of Holyrood House, 13 May, 1125.

RALPH LE BRUN, was one of the Scottish Barons who swore fealty at Berwick, 28 Aug. 1296.

RICHARD LE BRUN, Keeper of the king's peace in Cumberland, then a portion of Scotland, was one of the principal noblemen who headed the conspiracy occasioned by the demand of the Charters in the year 1323.

WILLIAM BROUN, Baron of Colstoun, in the reign of JAMES I., m. Margaret de Annand, co-heiress of the Baroness of Sauchy, descended of the ancient Lords of Annandale, a family which gave kings and queens to Britain, Robert de Bruce having m. Agnes de Annand, heiress of that county, whence the present royal line.

SIR WILLIAM BROUN, of Colstoun, Warden of the West Berder, commanded the Scots in a battle fought against the English, in the parish of Dornock Annandale, in which the latter were defeated, and their commanders, Sir Marmaduke Langdale and Lord Crosbie, slain. So sanguinary was the conflict, that tradition says, a spring well upon the spot ran blood for three days.

WILLIAM BROUN, of Colstoun, who flourished in 1480, and downwards, was lord-director of the court of Chancery.

GEORGE BROUN, of Colstoun, d. cir. 1611, and m. Jean, Hay, dau. of Lord Yester, ancestor of the Marquess of Tweeddale. The dowry of this lady consisted of the famous "Colstoun Pear," which Hugo de Gifford, of Yester, who d. in 1267, her remote ancestor, famed for his necromantic powers, was supposed to have invested with the extraordinary virtue of securing, for the Family who might possess it, unfading prosperity. This PALLADIUM is preserved at Colstoun with the care due to so singular an hair-loom, which, regardless of the superstition, must be esteemed a very wonderful vegetable curiosity, having existed for more than five centuries. (See CHAMBERS' Pictures of Scotland.)

Various other notices occur of Chiefs of the Family in the parliamentary records and Meetings of Estates, together with names long associated with the history of those times, down to George Brown, Baron of Colstoun, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir D. Murray, of Stanhope, Bart., by his wife, the Lady Lellias Fleming, dau. of John, Earl of Wigton, by a dau. of John, Earl of Montrose, and had, with a younger son, George, ancestor of the present Baronet, to whom he granted, by charter, the Barony of Thornydyke, Berwickshire, an elder son,

I. SIR PATRICK BROWN, of Colstoun, who, in consequence of his eminent services, and the fidelity of the ancient family he represented, was created a Knight, and Baronet of Nova Scotia, 16 Feb. 1686, with remainder of the title to his heirs male for ever. Sir Patrick m. 1st, a dau. of the noble family of Sinclair; and 2ndly, Lady Jean Maxwell, and was s. by his son,

II. SIR GEORGE BROWN, who m. the Lady Elizabeth M'Kenzie, dau. of George, 1st Earl of Cromarty; and d. in 1718, without male issue. It is reported of Lady Elizabeth, the first night after her marriage when she slept at Colstoun House, that she dreamed she had eaten the pear, which her father-in-law looked on as a bad omen, and expressed great fears that she would be an instrument in the destruction of the house of Colstoun. Whether owing to the lady's fault does not appear, but, shortly after, the family split betwixt the heirs-male and the heirs-of-line; the title devolving upon the Thornydyke branch, and the estates upon an heiress, who married George Brown, of Eastfield, and from whom are descended the latter family, represented by George Brown, Lord Colstoun, of Session, who m. a dau. of Hugh Dalrymple, Lord Drummore, and had a son, Charles Brown, of Colstoun, who m. a dau. of M'Dowall, of Logan, and had an only child and heiress, Christian, the late Countess of Dalhousie.

III. SIR GEORGE BROWN, son of Alexander Brown, of Thornydykes Castle and Bassendean, by Catherine, dau. of Sir Alexander Swinton, of Swinton, s. his cousin, and d. without male issue, and was s. by his brother,

IV. SIR ALEXANDER, who m. Beatrice, dau. of Alexander Swinton, Lord Mersington; and d. in 1750, leaving,

V. SIR ALEXANDER BROWN, who m. a dau. of Colquhoun of Glina, and d. in 1778, without male issue, when the baronetcy devolved upon his cousin, and next heir male,

VI. THE REV. SIR RICHARD BROWN, minister of Lochmaben, who declined to take up the title, as he was in holy orders. He was the eldest son of James Brown, of Home Castle, great-grandson of George, 2nd surviving son of the 1st Laird of Thornydykes. He m. Robina, dau. of Col. Hugh M'Bryde, of Beadland, Ayrshire; and d. in 1782, leaving, with several daus., two sons,

JAMES, who, in 1826, revived the title, after a special service before a jury of fifteen gentlemen of the co. of Dumfries, of whom the present Marquess of Queensbury was the chancellor.

William, of Newmains, who m. Nancy, dau. of Col. Peter Maingy, of Guernsey; and d. in 1831, leaving three sons,

1. William-James, lieut.-col. of the Guernsey militia, and government secretary of Guernsey; m. in July, 1824, his cousin, Susan, 2nd dau. of the late James Maingy, Esq.

2. Peter-Nicholas, colonial secretary of Swan River; who m. in 1824, Caroline, dau. of James Simpson, Esq.; and d. in 1846, leaving three sons, M'Bryde, James, and Charles, and five daughters.

3. Richard-M'Bryde, m. in 1837, Anne, only child of G. Leake, Esq., and has a son, George, and two daus.

BRYDGES, SIR JOHN-WILLIAM-EGERTON, of Denton Court, co. Kent; b. in Nov. 1791; s. his father, 8 Sept. 1837. He was formerly in the 14th Light-dragoons.

Lineage.

This family derives from

THE REV. EDWARD-TYNEWELL BRYDGES, who claimed to be heir male of Anthony, 3rd son of John, 1st Baron Chandos, (the male line of the two elder sons having ceased with the 7th baron and 2nd duke,) and thus entitled to the ancient barony of Chandos. The claim was contested before the House of Lords from 1790 to 1803; the opposition was strenuous; and the lords came to a resolution adverse to the petitioner. His brother and heir,

SIR SAMUEL-EGERTON BRYDGES, b. 30 Nov. 1762, persevered, however, in his claim, and asserted himself to be legally entitled. He was the second son of the late Edward Brydges, Esq. of Wootton Court, co. Kent, by Jemima, daughter and co-heir of William Egerton, LL.D., grandson of John, 2nd Earl of Bridgewater, by Elizabeth, daughter of William Cavendish, Duke of Newcastle. Sir Samuel-Egerton Brydges had a younger brother, SIR JOHN-WILLIAM-HEAD BRYDGES, M.P. for Coleraine, who m. 1812, Lady Isabella-Anne Beresford, eldest dau. of George, 1st Marquess of Waterford, and d. in 1839, leaving a son, John, b. in 1814, and two daus., Elizabeth, wife of the Rev. Lineage.

SIR RICHARD LE SCOT, the undoubted ancestor of this family, was a person of great distinction in the reign of ALEXANDER III. of Scotland. He m. the dan. and heirress of Murthockstone, of that ilk, by whom he obtained a considerable estate in Linarkshire, and, as a feudal lord thereof, swore fealty to EDWARD I., of England, anno 1296. Upon his marriage, Sir Richard assumed the cognizance of Murthockstone, which was a bend azure, into his armorial bearings, disposing thereon the crescents and star, the arms of Scott, as since borne by the Dukes of Buccleuch. He d. in 1320; and from him lineally descended

SIR DAVID SCOT, of Branxholm, who sat in the parliament held by JAMES III. at Edinburgh, anno 1487, under the designation of "Dominus de Buccleuch," being the first of the family so designated. The grandson of this Sir David,

SIR WALTER SCOTT, of Branxholm and Buccleuch, s. in 1492. This laird, a brave and powerful baron, and warden of the west marches of Scotland, is celebrated by historians for deeds of valour and magnanimity during the minority of JAMES V., and for an abortive attempt to rescue that monarch from the control of the Earl of Angus; on which Sir Walter Scott has founded "THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL." Soon after the king had assumed the management of his own affairs, he privately solicited the aid of Buccleuch, who, being apprised that JAMES, accompanied by Angus and a considerable retinue, was coming to Melross, raised about 1000 horse of his friends and followers, to relieve the king. The adherents of Buccleuch and Angus came in sight near Melross, 18 July, 1526, and a sanguinary conflict ensued; but the earl was successful, after the fall of a number of men of rank on both sides, Sir Walter Scott himself being wounded and barely escaping from the field. He was afterwards distinguished at the battle of Pinkie, anno 1547; and eventually lost his life in a rencounter with Sir Walter Kerr, of Cessford, in the streets of Edinburgh, 1552. Sir Walter m. 1st, Elizabeth Carmichael, of the Hyndford family, by whom he had two sons. He m. 2ndly, Janet, dau. of John Bethune, of Creich, "of Bethune's line of Picardie," and had two sons and three daus. The last lady of Sir Walter was a woman of masculine spirit, as appeared from her riding at the head of her clan after her husband's murder. Sir Walter Scott was s. by his grandson,

SIR WALTER SCOTT, of Buccleuch. This was a person of rare qualities, wise, true, stout, and modest. He signed the association in support of JAMES VI. in 1567, but subsequently turned to the party of the queen, to whom he remained faithful, notwithstanding her extorted resignation of the crown, and her captivity in England. He m. Lady Margaret Douglas, eldest dan. of David, 7th Earl of Angus, and dying 17 April, 1574, was s. by his only son,

SIR WALTER SCOTT, of Buccleuch. This powerful chieftain, no way inferior to the bravest of his ancestors in courage and intrepidity, received the honour of knighthood from JAMES VI. by whom he was appointed warden of the west marches in 1596. Having subsequently carried on a predatory warfare against the English, and boldly rescued one of his attendants, KINMONT WALL, from the castle of Carlisle, he was delivered up as a hostage upon an adjustment of the feuds between the English and Scots. During his sojourn in England, family tradition states that he was brought into the presence of Queen ELIZABETH, who demanded, in her usual arbitrary manner, how he dared to engage in deeds so desperate and presumptuous? "What is it," answered the undaunted chieftain, "what is it that a man dares not do?" ELIZABETH, struck with this reply, said to a lord in waiting, "With ten thousand such men, our brother of Scotland might shake the firmest throne in Europe." Sir Walter was elevated to the peerage, 16 March, 1606, as Lord Scott of Buccleuch. His lordship afterwards, as a military commander, attained considerable renown in the Netherlands, under Maurice, Prince of Orange. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir William Ker, of Cessford, and sister of Robert, 1st Earl of Roxburgh, and dying in 1611, was s. by his only son,

WALTER, 2nd baron, who was created, 16 March, 1619, Lord Whitehester and Eskdale, and Earl of Buccleuch, with remainder to his heirs whatsoever. This nobleman was also a military character, and had the command of a regiment under the States of Holland, against the Spaniards. His lordship m. Lady Mary Hay, dau. of Francis, Earl of Errol, and dying in 1633, was s. by his only son,

FRANCIS, 2nd earl, who m. Lady Margaret Lealy, only dan. of John, Earl of Rothes, and widow of Lord Balgonie; by whom he left, at his decease in 1651, two daus., and was s. by the elder,

MARY, Countess of Buccleuch. Her ladyship m. Walter

Scott, of Highchester, afterwards created Earl of Tarras for life: at the time of her marriage the countess was but eleven years of age, and Mr. Scott fourteen. The affair made a considerable noise, and became matter of discussion before the provincial Synod of Fife, in 1669, upon an accusation against the presbytery for granting a warrant for the marriage without proclamation. The presbytery was, however, absolved, because the order was grounded upon an act of the general assembly, allowing such marriages in case of necessity, or fear of rape; and the lady's friends were apprehensive of her being carried off. The countess died in two years afterwards without issue, and was s. by her sister,

ANNE, 2nd countess, b. in 1651. This lady, who was esteemed the greatest heiress and finest woman of her time, m. in 1663, James, Duke of Monmouth, K.G., illegitimate son of CHARLES II., by Mrs. Lucy Walters, dau. of Richard Walters, Esq. of Haverford West, co. Pembroke. His grace, upon his marriage, assumed the name of SCOTT, and himself and his duchess were created, 20 April, 1673, DUKE and DUCHESS of BUCCLEUCH, Earl and Countess of Dalkeith, Baron and Baroness of Whitechester and Eskdale, in Scotland, with remainder to their heirs male, in default of which to the heirs whatever descending from the duke's body, succeeding in the estate and Earldom of Buccleuch. His grace's honours, however, (Scottish and English), were forfeited, upon the execution of the duke, 15 July, 1685; while those enjoyed by the duchess in her own right (Dukedom of Buccleuch by creation, and Earldom of Buccleuch by inheritance) remained unaffected by the attainder. The surviving issue of this union were JAMES, Earl of Dalkeith, and HENRY, created Earl of Deloraine, Viscount Hermitage, and Baron Scott, in 1706, which honours became extinct, with the 4th earl, in 1807. The duchess m. 2ndly, Charles, 3rd Lord Cornwallis, and, at her demise, 6 Feb. 1732, was s. by her grandson, FRANCIS, as 2nd duke (son of the Earl of Dalkeith, by Henrietta, 2nd dau. of Laurence Hyde, Earl of Rochester.) His grace obtained a restoration of the Earldom of Doncaster and Barony of Scott of Tynedale, the English honours of his grandfather, the Duke of Monmouth, by act of parliament, in 1743. Lineage.

The EARLDOM OF BUCHAN, a dignity of great antiquity in Scotland, can be traced to the time of WILLIAM THE LION, when FREGUS, Earl of Buchan, made a grant of a mark of silver annually to the Abbey of Aberbrothwick. The only dau. and heiress of this feudal chieftain, MARJORY, Countess of Buchan, m. in the beginning of the twelfth century,

WILLIAM CUMYV, who then became, in right of that lady, Earl of Buchan, and the earldom remained in his family until forfeited by

JOHN CUMYV, 3rd Earl of Buchan, in 1308, whereupon it reverted to the crown, and was conferred by King ROBERT II. on his third son,

SIR ALEXANDER STEWART, who had also a proportion of the lands of the Cumyns. On the demise of this nobleman without legitimate issue, in 1394, the Earldom of Buchan passed to (the eldest son of his brother, Robert, Duke of Albany, by his second wife, Muriella, dau. of Sir William de Keith, grand marischal of Scotland) his nephew,

JOHN STEWART. This nobleman, a great military character, attained high reputation, by the defeat of the English, under the Duke of Clarence, at Beauge,* in Anjou, 22 March, 1421. In this engagement the Duke of Clarence was slain, having been stunned and unhorsed by Buchan himself, with a blow of his mace. For this exploit CHARLES VII. conferred upon him the sword of constable of France. The earl fell at the battle of Verneuil, 17 Aug. 1424; leaving, by his wife, Lady Elizabeth Douglas, an only dau., Margaret, who m. George, 2nd Lord Seton. At his lordship's decease the Earldom of Buchan devolved, according to the limitation, upon Murdac, Duke of Albany, and reverted to the crown, by the forfeiture of that nobleman, the next year. The dignity was next conferred upon

JAMES STEWART, called Hearty James, 2nd son of Sir James Stewart, the Black Knight of Lorn, by JANE, Queen of Scotland, mother (by James I.) of JAMES II.; and by his male descendants the Earldom of Buchan was enjoyed until the decease of

JOHN, 3rd earl, who was s. by (the dau. of his eldest son, John, master of Buchan, killed at the battle of Pinkie, 10 Sept. 1547) his granddau.,

CHRISTIAN STEWART, Countess of Buchan, who espousing Robert Douglas, 2nd son of Sir Robert Douglas, of Lochleven, that gentleman became, in her right,

ROBERT DOUGLAS, Earl of Buchan. His lordship was s. by his son,

JAMES DOUGLAS, who was served heir to his father, in 1583, under the designation of "James Douglas," and to his mother in 1588, as James, now "Earl of Buchan." His lordship d. in 1601, and left an only dau.,

MARY DOUGLAS, Countess of Buchan. The heiress m. James Erskine, eldest son, by his 2nd wife, of John, Earl of Marr, lord high treasurer of Scotland, who thereupon assumed the Earldom of Buchan. On the resignation of which, with consent of her tutors, she being then under age, a Royal charter was granted, 22 March, 1617, of the lands forming the Earldom of Buchan, but was conceived not legally to carry the honours, because even if they were resigned, the acceptance had not the signature of the sovereign. This charter was taken to the countess and her husband, the said James Erskine, and the longest liver of them in conjoint life-rent, and the heirs male of their bodies, whom failing, to the said James Erskine and his nearest and lawful heirs male and assigns whatsoever The said

JAMES ERSKINE, Earl of Buchan, was one of the lords of the bedchamber to CHARLES I., and resided much in England. His first countess died in 1628, leaving, with two daus., an only son, James. The earl m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Philip Knevett, of Buckenham, in Norfolk. He d. in 1640, and was s. by his only son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl of Buchan, (of the Erskines,) who m. Lady Marjory Ramsay, eldest dau. of William, 1st Earl of Dalhousie, and dying in 1664, was s. by his only son,

WILLIAM, 3rd earl. He executed, 8th April, 1677, a procuratory for resigning his honours, &c., on failure of his own heirs male, to his cousin, Henry Erskine, 3rd Lord Cardross,* but this procuratory falling by his death, and never used, need not be considered. At the revolution the earl adhered to JAMES, and took up arms in his cause, for which he was committed prisoner to the castle of Stirling, where he d. unm. in 1698, without being brought to trial. On his death a discussion arose in the Scottish parliament, in a question of precedence, between the Earl of Glencairn and Lord Cardross, who there appeared as Earl of Buchan, producing a charter, not in the year 1617, but in the year 1625, being a territorial charter, when the parliament allowed Lord Cardross to be called in the rolls of parliament as Earl of Buchan, reserving to the Earl of Glencairn and others to quarrel his title and precedence as accords. Sir Colin Mackenzie, of Kilcoy, Baronet, the lineal heir and descendant of Sir Simon Fraser, of Inverlallochy, the eldest son of Lady Marjory Erskine, daughter of James, 7th Earl of Buchan, lately laid claim to the honour and dignity

* LORDSHIP OF CARDROSS.

JAMES ERSKINE, 7th Earl of Marr, K.G., high-treasurer of Scotland, obtained from James VI., 27 March, 1604, the munificent grant of all the lands, baronies, &c., which belonged to the priory of Inchmahomo, and the abbeys of Dryburgh and Cambuskenneth, all erected and incorporated into a free lordship and barony, to be called the LORDSHIP OF CARDROSS; which was confirmed by act of parliament, passed 19 July, 1606, conferring upon the earl the honour and precedence of a LORD OF PARLIAMENT, as BARON CARDROSS. And, by a subsequent charter, 10 June, 1610, his lordship acquired the right of assigning the said barony to whomsoever he thought proper. The earl m. 1st, Anne, 2nd dau. of David, 2nd Lord Drummond; and had an only son, JAMES, who inherited the Earldom of Marr. He m. 2ndly, Lady Mary Stewart, 2nd dau. of Esme, Duke of Lennox, and had, with other issue,

JAMES, who m. Mary Douglas, Countess of Buchan, as in the text, and became EARL OF BUCHAN.

HENRY, who m. Margaret, only dau. of Sir James Balgaden; and dying before his father, left a son, DAVID, of whom presently, as 2nd Lord Cardross.

Charles (Sir), of Alva, whose sons,

SIR CHARLES ERSKINE, of Alva, and JAMES ERSKINE, and their issue, are in remainder to the Earldom of Buchan.

The Earl of Marr, exercising the power with which he was invested, made an assignment to his 2nd son, the above-mentioned HENRY ERSKINE, dated 30 Jan. 1617-18, which was ratified by charter, 13 March, in the same year, of the BARONY OF CARDROSS; but that gentleman dying before the earl, the said barony, at his lordship's decease, in 1634, devolved upon his grandson,

DAVID ERSKINE, 2nd Lord Cardross. This nobleman m. 1st, in 1645, Anne, 6th dau. of Sir Thomas Hope, Bart. of Craighall, by whom he had a son, HENRY, his successor, and a dau., Margaret, m. to William Cunningham, of Boquhan. His lordship m. 2ndly, Mary, youngest dau. of Sir George Bruce, of Carnock, and had several children. From one of whom, the Hon. Col. John, descends DAVID ERSKINE, Esq. of Cardross, as well as JOHN ERSKINE, Esq. of Yenlaw, co. Peebles. He d. in 1671, and was s. by his son, HENRY, 3rd Lord Cardross, who m. 3 March, 1671, Catherine, youngest sister and co-heir of Sir William Stewart, of Kirkehill, and dying in 1693, was s. by his eldest son, of the Earldom of Buchan and Barony of Auchterhouse, on the ground of his being the nearest heir to the ancient feudal earldom, and that he could not be excluded from such, his right by blood, by any recognition of the Scottish parliament of a title in Lord Cardross evidently inept. But on a strict examination of the records in Scotland, it appeared that Lady Marjory Fraser, who had been designated by all the peerage writers of the day to have been the eldest dau. of her father, was truly the second dau.; the eldest dau. being Lady Margaret, who became the second wife of Mr. Douglas, of Brighton, in the co. of Forfar, and therefore Sir Colin withdrew his claim.

DAVID, 4th Lord Cardross, who s. his cousin, as EARL OF BUCHAN.

* The Maréchal De-la-Fayette, ancestor of the late patriotic general of that name, commanded the French at the battle, which, however, was chiefly gained by the Scotch.

DAVID ERSKINE, 4th Lord Cardross, whom the parliament of Scotland allowed to be called in the rolls of parliament, as (4th) EARL OF BUCHAN, was constituted lord-lieutenant of the cos. Stirling and Clackmannan, upon the accession of GEORGE I., and he was chosen one of the representative peers in 1715, 1722, and 1737. He m. 1st, 1697, Frances, dau. and heiress of the Hon. 11. Henry, of Amondell, co. Linlithgow; b. 1 Nov. 1746. O.S., who was called to the Scottish bar in 1766, and soon attained that first-rate practice so justly the meed of his transcendent talents. He was appointed king's advocate in 1783, but resigned the office in the same year, on the change of administration. He was elected dean of the faculty of advocates in 1786, and appointed by the Whigs, in 1806, king's advocate, an office which he again relinquished on the retirement of his party from power. Mr. Erskine was distinguished by the amiability of his private character, the profundity of his legal knowledge, and the brilliancy of his wit. He m. 1st, 30 March, 1773, Christian, only child and heiress of George Fullerton, Esq. of Broughton Hall, by whom (who d. in 1804) he had issue,

The earl d. 1 Dec. 1767, and was s. by his eldest son,

DAVID-STEWART, 6th Earl of Buchan, of the house of Erskine, but 11th from the period the earldom was conferred upon James Stewart, son of the Black Knight of Lorn. His lordship was b. 1 June, 1742. Lineage

The surname originally of this family, as proved by existing records, was ST. PIERRE, and its founder in England, a Norman, attaching himself to the fortunes of HUGH LUFUS, Earl of Chester, the CONQUEROR'S nephew, obtained from his patron a portion of the barony of Malpas, with other lands in the palatine, of which the manor of Bunbury made a part. The name of St. Pierre became, however, extinct in the beginning of the 15th century, and the designation of Bunbury, having been previously adopted by the descendant of the first St. Pierre, has since been retained. The immediate progenitor of the present family,

ALEXANDER DE BUNBURY, feudal Lord of Bunbury, was living in the reign of HENRY III., and from him descended, DAVID DE BUNBURY, Lord of Bunbury, living temp EDWARD II., who m. the only child and heiress of David de Stannish, or Stanney, and thus acquired the lordship of Stanney, near the city of Chester, which has remained ever since in the family. BURDETT.

BURDETT, SIR ROBERT, of Foremark, co. Derby; b. 26 April, 1796; a field-officer in the army; s. as 6th bart. on the death of his father, 23 Jan. 1844.

Lineage.

HUGH DE BURDETT, one of the Norman soldiers of the Conquest, was father of

WILLIAM BURDETT, who became Lord of Louseby, co. Leicester, and founded the priory at Ancote, near Sockington, co. Warwick, temp. HENRY II. His lineal descendant,

SIR ROBERT BURDETT, Knt., m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir Gerard de Camville, with whom he obtained the manor of Arrow, in Warwickshire, where he settled. This gentleman represented the co. of Warwick in parliament in the 14th of EDWARD II., and in three years afterwards was one of the commissioners for the goal delivery at Warwick. He subsequently represented Leicestershire, and afterwards the co. Warwick again. He d. in 1333, and we pass to his great-great-grandson,

SIR NICOLAS BURDETT, Knt., who fell at the battle of Pontoise, in 1440. This gentleman was chief butler of Normandy, and governor of Eureux: by his wife, Joan, cousin and heiress of Henry Bruin, he obtained the manor of Bramcote, in Warwickshire, and left a son and heir,

THOMAS BURDETT, Esq. of Arrow, a person of great note and figure in the co. Warwick, who fell a victim to his attachment to the Duke of Clarence, temp. EDWARD IV. Having intemperately wished the horns of a white buck, which he had heard that the king had killed in his park of Arrow, in the belly of the monarch's adviser, the opportunity was seized to arraign, convict, and execute him for high treason; and for uttering these unguarded words he was beheaded in 1477. After his death, a great contest for his manor of Arrow and other estates arose between Richard Burdett, his son, by Agnes, dau. of John Waldeif; a former wife, that had been, from nearness of kindred, divorced from him in 1464; and John Burdett, his son, by Margaret, dau. of John Rodney; for the said Thomas (by licence from the crown) had alienated his lands to his younger son; of the injustice of which he became afterwards so sensible that, as he was drawn from the Tower to the place of execution, epying the elder son at Westcheap, over against Sir Thomas Beckett's Hospital, he caused himself to be stayed, and there asked his said son's forgiveness, and acknowledging the wrong he had done him, concluded that to be the cause of God's vengeance then against himself. But in the subsequent lawsuit, John, the younger son, succeeded, for Margaret, his mother, held her estate therein for life, and became the wife of Thomas Woodhill; notwithstanding which, Richard Burdett prevailed with the said John, and also with the said Margaret and her husband, to levy a fine of the manor of Arrow, and other lands, and to give him possession thereof. The matter finally terminated by certain of the estates, including Arrow, passing to the dau. and heiress of Richard Burdett; and the remainder to the son and heir of JOHN, (himself, who had attained the honour of knighthood, dying before the decision,) namely,

THOMAS BURDETT, Esq. of Bramcote, who d. about the 31st of HENRY VIII., and was s. by his eldest son, (by Mary, dau. of Sir Robert Throckmorton, Knt.,)

ROBERT BURDETT, Esq., M.P. for the co. Warwick, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Cockaine, Knt. of Ashburne, co. Derby, and d. in 1548. The grandson of this marriage,

Derby, which seat has since been one of the chief places of residence of the family; by this lady he had, with other children, FRANCYS, his successor; ROBERT, a merchant and alderman of the city of London; and Catherine, m. to Sebright Replington, Esq. He was s. by his eldest son,

Lineage.

From an ancient pedigree, it would appear that this family is descended from Hugo de Burdett, lord of the manor of Louseby, in Leicestershire, a noble Norman, who came into England with WILLIAM the Conqueror, but at this distance of time, the connecting link cannot be distinctly traced. His son, Robert, m. Idonea, dau. and heir of Sir Robert de Ballol,* by Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir Robert de Denby, who m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir Robert de Holland,† the son of Sir Adam de Holland, by Maud, dau. of Gilbert de Notton.

Mary-Caroline.

Lineage.

According to ancient records, the Burgoynes were settled in Cambridgeshire and Bedfordshire at a very early period. There is an old tradition, that they held Sutton and Potton, under a rhyming grant from John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster:

"I, John of Gaunt,
Do give and do graunt
To Johnny Burgoyne,
And the heirs of his loyn,
Sutton and Potton,
Until the world's rotten."

The rhyme is of great antiquity, and the site of the former manor-house in Sutton Park is still called "John of Gaunt's Mount;" but it has been stated that the tradition as to the grant is without foundation; and it appears that the Duke of Lancaster's right to the manors in Potton and Sutton was contested by the Nevilles and the Latimers; it is, however, certain that all those manors eventually became vested in the Burgoynes.

ROBERT BURGOYNE, Esq., younger son of John Burgoyne, of Sutton, was one of the auditors of the Exchequer in the reign of HENRY VIII., and one of the commissioners appointed to take the surrenders of the monasteries, and had, in 1546, grants of the rectory, tithes, and all the lands of Wroxall, with other estates in the co. BURNETT.

BURNETT, SIR ALEXANDER, of Leys, co. Aberdeen; formerly in the East India Company's service; b. 17 Dec. 1789; s. his brother as 9th bart. in Feb. 1849.

Lineage.

It is believed that this family came from the south of Scotland with ROBERT BRUCE, about whose person an ancestor held an office, and that he received a grant of lands from that monarch in consideration of his services.

According to Sir George Mackenzie, the Burnetts of Leys carry the hunting horn, in base, with a highlander in a hunting garb, and a greyhound, for supporters, to show that they are the king's foresters in the north.

ALEXANDER BURNARD (as the name was originally written) obtained a charter, now in the possession of the family, from ROBERT BRUCE, of the lands of Killenach, Clerach, and the six merk land of the two Cardneys, in the shire of Aberdeen, dated the 18th of that king's reign.

ROBERT BURNETT, is the first who bore the designation 'of Leys;' from whom lineally descended

ALEXANDER BURNETT, of Leys, who m. Catherine, dau. of Alexander Gordon, Esq. of Lismore, and had six sons and seven daus. The 4th son, Robert Burnett, of Crimond, was constituted, by CHARLES II., one of the senators of the College of Justice, and assumed the title of Lord Crimond. I. SIR THOMAS BURNETT, Knt. of Leys, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 21 April, 1626. This gentleman was, subsequently, a strenuous opponent of the measures of the court, and, in conjunction with the great Marquess of Montrose, an active covenanter. He retired eventually, however, into private life, and seems to have remained unmolested by both parties. Sir Thomas was s. at his decease by his grandson,

II. SIR ALEXANDER, who was s. by his only son,

III. SIR THOMAS. This gentleman was member of the Scottish parliament for the co. Kincardine, from 1703 until the final dissolution of that assembly, and distinguished himself by his zealous hostility to the measure of union. Lineage.

This family is of very remote antiquity, the name being a purely Saxon compound. It derives from Simon de Burrard, "qui venit in Angliam cum Conquestore;" and so early as the reign of HENRY II. we find, from the chartulary of the noble family of Hungerford, that Simon de Burrard, in right of his wife, Hawisia de Wroxeshalle, possessed the estate of Wroxeshalle. But the family has long resided in Hampshire, for in the reign of RICHARD II., we find John Burrard appointed (8 Dec. 1397) prior of the monastery of Christchurch, in that county, in the splendid cathedral of which place his remains lie entombed. In the reign of ELIZABETH, the family came into possession of the estate of Walthampton, on which they now reside. The present Sir George Burrard has obtained a royal grant of supporters.

JOHN STEWART, the founder of this family, was a natural son of King ROBERT II. There is a tradition that his mother's name was Letch. He is designed Sir John in Duncan Stewart's History of the Stewarts, and by Peerage writers, but the authority is not stated, and he is not so called in any contemporary document. About the year 1385, the king erected the islands of Bute, Arane, and Cumbræ, with their pertinents, into a county, and conferred the office of hereditary sheriff thereof on John Steuart, his son, with a considerable grant of land. This grant was subsequently confirmed by King ROBERT III., by charter, dated 11 Nov. 1400. He m. Jean, dau. of Sir John Semple,

* Of the daus., Grace was m. to Sir Edward Newenham; and Catherine, to John-Bowes Euston, Esq.

His lordship, who is a capt. R.N., inherited as 7th baron, at the decease of his cousin, 19 April, 1824.

Lineage.

The BYRONS deduce from the Conquest, when they appear to have been extensive proprietors in the co. York.

RALPH DE BYRON, at the time of the survey, held divers manors in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire. Amongst those in the latter county was HORSLEY, in the park of which stood a castle, called HORESTAN CASTLE, which became the chief seat of the early BYRONS. The grandson of Ralph,

HUGO DE BURON, feudal BARON OF HORESTAN, retiring, temp. HENRY III., from secular affairs, professed himself a monk, and held the hermitage of Kersale, belonging to the priory of Lenton. He left a son,

SIR ROGER DE BURON, from whom we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR RICHARD BYRON, Knt., who m. Joan, 2nd dan. of William de Colewick, of Colewick, co. Nottingham, by which alliance considerable estates came into the family. The grandson of this marriage,

SIR NICHOLAS BYRON, Knt. of Clayton, co. Lancaster, was s. by his elder son,

SIR JOHN BYRON, who received the honour of knighthood from HENRY VII., for the good services he had rendered that prince at Bosworth Field. This gentleman dying without issue, 3 May, 1488, was s. by his brother,

SIR NICHOLAS BYRON, who was made one of the knights of the Bath at the marriage of Prince Arthur, eldest son of HENRY VII., 11 Nov. 1501. He d. in 1503-4, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN BYRON, Knt. This gentleman had a grant, 23 May, 1540, of the PRIORY OF NEWSTEDS, with the manor of Papilwick, and rectory of the same, with all the closes about the priory, &c. His son,

SIR JOHN BYRON, K.B., was father of

SIR JOHN BYRON, K.B., who m. Anne, eldest dau. of Sir Richard Molyneux, Bart., and had,

JOHN, his successor.

Richard, of whom hereafter.

Robert (Sir), col. of foot, on the royal side, during the civil wars.

Philip (Sir), who, after many signal services in Yorkshire, was killed at the head of his regiment, in the general storm of York, by the parliamentary army, in 1644.

Thomas (Sir), who commanded the Prince of Wales's regiment, under the Earl of Northampton, at the battle of Hopton Heath, 19 March, 1643-3, and received a wound in the thigh, by which he was put hors de combat. He d. at Oxford, 9 Dec. 1643.

There were five other sons, and a dau., Mary, m. to Sir Thomas Lucas. Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN BYRON, K.B., M.P. for the town of Nottingham, in the reign of JAMES I., and for the co. Nottingham in that of CHARLES I., a faithful adherent of, and gallant officer under, the latter unfortunate prince. Sir John commanded the corps of reserve at the battle of Edge Hill; and the victory of Roundaway Down, 5 July, 1643, wherein Sir William Waller was routed, was chiefly owing to his skill and valour, having, at the head of his regiment, charged Sir Arthur Haslrigg's cuirassiers, and after a sharp conflict, in which Sir Arthur received many wounds, compelled that impenetrable regiment (as Lord Clarendon writes) to fly. Sir John Byron, having given such proofs of his courage, and his six valiant brothers at that time following his loyal example, he was, in consideration thereof, advanced, 24 Oct. 1643, to the dignity of a Baron of the realm, by the title of LORD BYRON, of Rockdale, in the co. palatine of Lancaster, with limitation, in default of his own male issue, to each of his brothers. His lordship m. twice; but dying in 1652, issueless, the barony devolved upon his brother,

RICHARD, 2nd baron. This nobleman received the honour of knighthood from CHARLES I. He was one of the valiant colonels at the battle of Edge Hill, and subsequently governor of Appulty Castle, co. Westmorland. Lloyd, who wrote the lives of the loyalists, says, he deserves to be chronicled for his government of Newark and many surprises of the enemy. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of George Rossell, Esq. of Ratcliffe, in Nottinghamshire; and dying in 1679, was s. by his only surviving son,

This gentleman, when a midshipman on board the Wager, one of Lord Anson's circumnavigating squadron, was cast away upon a desolate island in the South Seas, and after enduring five years of great hardships there, returned at length to England, and attained the highest rank in his gallant profession. She d. Nov. 1851, aged 67. Captain Byron m. 2ndly, Catherine Gordon, (lineally descended from the Earl of Huntly, and the Princess Jane, dau. of JAMES II. of Scotland;) and by her left an only son,

His lordship d. 19 May, 1798, and was s. by his great-nephew, (refer to descendants of Admiral the Hon. John Byron, 3rd son of the 4th lord,)

GEORGE-GORDON, 6th baron; b. 22 Jan. 1788; who, through his mother, claimed descent from the royal house of Stuart. Illustrious however, as the ancestry of this distinguished nobleman, were, his own transcendent genius flung his hereditary honours into immeasurable shade. The greatest poet his country had ever produced, a disinterested patriot, an ardent lover of freedom, his lordship,

It might be presumed, had a long and splendid course before him; but the mind of man penetrates not the vista of futurity, and this nobleman is a remarkable instance of the insufficiency of wealth, honours, genius, to secure human happiness. Untoward circumstances entirely marred the tranquillity of his private life, while his public actions were canvassed with a malignancy which nothing he had ever done, said, or written, could have warranted; eventually he fell a victim in the public cause. Having enthusiastically embarked in the affairs of Greece, and engaged personally in the struggle, his lordship died from mental and bodily exertion, at Missolonghi, 19 April, 1824, in the 37th year of his age. Lord Byron m. 3 Jan. 1815, Anne-Isabella, only child of Sir Ralph Milbank Noel, Bart., and co-heir of the BARONY OF WENTWORTH, (through her late mother, the Hon. Judith Noel, eldest dau. of Edward, 1st Viscount Wentworth, and co-heir of her brother, Thomas, 2nd Viscount and 6th Baron Wentworth, a barony created by writ in 1529,) by whom he had one dau., ADA-AUGUSTA, b. 10 Dec. 1815; m. in 1835, to William, Earl of Lovelace. A separation from Lady Byron took place soon after the birth of his child, and Lord Byron almost immediately afterwards departed from his native country, to which he never returned. His lordship assumed, on his marriage, the additional surname of NOEL, before that of Byron. At his decease, the barony devolved upon his first cousin, GEORGE-ANSON, present baron. (Revert to Admiral Byron, 2nd son of the 4th lord.)

Lineage.

The Pratts have been of consideration in different parts of England, as well as in Ireland, from a very remote period, some of them of knightly degree; and those of Berkshire were baronets. The family of which we are now treating was settled at Carewell Priory, co. Devon, about the middle of ELIZABETH'S reign, but the estate was lost by

RICHARD PRATT, during the civil wars, who was compelled, by the difficulties in which those disastrous times had involved him, to dispose of his paternal inheritance. This Richard Pratt was grandfather of

LORD-CHIEF-JUSTICE SIR JOHN PRATT, Knt., who represented the borough of Midhurst in parliament, from 1700 until his elevation to the chiefship of the Court of King's Bench, 26 Oct. 1714. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of the Rev. Henry Gregory, rector of Middleton Stoney, co. Stafford, by whom he had two surviving sons and four daus. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of the Rev. Hugh Wilson, and had four sons and three daus. His lordship d. 24 Feb. 1794, and was s. by the eldest son of his first marriage,

JOHN PRATT, Esq. of the Wilderness, co. Kent, M.P.; who m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Geoffrey Jeffreys, Knt. of Brecknock Priory, co. Brecknock, by whom he had, with a dau., (who d. in 1807,) a son,

Mr. Pratt m. 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of the Hon. Robert Tracy, of Coscomb, co. Gloucester, one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, and left a son, ROBERT, M.P., of Coscomb, a master in Chancery, who d. s. p. in 1776.

The third son, by his second marriage, of the Lord-Chief-Justice Pratt,

CHARLES PRATT, Esq., an eminent lawyer, was chosen in 1759, recorder of Bath, and, the same year, appointed attorney-general. In Dec. 1761, he was constituted chief-justice of the Court of Common Pleas, and 16 July, 1765, raised to the peerage, by the title of Lord Camden, of Camden Place, co. Kent. His lordship was subsequently, upon the resignation of the Earl of Northampton, in 1766, appointed LORD-HIGH-CHANCELLOR of Great Britain; in 1784, he was constituted lord-president of the council; and, 18 May, 1786, advanced to a viscounty and earldom, by the titles of Viscount Bayham and EARL CAMDEN. Lord Camden, while presiding in the Court of Common Pleas, acquired high reputation for independence, legal knowledge, and impartiality, particularly in the memorable conflict between the celebrated John Wilkes and the government of that period. Mr. Wilkes having been committed to the Tower upon a general warrant from the secretary of state, his lordship had the prisoner immediately brought up by habeas corpus to the Court of Common Pleas, and after laying down the law in a luminous speech, released him from confinement, 6 May, 1765. The chief-justice's conduct upon this occasion, and during the subsequent proceedings in the same cause, procured him the freedom of the city of London, accompanied by a request that he would allow his picture to be painted for the Guildhall, where it was afterwards hung up. His lordship was presented also with the freedom of Dublin, and of almost every other corporation in the kingdom. He m. Elizabeth, dau. and sole heir of Nicholas Jeffreys, Esq. of the Priory, co. Sarah, m. to Nicholas Price, Esq. of Saintfield, co. Down, and d. in 1817.

His lordship d. 18 April, 1794, and was s. by his son,

JOHN-JEFFREYS, 2nd earl, b. 11 Feb. 1759, who was created Earl of Brecknock and MARQUESS CAMDEN on the 7th Sept. 1812. His lordship m. 31 Dec. 1785, Frances, dau. and heir of William Molesworth, Esq. of Wanbury, co. Devon, and by her ladyship (who d. 7 July, 1829) had issue,

* Although Lord Camoys has taken his place in the House of Lords as a baron of the reign of RICHARD II., the connexion between Thomas, Lord Camoys, his immediate ancestor, and the former Lords Camoys, is very clearly made out and established. The House of Lords, in the late cases, has admitted the precedence from the date of the first sitting, and not from that of the first writ, which accounts for the place taken by Lord Camoys.

WARD III.; but he was never summoned to parliament. He died without surviving issue, 46 EDWARD III., having settled all his estates on his nephew and heir, SIR THOMAS DE CAMOYS, of Broadwater, in the co. Scots Fusilier-guards.

Henrietta-Dundas, m. 1 Sept. 1832, to John-James Allen, Esq. of Errol Park, co. Perth.
Elizabeth-Baillie.

His lordship has assumed the additional surname of HALDANE, that of his maternal grandmother.

Lineage.

The family of DUNCAN of Lundie is of remote antiquity: it was originally designated of Seaside, and there is an authenticated heraldic tradition which accounts for the crest, a dismantled ship, now borne over the arms of Camperdown. A member of the family, who lived some two hundred years ago, having been supercargo on board a vessel bound from Norway to his native place, Dundee, was overtaken by a tremendous storm, in which the ship became almost a complete wreck, and the crew were reduced to the utmost distress. Contrary, however, to all expectations, they were enabled to navigate their crazy, crippled bark into port, and the parents of the thus fortunately rescued son immediately adopted the crest alluded to, in commemoration of the dangers their heir had so providentially escaped from.

ALEXANDER DUNCAN, Esq. of Lundie, co. Angus, m. Isabella, dau. of Sir Peter Murray, Bart. of Auchtertyre, and had issue, ALEXANDER, his successor.

WILLIAM, an eminent physician in London, who was created a Baronet 14 Aug. 1764, having been previously appointed physician-extraordinary to the king. Sir William m. Lady Mary Tufton, eldest dau. of Sackville, Earl of Thanet, but d. s. p., when the baronetcy expired.

Mr. Duncan was s. by his elder son,

ALEXANDER DUNCAN, Esq. of Lundie, who m. HELENA HALDANE, of Glencagles, co. Perth, and had issue,

ADAM, of whom presently.

Catherine, m. to James Haldane, Esq. of Alrthrey, co. Stirling.

Margaret, m. to William Tait, Esq.; and d. 27 Dec. 1818.

The younger son,

ADAM DUNCAN, having adopted the naval profession, entered into that service about the year 1760, under Robert Haldane, then captain of the Shoreham frigate: in three years afterwards, we find young Duncan a midshipman, on board the Centurion, of 50 guns, a ship ordered to be equipped to receive the broad pendant of Commodore Keppel, who was appointed commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean station. In 1755, Mr. Duncan obtained his lieutenancy, and was appointed to the Norwich, a fourth-rate, commanded by Capt. Barrington. On 21 Sept. 1759, he was advanced to the rank of commander, and in the year 1761 made post-captain, and appointed to the Valiant, of 74 guns, in which ship, under the broad pendant of Admiral Keppel, he acquired considerable reputation at the capture of the Havannah. In 1789, Captain Duncan was promoted to be rear-admiral of the Blue, and, passing through the intermediate grades, was appointed, 14 Feb. 1799, admiral of the White. During the greater part of this interval, however, (up to the year 1795,) singular as it may appear to posterity, the great merits of Admiral Duncan continued either unknown, or at least unregarded. Frequently did he solicit a command, and as frequently did he experience disappointment. It has even been reported that this brave man had it once in contemplation to retire altogether from the service, on a very honourable civil employment, connected with the navy; at length, however, the cloud burst, and Admiral Duncan was constituted, in 1795, commander-in-chief in the North Seas. He accordingly hoisted his flag on board the Prince George, of 98 guns, but afterwards removed to the Venerable, of 74. In this command he had the honour of achieving a splendid victory off Camperdown, 11 Oct. 1797, over the Dutch fleet, under Admiral de Winter; and was elevated to the peerage, 20 Oct. 1797, in the dignities of Baron Duncan of Lundie, and VISCOUNT DUNCAN of Camperdown. His lordship had a grant, at the same time, of a pension of £3000 per annum for the life of himself and his next two successors in the peerage. He m. Henrietta, 2nd dau. of the Rt. Hon. By Nesta, his wife, dau. of Rhys ap Tudor Mawr, King of South Wales, whose dower was the Castle of Carew, he had three sons, MAURICE, WILLIAM, and DAVID: from Maurice, the eldest, descended the FITZGERALDS, DUKES OF LEINSTER, and OSBORNE FITZGERALD, Lord of Ynys-y-Maengwyn, ancestor of, I. the VAUGHANS of Cors-y-gedol, co. Northumberland; Baron Dacre, of Gillesland, and co-heir to a moiety of the Barony of Greystock, b. 18 April 1802; s. his father, as 7th earl, 7 Oct. 1848. His lordship is lord-lieut. of the East Riding of Yorkshire, First Commissioner of Woods and Forests, &c.

Lineage.

The city of Carlisle was the seat of an earldom so far back as the 14th century, for in that era we find, ANDREW DE HARCIA, Baron Harcla, governor of the Castle of Carlisle, and warden of the marches, an eminent soldier in the Scottish wars, raised by King EDWARD I., for his victory over Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, at Boroughbridge, to the dignity of EARL OF CARLISLE by the girding of a sword, accompanied by a charter, in which it was covenanted, that for the better support of the dignity, he should have to himself, and the heirs of his body, lands and rents in the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland, of a thousand marks per annum value, and five hundred marks per annum value more in the marches of Wales, and until such provision should be made, that he should receive a thousand marks per annum out of the Exchequer. He was subsequently, however, tried and convicted as a traitor, and adjudged, first, to be degraded, and then hung by the neck; which judgment was executed 3 March, 1322, when all his honours became forfeited. More than three centuries and a quarter intervened before the earldom of Carlisle was revived, when it was conferred upon a branch of the Howards, springing from Lord William Howard, 2nd son of Thomas, 4th Duke of Norfolk, which

LORD WILLIAM was restored in blood, by act of parliament, in 1603, and having m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas, and sister and co-heir of George, Lord Dacre of Gillesland, became in her right proprietor of Naworth Castle, in Cumberland, the ancient seat of the Dacre family. His lordship acquired also, in the same manner, Hinderkelle, the site of Castle Howard. He had, inter alios,

THOMAS GIBSON, who flourished under JAMES IV., and is particularly named amongst the barons of the co. Fife, was

I. SIR ALEXANDER GIBSON, one of the most eminent lawyers of his time, whom JAMES VI. presented personally to the court as principal clerk of Session, and remained to witness his inauguration. In 1621, he was constituted senator of the College of Justice, and in a few years afterwards advanced to the lord-presidency of the Court of Session, which office he enjoyed during the remainder of his life. In Feb. 1628, his lordship was created a Baroness of Nova Scotia, and obtained, with the dignity, a grant of land, six miles in length and three in breadth, in Nova Scotia. Sir Alexander m. It is also recorded that he and his predecessors were cup-bearers to the kings of Scotland, and were accustomed to bear a golden cup upon the breast of the eagle, as an armorial mark of their office. In 1547, he was appointed one of the senators of the College of Justice. In the next year, he was accredited ambassador-extraordinary to England, to treat for the redemption of the Earl of Huntly, the lord-chancellor, who had been taken prisoner at the battle of Pinkie, and received the honour of knighthood on his return. In 1561, he was sent ambassador to France; and in 1583, was one of the commissioners to arrange conditions for the peace of the Marches. Sir John d. in 1665, and was s. by his eldest son,

By unremitting efforts, Sir James brought about the sale of the forfeited estates, not only to the great advantage of his own family, but to the benefit of many others similarly situated. SIR ROBERT DALZELL, Knt., a faithful adherent of King DAVID BRUCE during his captivity, obtained a grant of the Barony of Selkirk, in 1365. From this Sir Robert lineally descended,

ROBERT DALZELL, of that ilk, who was killed by Lord Maxwell, in 1508. His grandson,

SIR ROBERT DALZELL, of Dalzell, attached himself to the fortunes of the unhappy MARY of Scotland, and fought under her banner at Langside. He was s. by his son,

This nobleman, subsequently regent of Scotland, was one of the first persons honoured with a DUKEDOM, in the Scottish peerage. In 1396, the heir apparent to the throne having been created DUKE OF ROTHSAY, the Regent FIFE was at the same time raised to the DUKEDOM OF ALBANY. His grace's next son,

SIR JAMES STUART, called James the Gross, upon being apprised of the imprisonment of his father by JAMES I. flew to arms, and, with the aid of the Bishop of Argyll, raising a band of Highland freebooters, assaulted and burnt the town of Dumbarton, and put Sir James Stuart, of Dundonald, natural son of ROBERT II., governor of the castle, to the sword, 3 May, 1424. For these acts of violence he was proclaimed a felon, and forced to seek an asylum in Ireland, whence he never afterwards returned, but d. there in 1451. His eldest son,

ANDREW STUART, was brought over from Ireland by JAMES II., and created, in 1459, Lord Avandale; he was afterwards chancellor of Scotland, and dying s.p. in 1488, was s. by his nephew,

Lineage.

Most of the names which have been of note and nobility in this country, says Camden, are derived from localities situate in Normandy; as instances of which he mentions D'Arcy, Devereux, Gournay, Cayly, D'Aubigny, &c. The place, Cally, (Cailleum), from which this family takes its name, is in the arrondissement of Rouen, a few miles to the north-east of that town, and in the "Ballivium Calet," or bailiwick of Caux. Here there was a fortress called "Castellum Cailleii,"* which was held by a baronial tenure, as the "Honour (or barony) de Cally."

No family in England can claim a more ancient or more illustrious male descent than this, among the most distinguished of the Norman families which accompanied WILLIAM the Conqueror to England—by the fiefs it held at that epoch in Normandy, the family of De Cailli must have been of baronial rank in that country for some generations before the Conquest; and if Guillaume de Cailli (stated, in Domesday, to be tenant in chief of certain manors in Berkshire) be, as has been supposed, William Fitzosborne, cousin of the Conqueror, and his viceroy in England during his absence in Normandy, this family would claim, of course, direct and immediate descent from ROLLO. It would seem, at all events, clear, that it was of sufficient importance, while it established one or two influential branches in England at the time of the Conquest, at the same time to preserve for itself, as will appear, an equally influential position in Normandy subsequent to the Conquest.

William de Cailli, above mentioned, appears to have died without issue, and it is from Humphrey de Cailli, his brother, that the Cayleys of Norfolk and Yorkshire descend. To Humphrey, according to Domesday, were allotted, at the Conquest, the lands of Massingham, and the hundred of Brodercross, &c. But it is of the Norman branch that we must proceed to render some account. But first we should give an extract from the Roman de Rou, descriptive of the loyalty of the Sire de Cailli, who accompanied WILLIAM to the battle of Hastings:—

"Mielz voleient iloc morir,
Ke a lor dreit signor faillir,
Cil de Saint Sever e de Cailleie,
E il Sire de Semaille."

Rather then and there had died,
Than desert their liege's side,
The Lords of St. Sever and Cally,
And the Lord, too, of Semally.

Osborne de Cailli appears to have been in possession of that barony either immediately before or immediately subsequent to the Conquest, probably father of Humphrey and of William FitzOsborne.

Osborne, son of Osborne de Cally, obtained the Honour (Barony) of Preaux (Pratella.) He calls himself, in a deed of gift to "L'Abbaye de la Trinite," "Ego Osbernus De Pratellis, filius Osberni de Cailleio." From him descended the noble and distinguished family "Des Preaux," in France.

The annotator of the Roman de Rou observes on the line—

"De joste il cil de Praelis."
Near him the lord of Preaux—

"Il y a plusieurs communes de ce nom en Normandie, mais il ne peut-etre question ici que de celle qui se trouve dans l'arrondissement de Rouen, et dont les seigneurs ont tenu un rang si distingué dans les quatorzième et quinziesime siècles. Cette maison qui a en l'honneur de s'allier aux maisons souveraines de l'Angleterre et de France, n'était qu'une branche cadette des seigneurs de Cally, qui venait de s'en détacher a l'époque même ou Wace écrivait."*

John des Preaux was a favourite minister of RICHARD I. and JOHN. His brother, Sire William des Preaux, saved the life of RICHARD, in Palestine:—"After the siege and conquest of Ascalon, during RICHARD's stay at Joppa, an adventure befel him which had like to have proved fatal to him, and from which he was delivered by a sort of miracle. One day, being tired with hunting, as he lay asleep under a tree, with only six companions about him, he was roused by the sudden approach of some Saracen horse, who were near the place where he slept. As they were but few in number, he had no manner of dread upon him, but immediately mounting his horse, rode after them, which they perceiving, fled to fly before him, and by that means drew him into an ambuscade, where he saw himself surrounded on a sudden by a squadron of horse. He defended himself a long time with a wonderful bravery, without any thoughts of retreating, notwithstanding the number of his enemies. At length, four of his companions being killed, he was upon the point of being slain or taken, when William Despreaux, one of his company, cried out, in the Saracen language, 'I am the King of England!' At which words, those that were upon RICHARD, left him to have a hand in the taking of Despreaux, whom they imagined to be the king. This device gave RICHARD time to ride off full speed, whilst the Saracens, content with their success, conducted their prisoner to Saladin. Despreaux had the prudence not to discover himself till he came before the sultan, to whom he ingeniously confessed what he had done to save his master. Saladin commended his fidelity, and did him a great deal of honour; but as he was very sensible RICHARD would never suffer one that had done him so signal a service to remain long a captive, he set his ransom so high, that he procured ten emirs, or Saracen princes, in exchange for that faithful servant."†

Osborne de Cally m. Maud de Baudemont, and his son, Roger, m. Petronella de Vere.

We now proceed to give account of the English branch of this house. Of Humphrey we have already spoken.

SIMON DE CAILLY, Lord of Massingham, Crauwich, Brodercross, Hilburgh, &c., in Norfolk, son of Humphrey de Cally, m. Alice, and had two sons,

1. ROGER.

ii. Jordanus (Sir), who held a knight's fee in Norfolk under Hugh Bigod, Earl of Norfolk, and another fee in Warwickshire, under Robert Marmion.‡

The eldest son,

ROGER DE CAILLY, temp. HENRY II., gave to the priory of Castle Acre all his rents of eels at Massingham, viz., 1500, for the souls of Simon, his father, Alice, his mother, Joan (d'Anville) and Beatriz, his wives; and Alice, his mother, by her deed, sans date, had given a fishery called Poltsere, to find the house 1000 eels per annum. Roger de Cally was one of the most wealthy and influential barons of the time, for we find him selected to be one of the twelve sureties or hostages of HENRY II., and Henry, his son and heir, for the observance of their treaty with Theodore, Earl of Flanders, and his son and heir:—"Hujus conventionis, ex parte Regis & Henrici filii sui, obsides sunt: Ricardus de Humez Constabularius pro. C. marc. Reginaldus de Sancto Valerico pro. C. marc. Ricardus de Lucl pro. C. marc. Henricus filius Geroldi Camerarii per. C. marc. Bernard de Sancto Valerico pro. C. marc. Galfridus Comes pro. C. marc. Hugo Comes Cestre pro. C. marc."§ The above were all nobility of the greatest mark at the period. The name of Roger de Cailli also appears, in the same reign, as a witness to a deed, along with the Archbishop of Canterbury the Constable de Humez, and other distinguished nobles of the same date. His son,

JOHN DE CAILLY, as appears by a trial, was lord of Cranwich, temp. RICHARD I. He was also lord of Massingham, Bradenham, Oxburgh, Denver, Hillington, Hecham, Hildeburgh, &c. His dau., Beatrice, m. William de Butery. His son,

JOHN DE CAILLY, was lord of these manors, 4 JOHN, (1202.) He m. Margery, who, after his death, m. Michael de Poynings. His son was

ADAM DE CAILLY. In 17 JOHN there is a mandate to Hervey Belet, "That he do not receive into the king's peace, Hugh de Plais, Michael de Poynings, William de Stuteville, William de Mortimer, Adam de Cayly, and Robert de Clere, until the king otherwise commands. Witness the King, at Stamford, 28 Feb." Adam de Cailly paid 2s to plead before the king, in the case of waste in Bradenham forest, during the dower of Margerie, his mother, who was married to Michael de Poynings, she being to have only reasonable estovers of house bote, hedge bote, and wood to burn, by view of the forester of Adam de Kayly. By Mabel, his wife, he had, besides other sons,

- i. OSBERT (Sir), who m. Emma,* eldest dau. and co-heiress of Robert, Lord Tatshall,† of Bokenham, and had by her, Buckenham Castle and its large estates. This castle had been built by William, 1st Earl of Arundel, and was held by the service of being chief butler, or Pincerna, which William Albini had been at that time (HENRY I.) It came into the Tatshall family by Mabel; eldest dau. and co-heiress of William, 3rd Earl of Arundel, which Mabel m. Robert de Tatshall, grandfather of Emma. William, 1st Earl of Arundel, m. Queen ADELICIA, the widow of HENRY I., dau. of Godfrey, Count of Brabant and Lorraine, who was lineal descendant and representative of CHARLEMAGNE. Sir Osbert, temp. EDWARD I., claimed assize of bread and beer, view of frankpledge, &c., in the towns of Bradenham, Oxburgh, Cranwich, and Hilburgh, as having been possessed by his family from the time of the Conquest. By deed in HENRY III.'s time, "in honour of Christ and the Blessed Virgin, and all the saints, and for the souls of his father, Adam de Cayly, (Cailli), Mabel, his mother, and Margery, his grandmother, and all his family deceased, he settled on Hervey de Brokedish, and all his successors, in St. Margaret's chapel, at Hilburgh, (which chapel had been founded by Sir John de Cailly, and Margery, his wife,‡) for their performing of divine service there, the whole furlong or went of land called Flitwong, in Hilburgh field, joining that land he had before settled on the said chapel: witnesses to the deed, Sir Adam de Cayly, his son, Sir Thomas de Cayly, Simon de Cailly, and others. "To this deed," says Bloomfield,§ "hangs a large round seal, circumscribed, 'SIGILLVM OSBERTI DE KAILLI.' He is represented on a horse, running full speed, in armour, with a close helmet, his sword drawn in his hand, a shield of his arms, chequy only, and the trappings of his horse are also chequy. The reverse hath only a plain chequered shield, circumscribed, 'SIGILLM SECRETVM.' This seal being somewhat remarkable, I shall here add a word or two on that subject. Whether the Norman nobility brought the use of large seals into England, or found it here, is not very certain, but certain it is that they used them soon after their arrival; the most usual impressions being an armed man, or knight, on horseback, with a drawn sword, and the bearer's name round him; perhaps the large territories wherewith the CONQUEROR rewarded their services induced them to believe themselves to be advanced to so many principalities, and this conceit might incline them to rival their sovereign himself in the grandeur of their public instruments. Sometimes, instead of a horseman, we have a lion, leopard, greyhound, bird, or other device, part of the arms of the family, but always the person's own proper name encircling his paternal coat, or whatever other impression he was pleased to fancy. Seals as this, of a round form, generally betoken something of royalty in the possessor, and a more than ordinary extent of temporal jurisdiction, whereas, great ladies, under coverture, and bishops, and abbots, &c., commonly made use of oval and oblong ones. If the grantor's quality was mean, and his family too inconsiderable to bear arms, the conveyances were usually ratified under the authentic seal of some public officer or corporation, the reason being assigned, 'Quia sigillum meum penitus est ignotum, sigillum officialis de, &c. apud procuravi.' Nobility and other persons of rank and family had also their larger and lesser seals: the former, giving the impressions of their ancestors' coat; and the latter, oftentimes any little device without a scutcheon." Sir Osbert had two sons,

* Many of the authorities differ as to whether Adam or Osbert de Cailly married the heiress of the Albinis, and on this point would depend the claim of the present family on the barony of Buckenham.

† Eudo filius Spiruic, ancestor of the Tatshalls, is a well-known example of the sworn brotherhood in arms which occurs among the early Normans. He fraternized with Pinco, and they received a joint reward, comprising the barony of Tatshall, in Lincolnshire. Vide Wace, App.

- 1 ADAM (Sir). In the list of knights-bannerets, in the early part of EDWARD II.'s reign, appears, "Sire Adam de Cayll. Chekere de or e de goules a une bende ermine." In the 2nd year of EDW. III., he was ransomed from captivity in Scotland, as we see from the following:—"The King to Nicholas de la Beche, constable of the Tower. Whereas, Adam de Cailli, who was taken by our enemies in Scotland, and detained some time in the castle of Dunbar, has sent a certain letter of the Countess de la March, who is satisfied of the ransom of the said Adam, and has delivered him from prison, to be inspected by her brother, John-Randolph, Earl of Murray, now in the Tower, commands him to admit the said Adam to have access to the said earl for that purpose."* Sir Adam appears to have been by a former wife, and not by Emma de Tatshall, as his son, Edmund de Cailly, who inherited Denver, and other manors anciently belonging to the family, did not succeed to Buckenham.

- 2 THOMAS (Sir), of Buckenham Castle, and lord of the barony of Buckenham, to which he succeeded through his mother, Emma. He was, in 1308, summoned to perform military service against the Scots' muster at Carlisle, 22 Aug. In 1309, he was summoned to parliament as Baron de Cailly,† of Buckenham, to attend at Westminster, 27 April; again, in the same year, at Stamford; again, (8 Feb. 1310,) he is summoned at York; and at London, in 1311. In 1316, Dominus Thomas de Cayll is certified as lord of the townships of West Bradenham, Hilborough, Cranwich, Babingley, Wolverton, Buckenham, and Wymondham, all in Norfolk. In the 17th EDWARD II., Sir Thomas de Cailly was also seized of the fees of Holkham, Melton, Wrappingham, Bilford, Elyngham, Garboldesham, Reveshall, Apeton, Quidenham, Saxlingham, Sperham, Styvekyve, and Parva Melton; parts of Gatesthorp, Denton, Ikelington, Haulford, Hildeburgh, and East Bradenham, with advowson of the church and chapel in the two last places. Thomas, Lord Cayley, d. s. p., and all his large estates went to his sister, Lady Margerie Cayly, who m. Roger de Clifton, esquire to her brother. Her son, Sir Adam de Clifton, was afterwards summoned to parliament as Baron Clifton of Buckenham. There is an inquisition, 10 EDWARD II., apparently on the death of Thomas de Cailli, in which there is notice of his large possessions in Norfolk, and also of his having lands at Hunmanby and Fynehey, in Yorkshire. This is remarkable, as showing a very early connexion with Yorkshire.

ii. HUGO (Sir), of whose line we treat.

The second son,

SIR HUGO DE CAYLY, Knt. of Owby, m. Agnes, dau. and heir of Hamo de Hempsted. "In the 53rd HEN. III., he, with Agnes, his wife, conveyed to Alan, Knt. of Walsingham, 2½ acres of meadow; and in 14 EDWARD I. (1285,) the year after his death, Agnes was found to have view of frankpledge and assize of bread and beer here (Walsingham) and in Geistweyk."‡ Sir Hugh de Cayly held, in the reign of HENRY III., a quarter of a fee in the honour of Richmond, Yorkshire; and in the 14th EDWARD I. (1284,) a fine was levied between John, son of Hugh de Cayly, querent, William de Ormesby, and his wife, Agnes, tenants of land in Sufield Gunton, Antringham, and Falmingham, co. Norfolk, granted to John de Cayly, for the life of the said Agnes, late wife of Sir Hugh de Cayly. Sir Hugh's son,

JOHN CAYLY, Esq. of Owby, was s. by his son, SIR WILLIAM CAYLEY, Knt. of Owby. In the 10th EDWARD III. (1316,) he conveyed the manor of Hecham to Simon Kenyng, of Kenyngham. This manor of Hecham was in the possession of John de Cayley, about the year 1190. Sir William had two sons,

Lineage.

In the reign of ELIZABETH,

SIR TOBY CAULFEILD, a distinguished and gallant soldier, was employed by her majesty in Ireland, against the formidable O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone. In 1615, Sir Toby was appointed one of the council for the province of Munster; and, the next year, joined in commission with the Lord Deputy St. John and others, for parceling out the escheated lands in Ulster, to such British undertakers as were named in the several tables of assignation; in these employments, the King (JAMES I.) found him so faithful, diligent, and prudent, that his majesty deemed him highly deserving the peerage of Ireland, and accordingly created him, 23 Dec. 1620, Lord Caulfeild, Baron Charlemont, with limitation of the honour to his nephew, Sir William Caulfeild, Knt. His lordship d. a bachelor, 17 Aug. 1627, and was s. by the said

SIR WILLIAM CAULFEILD, as 2nd baron. This nobleman took his seat in parliament, 4 Nov. 1634, after the lord chancellor had moved to know the pleasure of the house, whether he should be admitted to this place, having brought neither writ of summons nor patent; whereupon it was resolved that his lordship should be admitted, inasmuch as they were all satisfied that he was a lord of parliament. This unfortunate nobleman dying unm., was s. by his brother,

ROBERT, 4th baron; who d. a few months afterwards, from the effects of an over dose of opium, when the barony devolved upon his brother,

WILLIAM, 5th baron. This nobleman apprehended Sir Pheilm O'Neile, and had him executed for the murder of his brother. GEORGE-PHILIP-CECIL-ARTHUR, Lord Stanhope, an officer Roy. Horse Guards Blue, b. in Sept. 1831. Evelyn.

Lineage.

CAMDEN, in his account of Nottinghamshire, mentions "Shelford, the seat of the famous family of Stanhope, Knts., whose state and grandeur in those parts is eminent, and their names renowned." And in his discourse on surnames, the same learned antiquary observes, that they were "denominated from a place of their own name (without doubt) the town of Stanhope, (near a forest so called,) in Darlington wapentake, in the bishoprick of Durham, of which they might be owners; for it is certain their residence was in those parts before they came into Nottinghamshire."

SIR RICHARD STANHOPE, living in the times of HENRY III. and EDWARD I., had large possessions in the north and received the honour of knighthood. His son and heir,

SIR RICHARD STANHOPE, Lord of Elstwick, co. Northumberland, and mayor of the town of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, had, in consideration of his services against the Scots, in the 34th of Edward III., a grant of the third part of the village and fishery of Paxton, with the appurtenances. (by Agnes, dau. and heir of John Arderne, of Nether Darwind) of Sir Thomas Talbot, Knt. of Bashall, co. York. (See TALBOT DE BASHALL, under EARL OF SHREWSBURY.) THOMAS STANHOPE, Esq. of Rampton, who, in 4th EDW. IV., was retained by indenture to attend the king in person in his wars in France. He m. Mary, dau. of John, and sister of Edward Jerningham, Esq. of Somer-Layton, co. Suffolk, and had two sons,

SIR MICHAEL STANHOPE, upon whom HENRY VIII. conferred, by patent, the house and site of the monastery of SHELFORD, in Nottinghamshire. Under EDWARD VI., Sir Michael was chief gentleman of the privy chamber, and he represented the co. Nottingham in parliament; but subsequently sharing in the ruin of his brother-in-law, the Duke of Somerset, he was found guilty of conspiring the death of Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, a privy councillor, and beheaded, with Sir Thomas Arundel, on Tower Hill, 25 Feb. 1552. He left, with other issue, by his wife, Anne, dau. of Nicholas Rawson, Esq. of Aveyly Bellhouse, Essex,

He was s. by his son,

Lineage.

The surname of Pelham was assumed from a lordship in Hertfordshire, where anciently stood a castle, the owner of which, in 1255, was amerced in the then very large sum of forty pounds, for a contempt in not coming to an inquest to be taken concerning a trespass of the Mint. This lordship of Pelham is recorded to be part of the possessions of Walter de Pelham, in the 21st of EDWARD I., and it is believed that his ancestors held it prior to the Conquest. From the earliest period it is certain that the family enjoyed very high consideration and its members have, in different reigns, distinguished themselves as warriors and statesmen.

SIR JOHN DE PELHAM, a gallant soldier in the martial reign of EDWARD III., shared in the glory of Poitiers, and had the honour of participating personally in the capture of the French king, JOHN, for which exploit he had as a badge of honour, the Buckle of a Belt, which was sometimes used by his descendants as a seal-manual, and at others, on each side, a cage, being an emblem of the captivity of the French monarch, and was therefore borne for a crest, as in those times customary. Sir John had certain lands and houses in Winchelsea, in marriage with Joan, dau. of Vincent Herbert, alias Finch, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN PELHAM, K.B., constable of Pevensey Castle. This eminent person represented the co. of Sussex in parliament, and enjoyed great influence at the court of HENRY IV. He was likewise a man of large fortune, his estates yielding, according to a roll bearing date in 1403, the annual income of £370 5s. 3d. In the 6th of HEN. IV., serving in parliament, with Sir John Dalyngruge, as knight for Sussex, he had his moiety of £18 18s. for his expenses in attending forty-six days. In two years afterwards, Sir John petitioned parliament, praying, "that certain auditors be appointed to take his accounts as treasurer of war, and to make him due allowance; and that upon the same account, he, his heirs, and land-tenants, might be clearly discharged;" which was agreed to, and auditors assigned accordingly. In the 9th of HENRY IV. he was constituted chief butler of the port of CHICHESTER, and the same year he was again returned by the co. of Sussex, which he continued several years afterwards to represent. From Sir John, we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR WILLIAM PELHAM,* who m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Sir Richard Carew, of Bedington, co. Surrey, and by that lady had two sons and a dau. He m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of William, Lord Sandys of the Vine, lord-chamberlain to HENRY VIII., and had by her, Blunage.

The Chichesters of Arlington claim a common ancestor with the ancient house of "Chichester of Raleigh," and separated from that parent stem in the 14th century. The surname was anciently written "De Cirencester," and the family appears to have been one of the most eminent in the county of Devon, for its antiquity, estates, employments, and alliances. Westcote's pedigree, in Chichester MSS. in the British Museum, states that it flourished for many generations prior to 1216, at South Pole, in the co. of Devon, where its most ancient habitation was, but marrying the heiress of Sir William Raleigh, of Raleigh, near Barnstaple, it took up its abode in the north part of that county, sometime in the 14th century. It has been suggested by an ancient historian of Devon, that this family originally came from Cirencester, in Gloucestershire; if so, it must have been early in the tenth century, for we find that Robert Chichester, who was a person of great distinction in the co. of Devon, was born about the year 1075, and became Bishop of Exeter in 1128. He was celebrated for his great zeal in religion, as well as for his learning and piety; he bestowed a considerable sum of money in beautifying and adorning the Cathedral of Exeter, in which he was buried in the year 1150, on the south side of the altar, "adjoining to one of his honourable family, as appears by the arms." Walleran de Cirencester descended from a brother of Robert, Bishop of Exeter, married and had issue, John de Cirencester, the father of Sir John, whose son, Sir Thomas de Cirencester, was lord of the manor of St. Mary Church, an ancient sea mark on the east side of Torbay, and by his marriage with Alicia de Rotomago, in the time of HENRY III. (from the beginning of whose reign he maintained many honourable employments through the whole course of it), had issue, Sir William, who had issue, Sir John de Cirencester, whose son, Richard, left the name of "de Cirencester," and took the name of "Chichester," which has ever since continued the surname of the family. John de Chichester, his son, in the 34th, 35th, and 46th years of EDWARD III., was M.P. for Melcomb Regis, and also represented that borough in 1381, 5th RICHARD II. His son and heir, Sir John de Chichester, in 1433, 12th HENRY VI., was returned one of the principal gentry in the co. of Devon, by the king's commissioners, and marrying Thomasine, dau. and heiress of Sir William Raleigh, near Barnstaple, acquired that inheritance, and was father of Sir John de Chichester, of Raleigh, who was sheriff of the co. of Devon, 3rd EDWARD IV., and left issue, Richard de Chichester, who, 8th and 14th of that reign, served the same office, and marrying Alicia, dau. and heiress of Sir John Wotton, of Widworthy, acquired that estate; by her, besides other children, he had John, his heir, and Richard, his third son, who m. Thomasine, dau. and heiress of Simon Hall, of Hall, in Bishops Taunton, co. Devon, and from whom the Chichesters of Hall are descended. John Chichester, the eldest son, m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and heiress of Hugh Beaumont, of Youlston, co. Devon, and had by her a son, Edward, his heir, ancestor of the present SIR ARTHUR CHICHESTER, Bart. of Raleigh, and of the noble house of DONEGAL; by his second wife, Joan, dau. of Richard Brett, of Whitstaunton, Somersetshire, John Chichester, had a son, AMIAS CHICHESTER, of Arlington, who was born sometime in the reign of EDWARD IV., and to whom his father gave the estates at Arlington, which have ever since continued in the possession of Amias's posterity. He m. Joan, dau. of Sir Robert Giffard, of Brightley, and had issue nineteen sons, every one of whom, says Westcote, Survey of Devon Arlington MSS., had "no less than four sisters; fourteen of the nineteen lived to be proper gentlemen, though not three of them had issue; when they all went to church, the first would be in the church porch before the last would be out of the house." Edward, the ninth son, was slain in a duel, and Paul, the 11th, was a worthy captain in the Netherland wars, and was slain in the Portugal action, in 1689.

GILES CHICHESTER, of Arlington, great-great-grandson of Amias, m. Catherine Palmer, niece and heiress of the celebrated Roger Palmer, Earl of Castlemaine, by whom he had, with a dau., Mary, m. to William Paston, Esq. of Norton, co. Gloucester, a son,

The elder son,

ADELIN DE BURGH was father of

WILLIAM FITZ-ADELIN, who was sent by HENRY II., with Hugh de Lacie, into Ireland, to receive the submission of Roderick O'Connor, King of Connaught, and of the King of Meath, and founded there, according to Sir Richard Cox, "one of the best and noblest families, which has yielded many brave and worthy men, that have proved eminently serviceable to their king and country, whereby the name, estate, and family are preserved, in great honour and reputation, to this day." This William, who was made governor of Wexford, was entrusted, on the king's return to England, with the management of his affairs in Ireland. In 1176, in a synod of the bishops and clergy at Waterford, he published the bull, and the privileges granted by Pope ALEXANDER III., in confirmation of the bull of ADRIAN IV., constituting the king Lord of Ireland. In 1179, he obtained by grant, a great part of the province of Connaught. He d. in 1204, and was s. by his son, RICHARD DE BURGH, surnamed the great Lord of Connaught, who was lord-lieutenant of Ireland in 1297. This Richard built the castle of Galway in 1232, and that of Loughbreah in 1236. WILLIAM.

The 2nd son of Richard de Burgh, Lord of Connaught,

WILLIAM DE BURGH, is known by the surname of Ashknip, from being put to death at that place by the King of Connaught. He was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM DE BURGH, who, having m. a dau. of the family of Mac-Jordan, left, with other issue, at his decease, in 1324,

The king, moreover, defrayed the charges of his journey, and made him a further grant of a piece of land, near Dublin, for keeping his horses and attendants, when he repaired to parliament or council. Lineage.

This family derives from the Claytons of Northamptonshire.

SIR ROBERT CLAYTON, Knt., filled, in 1679, the civic chair of London, represented the metropolis for nearly 30 years in parliament, and was father of the city at his decease. During the reign of JAMES II., Sir Robert, having previously acted a prominent part in public affairs, was attainted in Ireland, and a large estate, which he then and there possessed was, in consequence, seized upon and put into hands from which the family were unable to recover it. On his attainder, he retired from public life to his estate at Marden, which he converted into the beautiful form it now wears, and enjoyed his solitude with as much tranquillity as the convulsions of the times would permit, till the arrival of the Prince of Orange, when he was judged a fit person to compliment his royal highness, in the name of the city of London, and to escort him from Henley-on-Thames to the metropolis. He was subsequently appointed a commissioner of Customs, by King WILLIAM, which post he held till the decline of life made a quiet retreat more desirable than public employment. Sir Robert was a princely benefactor to Christ's Hospital, which suffered materially in the dreadful conflagration of 1666, and erected the south front, at an expense of £5000. Over the gateway, which is the entrance from Christ's-church passage, is a statue of King EDWARD, with the following inscription: "EDWARD THE SIXTH, of famous memory, King of England, was the founder of Christ's Hospital; and Sir Robert Clayton, Knt. and alderman, sometime lord-mayor of this city of London, erected this statue of King EDWARD, and built the most part of this fabric, anno Dom. 1682." Sir Robert m. Martha, dau. of Mr. Perient Trott, of London, merchant, which lady d. 25 Dec. 1705. He d. at Marden Park, Surrey, 16 July, 1707, s. p., and was buried in the parish church of Bleethingley, under a stately monument of white marble of the Corinthian order, with suitable decorations, the figures of himself and his lady standing upon the projection of the base, with that of an infant lying between them. Under Sir Robert are inscribed the words, "Non vultus instantis tyranni;" under the lady, "Quando ullam invenient parem." This distinguished person was s. by his nephew,

I. SIR WILLIAM CLAYTON, who was created a Baronet, 18 Jan. 1731-2. Sir William inherited large estates from his father, William Clayton, Esq., as well as those which he derived from his uncle, including Hambledon, Harleyford, Widmere, Marden, &c., and purchased, in 1736, the manor of Marlow, still possessed by his descendants. Lineage.

"In the time of Edward I., (we quote from an old pedigree of the Clerkes in the Heralds' College), there lived, at Willoughby, in the county of Warwick, one Hammond, some of whose posterity (having been good benefactors to Magdalen College, Oxford) do continue still at Willoughby, being owners of considerable estates there and elsewhere; but changed their name of Hamund into Clerke, as by several writings of theirs appears, wherein they have writ themselves Hamund als. Clerke. One Richard, of that family, in a lease made to him by the aforesaid College, in the 23rd of HENRY VI., of the Manor and Tithes of Willoughby being written Richard Clerke, Esq.: the descendants from which Richard, from some generations downwards, doe appear in a book kept by one of the family still at Willoughby aforesaid, and likewise in the Memorials of the said College, as Farmers of those Tythes."

Isabel, dau. of John Darrell, Esq., and had, with other issue, Richard, (the eldest surviving son,) ancestor of the EARLS OF WESTMORLAND, and JOHN, of whom presently. His subsequent dismissal from office was attributed to his having offended the king by the active part he took in the prosecution of the Earl of Stafford, against whom, it is said, he was influenced by private pique, arising from that nobleman's having, when elevated to the peerage, taken the title of Baron Raby of Raby Castle, which Sir Henry Vane deemed more properly to belong to himself as owner of the castle. SIR HENRY VANE, Knt., b. about 1612. The baronet assumed the surname of JUCKES, in addition to, and after, his patronymic.

Lineage.

The surname of this very ancient family is derived from Cliffe-ton, or Clifton, a small hamlet, upon an eminence, about two miles from the town of Nottingham; which hamlet, and the manor of Wilford, were purchased, temp. EDWARD I., from John de Sokeni, by

SIR GERVASE DE CLIFTON, Knt. This gentleman was appointed sheriff of the cos. Nottingham and Derby in 1270, and continued for seven years; in 1286, he was constituted sheriff of Yorkshire, and continued for six years. During his shrievalty, he was committed to gaol, upon complaint of John de Carleton, for making a false return to a writ. He m. Amflicia, dau. of Sir William Sampson, of Eperston, Notts, and d. in 1324. From Sir Gervase we pass to his descendant,

SIR JOHN CLIFTON, M.P. for Nottingham in 1403; who m. Catharine, dau. of Sir John de Cressy, of Hodsack, and sister and co-heir of Sir Hugh de Cressy, and thus acquired a considerable augmentation of property. Mr. Clifton d. in 1518, and was s. by his son,

SIR GERVASE CLIFTON, Knt., a very eminent person in the reigns of HENRY VIII., EDWARD VI., and MARY and ELIZABETH. He was a gentleman in great authority in peace and war, yet, notwithstanding his martial inclination, of so courteous and affable a disposition, that he was usually styled "Gentle Sir Gervase;" and ELIZABETH has given him that title in a distich, attributed to her majesty, on four Nottingham knights:—

"Gervase, the gentle; Stanhope, the stout;
 Marcham, the lion; and Sutton, the lout."

He m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Sir John Nevill, of Cheet, in Yorkshire, by whom he had an only surviving dau., Elizabeth. He m. 2ndly, Winfred, dau. and heir of William

CLINTON, BARON. (Charles-Rodolph Trefusis,) of Maxtock, co. Warwick; b. 9 Nov. 1791; s. to the barony, on the decease of his brother, in Oct. 1832; m. 25 Oct. 1831, Lady Elizabeth-Georgiana Kerr, dau. of William, 6th Marquess of Lothian, and has issue,

His lordship is the 17th Baron Clinton, and the eldest co-heir of the ancient Barony of Say, which has remained in abeyance for several centuries. When Sir James Fienes obtained the Barony of Say and Sele, by creation, 1447, John the 5th and then Baron Clinton, great-grandson and representative of Idonea Say, relinquished all claim to the barony and arms of Say; but how far such a cession affects his descendants has not been determined. According, however, to the celebrated resolution of the House of Lords, 18 June, 1768, "that no fine now levied, nor at any time hereafter to be levied, to the king, can bar such title of honour, or the right of any person claiming such title under him that levied, or shall levy, such fine," it would appear that it did not prejudice their hereditary right.

Lineage.

JOHN DE CLINTON, son of Thomas de Clinton, and the descendant of Geoffrey de Clinton, lord chamberlain to HENRY I., marrying Ida, eldest of the four sisters and co-heirs of William de Odingsells, Lord of Maxtock Castle, co. JOHN, 5th baron. This nobleman exchanged his manor of Maxtock, in the 16th HENRY VI., with Humphrey, Earl of Stafford, for the manors of Whiston and Woodford, co. Northampton. His lordship, being a staunch Yorkist, was attained, in 1461, but on the subsequent re-establishment of his party, he was restored, and enjoyed the favour of EDWARD IV. Sir James was under-secretary of state in 1806, governor and commander-in-chief of Curaçoa in 1807, and subsequently, in 1811, governor of the Bermudas.

Lineage.

ALEXANDER DE COCKBURN obtained the Barony of Carriden, co. Linnithgow, from DAVID II., in 1358; which barony had been forfeited to the crown, by what, in the law of Scotland is denominated recognition, or a vassal disposing of his property without consent of his superior; for all property at that time being subject to feudal tenure, the superior could challenge any deed of the vassal which affected the territory of which he was over-lord. This Alexander m. Mary de Veteri Ponte, (from which period the family has been designated of Langtoun, or Langton,) whose father fell at Bannockburn, in 1314. The eldest son of this marriage,

SIR ALEXANDER COCKBURN, Knt. of Langtoun, was keeper of the great seal between 1389 and 1396; and from him descended

SIR WILLIAM COCKBURN, Knt. of Langtoun, who obtained a grant, in 1598, of the lands and barony of Langtoun, with the office of principal usher, and its fees and casualties, to himself and his heirs male whatsoever, bearing the arms and surname of Cockburn. He m. Helen, 5th dau. of Alexander, 4th Lord Elphinstone, and was s. by his son,

I. WILLIAM COCKBURN, Esq., who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1627. It appears that, during the lifetime of this gentleman, some question concerning the office of usher, which he had inherited from his father, being raised, caused much public agitation. Principal Baillie in his letters, relates "that while the question of ushers was depending in parliament, in 1641, Langton, too rashly, takes a rod and puts himself in possession of the place." The king, who was present, offended at his presumption, ordered him into custody, which gave rise to a motion, on the part of the Marquess of Argyll, that, when any subject of debate occurred, two members of each estate should be deputed to acquaint the king. Accordingly, deputies having obtained an audience of his majesty, in the course of the same day, they remonstrated on a member of the house being committed without advice of parliament, and required the king to enact a law that neither himself nor his successors should do so hereafter, without consulting the legislative body. Sir William, subsequently, alienated a moiety of the ushership, and became joint-usher with Colonel Cunningham. He was s. by his only son,

II. SIR ARCHIBALD, who, in 1657, was returned heir to his father in the office of principal usher, still held jointly with Colonel Cunningham, and also in the barony of Langtoun, and other property. In 1674, Sir Archibald, having purchased Cunningham's life-rent, obtained another grant of the office, with a salary of £350, and other emoluments attached to it, for ever. of Ash Park, co. Herts; b.

baronet on the demise of his father, 29 July, 1848.

Lineage.

According to Wootton, the family of Colleton is of Norman origin, and came to England with the Conqueror, for one of the great-uncles of the 1st baronet went back to Normandy, to recover estates in that duchy, sold them, and d. there s. p. They have been resident for many centuries in Devon and its vicinity; and many places are called after them. By a very ancient grant, from Reginald de Villecore to Thomas Colleton, of an estate, and by subsequent deeds, in the beginning of the reign of EDWARD I., we find the Colletons style themselves gentlemen, and that they then bore the arms which they still continue to use.

The first entry in the pedigree at the Herald's College is that of — Colleton, b. about 1447; who m. the dau. and heiress of — Ridgway, and had a son and heir,

HENRY COLLETON, b. about 1485; who m. Margaret, dau. of William Bury, of Colleton; and dying before 1550, left two daus., one of whom m. Thomas Dyer, Esq. of

PETER COLLETON, who recorded his pedigree, including three ascents before his time, at the visitation of 1620, was high-sheriff of Exeter in 1618. He m. Ursula, dau. of Henry Hull, of Larkbeare, Exon; and d. in 1622, leaving (with a dau., Elizabeth, m. to Sir Hugh Crocker, Knt.,) four sons, all of whom d. s. p., except the second,

I. JOHN COLLETON, b. in 1606; capt. of foot, and a most active partisan of royalty in the beginning of the civil wars. Capt. Colleton had a col.'s commission to raise a regiment from Sir John Berkeley, afterwards Lord Berkeley, signed by the Prince of Wales; which regiment he raised within ten days, and expended for the king's service £40,000, besides losing considerably more than that sum by sequestration. He was obliged eventually to retire to Barbadoes; but returning after the Restoration, Sir John Berkeley presented a memorial in his favour to the king, who, in consequence, conferred upon him the dignity of Baronet, 18 Feb. 1666. Sir John, in conjunction with the Duke of Albemarle, and other distinguished personages, had a grant of large dominions in North America. He m. Katherine, dau. of William Amy, Esq. of Exon, and left at his decease, in 1666, a dau. (m. 1st, to Lieut.-Gen. Stewart, and 2ndly, to Humphrey Selwood) and four sons, viz.,

Lineage

The origin of this family is enveloped in the obscurity of remote antiquity, and has been variously traced by uncertain traditions. Some have been disposed to carry it as far back as the invasion of Scotland by the Romans, under Agricola, when GALGACUS, (supposed to be the latin corruption of COLQUHOUN, CALQUHOUN, or GALGANOUN,) the celebrated general of the Caledonians, gallantly contended with the imperial commander in the memorable battle of the Grampians. Other accounts deduce the descent from CONOCH, a king of Ireland; while a third tradition derives the family from a younger son of the old Earls of Lennox.

But although in the absence of distinct historical records none of these traditionary accounts can now be authenticated by positive and satisfactory proof, it is certain, at least, that the name is very ancient; and it would appear from documentary evidence that there were at one time, three branches of this family,—COLQUHOUN of that ilk,

COLQUHOUN of Kilpatrick, and COLQUHOUN of Luss,—which subsequently became united by marriage, succession, or otherwise, and held a large proportion of the territory of Dumbartonshire by charters from the crown, having also acquired, from the Lennox family, the important hereditary office of coroner (coronator) of that county.

The first authentic record we have been able to discover of the COLQUHOUNS of Luss, is to be found in a charter of Maldoven, third Earl of Lennox, who succeeded his father, Alwyn, the second earl, in 1225, containing a grant of the lands of Luss in favour of GILMORE, the son of MALDONENS, who lived in the reign of WILLIAM the Lion. This branch of the Colquhouns appears to have continued during several generations, when it terminated, at length, as we shall immediately see, in the person of UMPHRIDUS de Luss.

With regard to the Kilpatrick line, it appears that, in the reign of ALEXANDER II., UMPHRIDUS de Kilpatrick, obtained a grant of the lands and barony of Colquhoun in Dumbartonshire, upon which occasion he assumed the name and title of COLQUHOUN of Colquhoun. He was s. by his son,

INGELRAMUS DE COLQUHOUN, who appears as a witness to a charter of Malcolm, fourth Earl of Lennox, in favour of Malcolm, son and heir of Sir John, of Luss. This Ingelramus was the father of

HUMPHRY DE COLQUHOUN, whose name also appears as a witness in a charter by Malcolm, 5th Earl of Lennox, in favour of Sir John, of Luss, confirmed by King ROBERT BRUCE, in 1316. His son,

SIR ROBERT DE COLQUHOUN, m. the dau. and heiress of Sir Humphry, of Luss; since which time the family have borne the name and designation of COLQUHOUN of Colquhoun and of Luss. From this Sir Robert several other families of the name of Colquhoun, in Dumbartonshire, are descended. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HUMPHRY COLQUHOUN, of that ilk and of Luss, whose son,

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, was governor of the castle of Dumbarton during the minority of JAMES II. His son, Malcolm, who was one of the hostages for the ransom of JAMES I., predeceased his father, leaving a son, who s. his grandfather,

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, the son of Malcolm, a man of the most eminent abilities, held the high official situation of comptroller of the Exchequer, from 1455 until 1469. He was subsequently appointed sheriff-principal of Dumbartonshire, and received a grant of the lands of Rosemeath. In 1474, he was elevated to the rank of great chamberlain of Scotland. He was likewise one of a commission deputed to England, with full powers to negotiate a marriage between the Prince Royal of Scotland and the Princess Cicily, dau. of King EDWARD IV. Sir John acquitted himself so well in this delicate affair, that he was soon afterwards appointed governor of Dumbarton Castle for life, with very extensive powers; and he received various grants of lands in consideration of his important public services. In 1478, he proceeded to the siege of Dunbar, and while performing his military duties there, he was slain by a cannon shot, on the 1st of May, 1478. He m. a dau. of Thomas, Lord Boyd, by whom he had issue,

HUMPHRY, his successor.

Robert, who became Bishop of Argyle.

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, who received the honours of knighthood from King JAMES IV., and obtained a charter under the great seal, of sundry lands and baronies in Dumbartonshire, dated 4 Dec. 1506. He m. 1st, Margaret Stuart, dau. of John, Earl of Lennox, ancestor of the royal family, by whom he had two sons and four daus.; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of William Cunningham, of Craighends, by whom he had two sons. He d. in 1535, and was s. by his eldest son, the Great Seal, of the lands and baronies of Luss, Colquhoun, Dunglass, Garacube, and others, dated 6 Jan. 1541. By Agnes, dau. of Robert, 4th Lord Boyd, ancestor of the Earls of Kilmarnock, he had three sons and three daus. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HUMPHRY COLQUHOUN, who acquired the heritable coronership of the co. of Dumbarton, which was notified to him and his heirs whatsoever, by a charter under the Great Seal, in the year 1583. He m. 1st, Jean Cunningham, dau. of Alexander, 5th Earl of Glencairn, by whom he had no issue; and 2ndly, Jean, dau. of John, Lord Hamilton, by whom he had one dau. In the year 1595, he was treacherously assaulted in one of his castles (the castle of Banachra) and slain, during a raid of the clan McGregor and their lawless followers. Having left no male issue, he was s. by his brother,

SIR ALEXANDER COLQUHOUN, 3rd son of the last-mentioned Sir John, who obtained a charter, under the Great Seal, dated 5 February, 1597, of the lands of Waltoun, Auchindonnarie, &c., in Dumbartonshire. By his wife, Helen, dau. of Sir George Buchanan, of that ilk, he had five sons, and one dau. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, who obtained a charter, under the Great Seal, of the ten-pound land of Dunnerbuck, dated 20 Feb. 1602. In 1625 he was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, by KING CHARLES I. He was a steady loyalist, suffered many hardships during the civil war, and was, moreover, fined by OLIVER CROMWELL in the sum of £2000 sterling, a large sum in those days. He m. Lillias Graham, dau. of John, 4th Earl of Montrose, brother to the celebrated first marquis of that family, by whom he had two daus., three sons, viz.,

I. JOHN, his heir. II. JAMES, successor to his brother.

Inheritance of the Nova Scotia Baronetcy.

In the month of August, 1625, SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, of that ilk and of Luss, was, by King CHARLES I., created a Baronet of Nova Scotia. The original royal patent bears to have been granted—ob insignia bona et gratuita servitia sibi prestita et peracta, et ob ejus ejusque predecessorum insignem magnanimitatem et meritum—DICTO IOANNI ET HEREDIBUS SUIA MASCULIS QUIBUSCUNQUE.

Sir Humphry Colquhoun, the fourth baronet in succession from Sir John, the original patentee, had no male issue. His only daughter, Anne, was sole heiress of Luss; and, in the year 1702, this lady married James Grant, of Pluscardine, the second son of Ludovick Grant, of that ilk.

Upon occasion of this marriage, a contract, bearing date
10 January, 1702, was duly executed, containing a destination of Sir Humphry's lands of Luss, and others, in favour of the issue of the marriage of his daughter with Mr. Grant; which destination, as will be immediately seen, was subsequently carried into effect by a regular deed of tailzie.

Sir Humphry, at this time, appears to have resolved, that, failing heirs male of his own body, his only daughter, Anne, and her husband, and the issue of their marriage, should succeed him in his whole estate and honours, while he seemed to be equally anxious that the family of Luss should never be permitted to merge into that of Grant; but that the lands and title pertaining to the former should always continue to constitute a distinct succession. In order to carry these objects into effect, two separate measures were adopted—the one relative to the title, the other to the estate.

1. In April, 1704, Sir Humphry resigned his baronetcy into the hands of her Majesty, Queen ANNE. Thereupon (29 April, 1704,) a signature was granted under her Majesty's sign-manual, and a charter, or diploma, in virtue of this signature, passed the Great Seal. This diploma proceeds upon a narrative of the original patent, conferred upon Sir John Colquhoun, of Luss, in 1625, and of the resignation by Sir Humphry; and goes on to re-invest the baronetcy in Sir Humphry himself, and the heirs male of his body, whom failing, in the male issue of the marriage of his daughter with James Grant, of Pluscardine, &c., whom all failing, in the other heirs of entail of Sir Hum-phry—alios heridos Tullie dicit Domini Humphridi quoscumque—that is to say, in the series of heirs pointed out by Sir Humphry, in the marriage contract, already noticed, and subsequent deed of entail. This diploma of re-investiture in a new series of heirs also contains a full patent of precedence, up to the date of the original grant, in 1625.

2. In the month of December, 1706, Sir Humphry proceeded to execute an entail of his lands, in terms of the provisions of his marriage-contract, already mentioned, which was duly recorded in the register of tailzies on the 26 February, 1707. By this deed, Sir Humphry settled his whole lands and estates upon the series of heirs alluded to in the diploma of re-investiture, under the two following conditions:—1st, That the said heirs of tailzie shall, upon succeeding, "assume, take upon them, use and wear the said surname of Colquhoun, and the title, designation, and arms of Colquhoun of Luss;" and 2nd, That the estate of Luss should never come to be absorbed in the estate of Grant, in consequence of one and the same individual possessing and enjoying both.

The object contemplated by Sir Humphry was thus accomplished, both with regard to his title and his estate, by the proceedings above-mentioned, which took place almost simultaneously, and must be regarded as one entire and correlative transaction. Both the title and the estate were destined to descend together to the same series of heirs.

Sir Humphry Colquhoun, the entailer, died in 1718; and under the entail and diploma above mentioned, James Grant, his son-in-law, succeeded to the estate of Luss.
His elder brother, Alexander, however, having died in 1719, James succeeded to the estate of Grant, and resumed his paternal surname, thereby forfeiting his right to retain the estate and title of Colquhoun of Luss. Ludwick, the second son of the marriage between James Grant and the heiress of Luss, succeeded to the estate of Luss, as heir of entail to Sir Humphry; but his elder brother, Humphry, younger of Grant, having died in 1733, the estate and title of Colquhoun of Luss devolved, in virtue of the entail, upon his immediate younger brother, James, in whose direct line of male descendants they have ever since continued, down to the present heir in possession.

It thus appears that the destination of the Nova Scotia
Baronetcy, granted in 1625, was altered, by the resignation and re-investiture of 1704, from the heirs male of the original patentee to the heirs of entail of Sir Humphry in the estate of Luss. Several mistakes, however, appear to have been made in this matter, probably in consequence of not attending to the objects and import of the relative documents: and the original Nova Scotia Baronetcy was at one time assumed by another family; although it is clear that the rights of all pretended male heirs anterior to Sir Humphry were effectually cut off by the diploma in 1704. But besides the defect of right, the family in question (Colquhoun of Tilliquhoun, the last died in 1838) has now become extinct, and in virtue of the entail and diploma of re-investiture, the original title of 1625 confirmed to the family of Luss in 1704—the vacant Baronetcy, in short, has now been resumed by the heir at present in possession, Sir James Colquhoun, of Luss, who has been regularly served heir of tailzie to his ancestor, Sir Humphry.

Lineage.

By reference to the records in the office of Ulster king-of-arms, it is established, that the Milesian family of Conroy, whose name (in Irish, "O'Maolconaire") was formerly written "O'Mulconry" and "Conry," is of great antiquity, and derives its descent from Niallus Magnus, monarch of Ireland, A.D. 400.

In the Bardic Sept of "O'Maolconaire" was vested by hereditary right for many successive generations the honourable office of Seanachle (bard and herald) to the kings of Connaught.

The early part of the pedigree of the chiefs of this family (of whom the present baronet is the representative and lineal descendant,) is to be found in the registry entitled "Funeral entries of the nobility and gentry of Ireland," one of the books of record in the Irish Heralds' College for the year 1637, when the funeral and lineage of Moylin O'Mulconry, then chief of his name, were duly established and registered as the forty-third in lineal descent of this ancient family, and as such received the warrant, dated 6 July, 1638, of Thomas Preston, then Ulster king-of-arms of all Ireland. From this

MOYLIN O'MULCONRY, Esq. of Tullon, co. Roscommon, "The O'Mulconry," (who by his wife, Catherine, dau. of Teigue O'Flanagan, Gent. of Ceancloin, co. Roscommon, had issue, five sons and four daus., and d. 5 Jan. 1637,) there descended, altering their surnames, Fitzgerald, by a French lady; and was killed at the passage of the Rhine, in June, 1673, leaving two sons. The elder, CHARLES CONRY, Esq., b. in 1637, had a re-grant of land in Roscommon from King CHARLES II., dated 18 Aug. 1678. By the adherence of this gentleman to the cause of King JAMES II. he was totally ruined, and fell at the battle of the Boyne, 1 July, 1690. He was s. by his brother as heir male,

FERRASSA CONRY, Esq. of Elphin, co. Roscommon, b. in 1661, who became the first protestant of this family, in order to avoid the penalties inflicted on the Irish catholics by the penal laws of King WILLIAM III. He m. Elizabeth Aylmer; and dying in 1746, was s. by his only son,

Lineage.

The first settler in Ireland, descended from a very ancient English family, was,

I. SIR CHARLES COOTE, Knt. of Castle Cuffe, Queen's Co., who served in the wars against O'Neile, Earl of Tyrone, at the head, as captain, of 100 foot, with which he was at the siege of Kinsale, and was appointed by JAMES I. provost-marshal of the province of Connaught for life. In 1620, he was constituted vice-president of the same province; and created, 2 April, in the same year, a BARONET OF IRELAND. Sir Charles distinguished himself, subsequently, by many gallant exploits; but the most celebrated was the relief of Birr, in 1642. Being dispatched, with Sir Thomas Lucas, and six troops of horse, to relieve that garrison, and some other fortresses, it was necessary, in order to effect the object, to pass the causeway, broken by the rebels, who had thrown up a ditch at the end of it. Sir Charles, leading thirty dismounted dragoons, beat the enemy, with the loss of their captain and twenty men; relieved the castles of Birr, Burrass, and Knocknemease; and having continued almost forty hours on horseback, returned to the camp with the loss of one man only. This is the surprising passage through Mountrath woods which justly caused the title of Mountrath to be entailed upon his son. Sir

Lineage.

This family was founded in England by CORBEAU, a noble Norman, who accompanied the CONQUEROR, and with his two sons, Robert and Roger, was employed by Roger de Montgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury and Arundel. Of the earl and his servants, Ordericus Vitalis says, "That the earl was a prudent and moderate man, a great lover of equity and of discreet and modest persons, and being freely assisted by the wisdom and courage of the said Corbeau, and his two sons, Roger and Robert, was as glorious amongst the greatest nobles as any of them all, by keeping the Welsh in awe, and that whole province in peace." At the general survey, Roger, the elder son, held twenty-four lordships in Shropshire, and Robert, the younger, fourteen in the same county. Robert had a son, another Robert, Lord of Alcester, in Warwickshire, and two daus.: SIBIL, from whom the Herberts, Earls of Pembroke, and Finches, Earls of Winchelsea, descend, and Alice, from whom the Earls of Huntingdon. * This Richard Boyle, afterwards called the GREAT EARL OF CORK, in an account of himself, which he wrote, says, "I was born in the city of Canterbury, 3 Oct. 1566. After the decease of my father and mother, I being the 2nd son of a younger brother, having been a scholar in Bennet's College, Cambridge, and a student in the Middle Temple, finding my means unable to support me to study the laws in the Inns of court, put myself into the service of Sir Richard Manwood, Knt., lord-chief-baron of her majesty's court of Exchequer, where I served as one of his clerks; and perceiving that my employment would not raise a fortune, I resolved to travel into foreign kingdoms, and to gain learning, knowledge, on experience abroad in the world; and it pleased the Almighty, by his divine provi-

obtained, after suffering some persecutions from the local authorities, the favour and protection of ELIZABETH, amassed considerable wealth, received the honour of knighthood, was sworn of the privy-council, and elevated to the peerage of that kingdom, 16 Sept. 1616, as Baron Boyle of Youghall, and 16 Oct. 1620, created Viscount Dungarvan and EARL OF CORK. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of William, Earl of Denbigh, (which lady was created, on the restoration of CHARLES II., Countess of Guildford), but had no issue. - iii. ROGER, b. in 1621; elevated to the peerage of Ireland, as Baron of Broghill, with remainder to the heirs male of his father, 28 Feb. 1627. This nobleman had distinguished commands in Ireland, prior to, and under the rule of CROMWELL, and acquired considerable military renown. Contributing eventually, however, to the restoration of the monarchy, his lordship was created, 5 Sept. 1660, EARL OF ORRERY, and in the same year constituted (5 September), by patent, lord-president of Munster for life. Julia-Helen, d. in Feb. 1840.

Lineage.

The family of Croft, which is of Saxon origin, settled in Herefordshire at a very remote period. Camden, in his description of that county, says, "Not far off (from Richard's Castle) stands Croft Castle, belonging to the very ancient and knightly family of the Crofts;" and in Domesday-Book, Bernard de Croft is mentioned as holding the lands of Croft, which his descendants inherited until the close of the 18th century.

From an almost uninterrupted line of knights, distinguished alike in council and in arms, descended

SIR RICHARD CROFT, Knt. of Croft Castle, high-sheriff of the co. Hereford; the captor of Prince Edward, son of HENRY VI., at the battle of Tewkesbury, in 1471. This gallant soldier was appointed treasurer of the household to HENRY VII., and had the high honour of knight-banneret conferred upon him at the battle of Stoke, in 1487. The direct descendant of Sir Richard,

SIR JAMES CROFT, Knt., was lord-deputy of Ireland in 1552; and, subsequently, privy-councillor and comptroller of the household to Queen ELIZABETH, and was s. at his decease by his grandson,

SIR HERBERT CROFT, Knt., M.P. for the co. Hereford, temp. ELIZABETH and JAMES I. This gentleman, espousing the doctrines of the church of Rome, in 1607, became a lay-brother of the Benedictine monastery at Douay, where he d. 10 April, 1622. He had previously married, and left four sons and two daus. Sir William, the eldest son, fell gallantly fighting under the royal banner, at Stoke Castle, near Ludlow, 9 June, 1645. Sir James, the 2nd son, was also an officer of rank in the royal army, as was Robert, the 4th son, and all d. without issue. The 3rd son,

HERBERT CROFT, succeeded his father. This gentleman, after Sir Herbert's adoption of the Roman-catholic faith, was removed from Oxford to Douay, and thence to the English college of Jesuits at St. Omers, where he became reconciled to the church of Rome. Immediately, however, after his father's death, he returned to England, and being acquainted with Morton, Bishop of Durham, was induced by that prelate to return to the church of England, and at the desire of Doctor Laud, re-entered the University of Oxford. He subsequently took orders, and was advanced, in 1660, to the bishopric of Hereford, and appointed, in 1667, dean of the chapel-royal. His lordship d. 12 May, 1691, and was s. by his only son,
